PUMP PRIMERS TOE MARKS FOR 5½ BILLION RACE

Signing of New Bill to Start Spending.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 17.—[Special.]—Official Washington tonight toed the mark for the greatest spending race in the peacetime history of the country.

Spending agencies awaited President Roosevelt's signature on the 3¾ billion dollar recovery bill to start the first lap of the race, officially designated as from now to Labor day.

The goal is to spend and lend 5½ billion dollars. Most of the sum will be spent before July 1, 1939, although it is provided that the more ambitious construction projects must be substantially completed by June 30, 1940.

Signing to Start Flood.

Signing of the relief bill, which rounded out the presidential pump priming program to 5½ billions, will signal a flood of allotments, loans, and federal purchases of all descriptions beginning next week.

Among the early items Chicago may expect is a federal grant of 45 per cent of the estimated cost of 31 million dollars for three downtown subways. The project, having the approval of the Public Works administration, stands high on the list of recommended projects which will be sent to the White House as soon as the presidential ink dries on the relief bill.

Under the new program the administration will try all over again to produce recovery through spending, a plan first sold to President Roosevelt in 1933 by John Maynard Keynes, British economist. The government again will use its borrowing power to spend and lend in an effort to fill the gap left by the drop in private lending and spending.

Treasury Deficit Will Increase.

The plans call for immediate rolling up of the treasury's net deficit to 150 million dollars a month as a federal contribution to the nation's spending power. During the last six months this contribution averaged 80 millions a month.

These figures represent outlay from the treasury in excess of all receipts from all taxes, including social security, which averages approximately 500 millions a month. Credits given the sinking fund and the social security reserve fund are not counted as outgo because this money theoretically is not being put into present circulation.

Actually the deficit will be considerably greater than the 150 millions a month, fiscal experts conceded. The deficits, like most of the other devices for administration spending, will fall upon future generations in the form of far heavier taxes than exist today.

Bank Reserves Primed.

The treasury, with 2 billion dollars of cash on hand, is prepared to fulfill its rôle. Banks have been primed with huge amounts of excess reserves that are to be increased later, so that the government can get more dollars to spend as the program rolls along.

The bulk of the dollars will go to persons on the Works Progress administration rolls. Administrator Harry Hopkins has plans to increase the total number of persons on the rolls to 2,800,000. Further weekly increases of 25,000 persons will be made if found necessary. Those who lost jobs in the late winter or spring are counted as needing work now.

The 2,800,000 enrollment will represent a 100 per cent increase over the 1,400,000 persons on the dole a year ago. Political considerations are expected to have some bearing on the enrollees, because WPA jobs, government allotments, and expenditures will count heavily at the November election, when the administration enters the most serious political test of its existence.

PWA to Speed Program.

Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes is returning from his European honeymoon to assume direction of the Public Works administration. It is expected the PWA next week will announce allotment of loans and grants totaling 500 million dolars.

The PWA occupies a leading rôle in the recovery scheme because it involves pump priming more than any other agency. To a large measure its funds will go for cement, steel, copper, and other durable goods, produ-

NAZI'S BLAME 'CRIMINALS' FOR MOB ATTACKS

Crowds Visit Ruins of Night of Terror.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, June 17.—For the benefit of foreigners who have been following closely the recent raids on Jewish shops and homes, official sources today issued a statement concerning yesterday's arrests, but failed to mention those of previous days.

"Police action directed against criminal and anti-social elements," the statement said, "led to many arrests yesterday. Among those arrested were 143 Jews, twenty-six of whom were without a country; fifty-one foreigners, and sixty-six Germans."

Plan Concentration Camps.

Official sources said the creation of two new concentration camps to house the men and women arrested recently and who will not be able to obtain their release was contemplated. The Nazis declare that all Jews with police records will be submitted to new scrutiny and as many of them as possible will be placed in a concentration camp as "habitual criminals."

Chief interest today centered in Frankfurter Allee, where during the night windows in nearly 50 Jewish stores were smashed. Some of them, especially the big jewelry store of P. H. Freundlich, looked as if bombs had been hurled at them, but closer inspection disclosed that the damage was done by well aimed paving stones.

Officials assert that "criminal circles, including Jewish criminals, are responsible for this destruction." But foreigners who toured the region until the early hours of this morning are fully aware that no Jew could have dared to show himself in the streets in view of the nasty temper of the mob.

Window Displays Looted.

Market dealers who drove through Frankfurter Allee at dawn assert that part of the contents of shop windows was missing when they passed. Reference by the officials to criminals indicates that thefts must have taken place.

The Tribune correspondent saw a small gang packed around an automatic cigaret dispenser late last night. A few hours later, passing the spot again, the correspondent noted that the dispenser had been smashed and was empty.

In the Freundlich Jewelry store was a mass of destroyed jewelry cases and grandfather clocks.

Crowds tonight packed street cars to view the scenes of destruction in Frankfurter Allee. Many children were in the sightseeing groups. Policemen stood guard near the store windows, which were boarded up after the panes had been smashed.

Toughs Boast of Deeds.

Only a few of the Storm Troopers who were in action against the Jews near Horst Wessel platz last night were in evidence in the region tonight. Their friends asserted they had moved the center of their activity to the wealthier west end section of Berlin.

All school teachers in Germany were instructed today to "enlighten" their pupils and tell them that no "decent" German may buy in Jewish shops. If parents send children to a Jewish store the children must tell the parents that their teacher has forbidden them to do so. If the parents insist the children must report them to their teacher.

Raids Ordered by Goebbels.

BERLIN, June 17.—(AP)—Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels ordered the raids on Jewish homes and amusement places that have become daily occurrences in Berlin since June 1, a high Nazi source said tonight.

Applications at the American consulate general for United States visas jumped from a recent daily average of thirty to 130 when unofficial reports of the raids began circulating.

Sen. Copeland Dies in Hotel at Washington

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 17.—[Special.]—Senator Royal S. Copeland [D., N. Y.], a foe of most of the acts and policies of the Roosevelt administration, died at 7:45 o'clock tonight in his suite at the Shoreham hotel. He was 69 years old.

Senator Copeland.

His death occurred twenty-four hours after he had suffered a circulatory collapse, with kidney complications. He was at his place in the senate part of yesterday, but went home last night before congress adjourned.

Mrs. Copeland, two physicians, and two nurses were with Copeland, the only physician in the senate, when he died.

Blame Overwork for Death.

Physicians expressed the opinion that the senator's death was hastened by overwork.

As chairman of the commerce committee he presided over a dozen conference committees.

The tall, gray haired New Yorker was an indefatigable debater. Gallery visitors distinguished him by a red carnation—presented each morning by Mrs. Copeland—which he wore throughout his sixteen years' service in the senate.

Senator Copeland was one of the most consistent opponents of the Roosevelt administration on the Democratic side. He called the administration communistic and frequently assailed its alliance with John L. Lewis' C. I. O.

Foe of Court Packing.

The senator was one of the leaders in the fight against Roosevelt's proposal to pack the Supreme court. He opposed with equal vehemence the bill to reorganize the federal government and confer dictatorial powers upon the President.

Senator Copeland was born in Dexter, Mich., and received his medical degree at the University of Michigan in 1889. He was health commissioner of New York City from 1918 until elected to the senate in 1922. He was reëlected in 1928 and in 1934. Gov. Herbert H. Lehman of New York tonight refused to discuss his plans for appointing a senator to fill the vacancy until next fall, when a successor will be elected to serve until 1940, the year Copeland's term would have expired.

AN EXPLOSION LEAVES DETERMINED YOUNG MAN SLIGHTLY WARM

James Glauser is a determined young man, not easy to convince. Jimmy, who is 7 years old, has often been spanked by his father, Walter F. Glauser, a WPA engineer, for playing with matches.

Yesterday James found some matches and built a little fire under a fifty gallon gasoline tank in the yard of his home at 2819 Galilee street, Zion. The ensuing explosion blew the tank 200 feet in the air and singed the hair and eyebrows of Master Jimmy.

DORCHESTER, England, June 17.—(AP)—A wisp of hair clipped from the head of Lord Nelson, Britain's famed sea dog, was sold at auction here today for $55.

The lock was among heirlooms of the family of Masterman Thomas Hardy, Nelson's flag captain. It was clipped from Nelson's head by his beloved Lady Emma Hamilton, the wife of a one time British ambassador to Naples who caused Nelson and his wife to separate.

The prayer Nelson composed within sight of the French and Spanish fleets before the battle at Trafalgar in 1805 was auctioned for $45.25. Hardy's nightshirt was knocked down for $8.

2 SOVIET U-BOATS COLLIDE IN DIVE PRACTICE; 64 DIE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TALLINN, Estonia, June 17.—Reports of the loss of two soviet Russian submarines which sank with all hands following a collision 15 miles off Kronstadt, have been confirmed by fishermen of Narwa, Estonia. They said they watched salvage operations. The submarines were of the latest type, and each carried a crew of 32. The 850 ton submarines were making practice dives in Kronstadt bay at the time of the accident.

Gets His Dog Back; Seeks Cure for Absentmindedness

Belvidere, Ill., June 17.—[Special.]—Ald. Clarence Darmon's dog has been found. Mr. Darmon put it in the trunk of his car when he drove away from a nearby farm and forgot about it. The family advertised and searched high and low for the animal. Two days later Darmon took the car to a garage and mechanics found the dog nearly dead in the trunk. It is recovering.

Crown Prince of Sweden Off for U. S. Fete

STOCKHOLM, June 17.—(AP)—Crown Prince Gustav Adolf and Crown Princess Louise of Sweden sailed today for Wilmington, Del. They were accompanied by other members of the official Swedish and Finnish delegations to the tercentenary celebration of the founding of New Sweden in America.

The royal couple and the others embarked on the liner Kungsholm at Gothenburg after the prince officiated at the opening of a Swedish naval exposition there during a one hour visit.

Follow Route of 300 Years Ago.

The prince and princess are going to the United States as personal representatives of King Gustav V., whose 80th birthday was celebrated yesterday. Gustav Adolf is 55 years old. He and his English born wife first visited the United States in 1926 on a world cruise. The crown princess is the former Lady Louise Mountbatten, great-granddaughter of Queen Victoria. She is Gustav Adolf's second wife.

In sailing from Gothenburg for Wilmington the delegations followed the route of two small sailing vessels which 300 years ago landed the first Swedish colonists in the Delaware river valley. The celebration will begin with the delegation's arrival at Wilmington on June 27.

[Parts of Delaware, Pennsylvania, and New Jersey were included in the area of original colonization which the colonists called New Sweden.]

Broadcasts to United States.

Gustav Adolf said he and his wife hoped to "see as many of Sweden's American sons and daughters as possible." The Swedish delegation numbered 50 and the Finnish delegation 10.

[Crown Prince Gustav Adolf and Crown Princess Louise will arrive in Chicago on July 14 for a two and a half day visit. With them will be Prince Bertil, 27 years old, the crown prince's bachelor son. Prince Bertil will pay an official visit to Rockford. From Chicago the royal party will go to Minneapolis.]

Before the Kungsholm sailed a military band accompanying the party struck up its music and Gustav Adolf made a speech in English and Swedish which was broadcast to the United States.

"I am very grateful for President Roosevelt's invitation," the prince said, "and my wife and myself look forward to the Delaware festivals with great expectations. We visited the United States 12 years ago, retaining pleasant reminiscences of this visit, and greet with pleasure the opportunity to renew the old and to form new acquaintances."

Nahant Buzzes for Wedding of John Roosevelt

Nahant, Mass., June 17.—[Special.]—With President Roosevelt's yacht at anchor in the harbor, this old New England town tonight was having a taste of what is to come tomorrow when kibitzers by the thousands will pour in to glimpse ceremonies attendant upon the marriage of the President's youngest son, John, and Anne Lindsay Clark.

Where wedding will take place.

Nahant's elderly police chief, Thomas H. Larkin, who is accustomed to command half a dozen men, was in charge of 200 Boston metropolitan police and special deputies tonight and wished to goodness the President's son had waited until next year, when the chief will have retired on pension.

It is estimated that 50,000 uninvited guests will crowd the 1,200 townsfolk and one another in the vicinity of historic Union church, where the wedding will be solemnized.

Watch Guests Go to Yacht.

Chief Larkin's edict that visitors would have to leave their cars on the mainland and walk two or three miles down the peninsula to the village is believed to have cut the uninvited attendance some. But the vanguard already gathering near the causeway tonight indicated the crush would be heavy.

Tomorrow's event, which will be the town's most momentous since the time thirty years ago when Theodore Roosevelt rode in on a bicycle, has kept the citizens up after curfew for three nights. And, despite their loss of sleep, they were up still later tonight to see the departure and return of the thirty guests who went out to the yacht Potomac to attend the dinner party given by President Roosevelt.

Roosevelt Clan Is Complete.

With his arrival this morning the gathering of the Roosevelt clan was complete. They came by train, plane, automobile, and boat. Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. and his bride of last year, the former Ethel du Pont, are here, as are Elliott Roosevelt and his pretty wife, Ruth, of Fort Worth, Tex.; the former Anna Roosevelt and her husband, John Boettiger of Seattle, and Mrs. Boettiger's two children by a previous marriage, Sistie and Buzzie Dall; James Roosevelt, and, last of all, Mrs. Roosevelt, wife of the President.

John Roosevelt and Miss Clark were aboard the Potomac waiting when the President's train arrived at Salem this morning and John dashed ashore to greet his father. The President left Washington last night im-

YELLOW RIVER MENACES 1,500 MORE VILLAGES

700,000 Homeless; Waters Rise.

SHANGHAI, June 18 [Saturday.]—(AP)—Muddy Yellow river waters, sweeping across the heart of densely populated Honan province, today threatened to engulf 1,500 more villages and hamlets.

More than 2,000 communities and countless farms already have been evacuated. Japanese army engineers estimated there are now 700,000 Chinese refugees from the flood.

Heavy rains continued and several additional widening streams were reported to be swirling southward from their normal beds, threatening to widen greatly the 500 square mile flood wrecked area.

Little Prospect of Relief.

With flood damage increasing and with little prospect of immediate relief, the homeless refugees faced dangers of starvation and death from cholera, typhoid, and smallpox, diseases which often spread rapidly in the wake of floods.

Japanese staf officers at Kaifeng said the task of stemming the flood appeared hopeless since about 90 per cent of the great Yellow river's water surged through quarter mile gaps and rushed southeastward from the Chengchow-Kaifeng region to Chowkiakow, 100 miles away.

The engineers pointed out that the Yellow river had not yet reached the usual summer peak and said there were growing possibilities that the flood may continue and possibly may increase until September.

Japs Contradict Selves.

John Earl Baker, head of the international Red Cross relief work in Shanghai, said "this is the worst thing that ever happened to China—the combination of war and flood."

Official Japanese spokesmen in Tokio and the Japanese press reported the flood as a great crime perpetrated by the Chinese government against its own people. Tokio newspapers, putting the deaths of Chinese as high as 300,000, charged that the Chinese broke the river dikes deliberately. Reports in Tokio estimated that 6,000 Japanese troops had been drowned or are missing.

Death estimates by Japanese officers on the scene contradicted the Tokio reports. Japanese on the scene at first estimated there were 150,000 deaths. Today they scaled this down to 50,000 or less.

Area Cleared of Troops.

Chinese officials at Hankow, provincial capital, said the area directly east of the north-south Peking-Hankow railway had been entirely cleared of Japanese troops, who were forced to retreat before the flood waters.

Chinese military reports indicated also that Japanese forces marching across Anwhei province toward the railway were forced to fall back, leaving the Japanese gunboat and destroyer armada in the Yangtze river, south of the flood area, the only active arm of the widely heralded land-and-sea drive up the Yangtze to Hankow.

Japanese warships shelled the Yangtze shores upstream from Anking where they were maintaining a foothold despite the reported failure of the westward drive of the land forces.

JAPS SEEK TO END ROWS

BY KIMPEI SHEBA.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, June 17.—Gen. Kazushige Ugaki, foreign minister, said today the great change taking place in world conditions may force Japan and other naval powers to reëxamine the naval limitation question. He said, however, that Japan continues to abide by its policy of nonmenace and nonaggression, and still maintains that every nation should have a navy powerful enough for defense but not for attack.

Japan does not feel menaced by any country at present, he pointed out in reviewing Japan's foreign relations. The foreign minister expressed satisfaction particularly over Japan's ties with the United States.

"Relations with U. S. Cordial."

"Today our relations with the United States are cordial," he said. "The American people seem to have been stirred following the outbreak of hostilities in China, but I am convinced that when they come to understand correctly the reasons for Japan's actions the tension will be decreased."

Ugaki asserted that Japan wants to be friendly with all countries, even soviet Russia, and said the nation will strive to remove the causes of friction between Japan and other powers, particularly over questions arising in China.

Ugaki said he "believes in China for the Chinese people." It is not important, he said, whether the Chinese establish a central government or several regional governments so long as peace is restored and prosperity is promoted.

Finds Kellogg Pact Outmoded.

Holding that the Kellogg pact to outlaw war is outmoded, Ugaki said there was need of revising it to make it fit present conditions.

Fascism, he said, is not for Japan and the country never will be Fascist. He held that it is silly to conclude from Japan's close relations with Germany and Italy that Japan is Fascist.

"The parliamentary system is best suited to Japan," he said. "There is no reason to change it. The war mobilization bill is a temporary and tentative measure which will be enforced only in grave emergencies. It will be lifted as soon as conditions return to normal."

DANCING TROUPE WILL FLY 7,092 MILES TO BRAZIL

Ten girls from Chicago and Evanston, a troupe of Abbott dancers, will make entertainment history when they leave a week from today on a plane for Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. The trip, to be made in five stages, will be 7,092 miles, the longest flight ever made by a dancing troupe.

Yesterday the girls lined up in the city hall while Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health, gave them their third and last inoculation for typhoid fever. Tuesday, at a farewell dinner, Dr. Bundesen will also supply them with a tropical menu, designed to insure health and keep their figures trim.

CZECHS RELEASE RESERVES CALLED IN GERMAN CRISIS

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, June 17.—(AP)—Czechoslovak reserves called to the colors May 21, when Europe appeared on the brink of war over the Sudeten German minority problem, were discharged today.

[One class of reserves, numbering approximately 70,000 was called. This group, with technical forces and troops already in the border regions, gave Czechoslovakia an estimated 500,000 men under arms.]

Despite discharge of the reserves, the government will keep the army at its present strength. Conscripts scheduled to serve this year will be summoned at once and kept in service until Oct. 1, when officials hope a three year army service law, instead of the present two year requirement, will be passed.

Yellow River Flood Halts Drive in China

The turbulent waters of the Yellow river, which brought to an abrupt halt the Japanese advance on Chengchow from the east last week, continued today to rise and sweep southward across Honan province. Japanese officers reported that about 90 per cent of the Yellow river's water was surging through gaps in the dikes and flowing into smaller rivers to the south. The black area indicates the flooded district and the dark dotted area the possible new course of the Yellow river to the Yangtze.

26 Executed by Bolsheviks in the Far East in a Week

MOSCOW, June 17.—(AP)—Nine executions for espionage and wrecking in Blagoveschensk, on the Amur river, were reported today. This was the second case in the far east this week. On Tuesday seventeen persons were executed as members of a wrecking and espionage group in the Birobidjan Jewish autonomous republic.

DETECTIVE EXONERATED IN KILLING.

Justifiable homicide was the verdict returned by a coroner's jury yesterday in the death of Carl Moretti, 44 years old, 1020 North La Salle street, an ex-convict, who was shot to death last Tuesday night by a railroad detective after breaking into the freight house at 604 Wayman street.

Dr. G.E. Barnett, Economist, Is Found Fatally Wounded

Baltimore, Md., June 17.—(AP)—Dr. George E. Barnett, 65 years old, nationally known economist and professor of statistics at the Johns Hopkins university, was found fatally wounded in his apartment here today. A pistol lay nearby and he had a bullet wound in his temple. Dr. Barnett, a bachelor, had been suffering from a nervous ailment since he returned from a study of labor legislation in Australia last January, Sergt. Lawrence Stevens said.

SPANISH REBELS SMASH LOYALIST DEFENSE LINES

Advance on Coast, in Hills Toward Valencia.

HENDAYE, France.—[At the Spanish Frontier.]—June 17.—(AP)—Insurgent dispatches said tonight that Gen. Francisco Franco's eastern rebel armies had smashed Spanish government resistance along the Mijares river and resumed a general advance toward Valencia, 35 miles south.

Insurgents were said to have occupied for the second time the river town of Villarreal, which had been recaptured by the government in a counteroffensive.

[A dispatch from Madrid said loyalist troops, entrenched in the Villareal cemetery and stationed on rooftops and buildings, had resisted rebel attempts to capture the village.]

Insurgent dispatches asserted the short lived government counter offensive along the Mijares had failed to halt Franco's military steam roller. Previously government dispatches said their reënforced armies had struck back, driving insurgents to the north of the Mijares, and that more government reënforcements were moving up in numbers.

Cordoba Defense Weakened.

Col. Hipolito Menendez directed the men massed by the loyalists in their attempt to stem the rebel tide. He was promoted yesterday to command the government's eastern group of armies.

The concentration of forces in the east was said to have weakened the government defense in Cordoba province and to have impaired the effectiveness of the troops defending that suddenly active sector of southern Spain. Dispatches indicated that the insurgent drive in the Penarroya sector there, now three days old, was progressing steadily.

[A Madrid dispatch reported 35 persons were killed and 75 injured in insurgent air raids on Valencia and Alicante. Alicante is 75 miles south of Valencia.]

"Lost" Division Repatriated.

TOULOUSE, France, June 17.—(AP)—Six special trains rolled out of the French Pyrenees village of Arreau this morning, bearing thousands of Spanish government militiamen eastward for repatriation back of the Catalan line. They were part of the "lost" 43d division which took refuge in France yesterday after insurgent forces closed in on the division's mountain strongholds along the Bielsa valley.

Rockford, Ill., June 17.—[Special.]—F. J. Collins, 55 years old, leaped to safety from a second floor window today when a gasoline blast enveloped his Collins Steel Specialty company plant at 836-40 Elm street. He was severely burned but not injured by his leap.

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

HONGKONG, June 18 [Saturday].—Japanese bombers are likely soon to be met by stiff aerial resistance over Canton and other Kwangtung province cities. China's air force, which recently was greatly depleted, again is building up rapidly. Three weeks ago China did not have more than seventy-five serviceable warplanes, about sixty pursuit planes and fifteen bombers. Within the last ten days there have arrived at Hankow from Russia at least forty-five pursuit planes and some fifteen heavy bombers. Thirty bomber-pursuit planes also arrived from France via Yunnan, while in Hongkong about twenty-five planes of American make have been unloaded.

C.I.O. BREAKS UP MEETING OF 'BACK TO WORK' UNION

Lake county deputy sherifs and police last night averted a near riot when C. I. O. strikers crowded into a mass meeting in Waugegan called by members of the newly formed chapter of the Iron Workers Protective association at the Chicago Hardware Foundry company of North Chicago where C. I. O. leaders called a strike last June 6.

As spokesmen for the independent union announced that on next Monday members would return to their jobs at the plant despite C. I. O. pickets, Oakley Mills, C. I. O. leader, said picket lines would be doubled to prevent any back to work movement. After independent union leaders were heckled and unable to speak, they yielded the meeting to the C. I. O. sympathizers who outnumbered them.

Five hundred employés were thrown out of their jobs at the foundry when C. I. O. leaders called a strike over a wage dispute. Company officials announced a 10 per cent cut for workers in order to continue summer operations but C. I. O. leaders refused to accept the economy cut.

BAKER ELECTED PRESIDENT OF PRINTERS' UNION

Indianapolis, Ind., June 17.—(AP)—The board of electors of the International Typographical union tonight announced Claude M. Baker of San Francisco had defeated Charles P. Howard of Chicago, incumbent, for international president of the union by almost 14,000 votes.

Howard is secretary of John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization, while Baker has retained a close connection with the American Federation of Labor, with which the I. T. U. is affiliated. Howard has been president since 1926. Baker's group elected five of the seven officers, two of the three trustees of the Union Printers' home at Colorado Springs, Colo., and all five delegates to the A. F. of L.

Francis G. Barrett of New York was elected first vice president and Woodruff Randolph of Chicago was re-elected secretary-treasurer. The second vice presidency went to John J. Conley of Fort Worth, Tex.

CHOLERA PLAGUE SPREADS IN INDIA; THOUSANDS DIE

Religious Rites Balk Work of Health Officers.

LUCKNOW, India, June 17.—(AP)—A wave of cholera, one of the most dangerous epidemic diseases, swept over increasingly large areas of India today while modern medicine and sanitation fought against ancient religious practices mixed with superstition.

Thousands died as the dread disease was spread by natives ceremoniously carrying out religious rites which are centuries old. Health authorities, acting under British leadership, thus were greatly handicapped in their efforts to check the epidemic.

An estimated 16,500 persons already have died in the United Provinces during the scourge, now seven weeks old, which is said to have reached Afghanistan, beyond the northwest frontier, as well as into India's Central Provinces.

Holy River Is Polluted.

Overworked doctors performed mass inoculations at Hardwar, famous town of Hindu pilgrimages on the banks of the sacred Ganges river. Thousands of fervid but cholera infected pilgrims at the famed Kumbh-mela religious ceremony at Hardwar were said to have contaminated the well water and feast foods.

More than 2,000,000 orthodox Hindus, seeking to wash away their sins, had plunged into the holy river, badly polluting it. The water is used for drinking.

Dump Bodies Into Water.

Under an old Hindu custom bodies of cholera, snakebite, and smallpox victims must be dumped into water. Water is the greatest single carrier of the disease.

CHAUFFEUR DIES IN AUTO.

GERMANY CALLS OUT AUSTRIAN YOUTH TO BEGIN ARMY SERVICE

BERLIN, June 17.—(AP)—A decree for the coördination of the former Austrian army with that of Germany and an order calling the Austrian men born in 1917 to report between next Aug. 16 and Sept. 10 for military service were announced today in the official gazette.

The decree makes Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering's national defense laws of May, 1935, operative for the new Austrian province. These ordered all male Germans between 18 and 45 years to serve a year in the army, made a year of labor service pre-requisite to military service and provided that Germans living abroad must serve their terms in Germany.

Minnie the Mascot Slides Down Pole Into the News

If Minnie II., kitten mascot of Fire Engine company 13, 209 North Dearborn street, gets much smarter they may take her along to help fight some of the smaller fires. Minnie was born in the station about five months ago and already has mastered the trick of sliding down the brass pole from the second floor, while her mother, Minnie I., and two younger sisters look on with envy. Minnie's teacher is James M. Kirkley, 2818 Sheridan road, an admirer of both Minnie and the firemen.

Bird in the Hand Is Worth Bus Ride for Whole Family

Roanoke, Va., June 17.—Policeman J. P. Cralle said he saw a passenger get off a bus, tie his weekly pass to a homing pigeon, and send it home for use by the rest of the family.

Tomorrow's DAD'S DAY. So today, come in and ask us to wrap up a big two pound box of Mrs. Snyder's for him. Put it at the head of the table tomorrow and write this on the box: "Hands OFF, Family! This is for the Grandest Dad in the World—All of it!" He'd love it!

A JAIL BREAKING BURGLAR BRAGS IN ANOTHER CELL

That wise-cracking safe cracker, Theodore Carty, who called the Waukegan city jail a "cracker box" and sawed his way out to prove it, was in another jail yesterday—this time in Montgomery City, Mo. With him was his stooge, William Lane, who aided him in his escape from the Waukegan jail a week ago.

William Lane.

Both were arrested by state police in Springfield, Mo., early yesterday after they had been carrying out a series of daily burglaries in Montgomery City and nearby towns. In an effort to make himself bald and escape identification, Carty had removed some of his hair with a depilatory. In their automobile, the same in which Carty fled from Waukegan, were several stolen radios, tires, cans of gasoline, and automobile accessories.

Tells How He Got Out.

Carty's first words when recognized, according to Sergt. Harve Sayers of the state force were: "I'm the guy that made good my word, y'know. I mean I'm the guy that said that cracker box in Waukegan was a joke—and I proved it."

Then he revealed that Lane had smuggled a hacksaw to him during a visit the night before he escaped. "At midnight I began to saw the bars," Carty boasted, "and in two hours I had two off. I tried to squeeze through, but it was too narrow." Carty weighs nearly 200 pounds.

"In another hour or so, I sawed away the other bar, then I wriggled out," Carty added. "I jumped on a nearby garage roof and then slid down the rain pipe. Then I jumped into our car and away we went."

Early this week, Carty and Lane arrived in Montgomery City without funds, and set about getting some. They broke into garages, stole money from the railroad depot safe, and looted a lumber yard office. They replaced two of their automobile's flat tires with a pair from their loot. When they drove into Springfield, Mo., yesterday morning, State Policemen N. O. Dosing and S. S. Graham arrested them on suspicion. A description of the burglars' car had been broadcast to the state police by Montgomery City officers.

Locked in Foolproof Cells.

Sherif Joe Covington of Montgomery county took over custody of the robbers late yesterday and put them in a couple of foolproof cells in the Montgomery City jail. He said they will be tried on the burglary charges.

Meanwhile Evanston police were holding Joseph Abruzzo, 16, of 1821 Crain street, Evanston, who said he accompanied Lane and Mrs. Carty on their visit to the jail the night before the escape. While held for questioning in the Zion city jail several days ago young Abruzzo also attempted to escape by prying off a lock on his cell. Mrs. Carty, who lives at 1138 Wesley avenue, Evanston, is being sought for questioning.

Carty has passed fourteen of his thirty-two years in the Pontiac reformatory and San Quentin prison. Lane, who is 22 years old and lives at 1528 Sherman avenue, Evanston, served six months in the Bridewell in 1936 for stealing a radio from a north side store.

Tells of Hijacking

Mrs. Beulah Lenox, 29 years old, whose husband, Earl, an ex-convict, accidentally shot himself to death Monday night while tying up two robbery victims, was arrested in her home at 104 West Oak street yesterday.

Questioned by Detective Bernard Kennedy of the cartage detail, she admitted having accompanied her husband and another couple, Ray and Claribel Mandelkow, in the hijacking of a truck on April 24. "I didn't want to go on the job, but Earl made me," she said. "Mrs. Mandelkow and I sat in the car a block away while the men robbed the truck." She admitted her husband gave her $103 as her share of the robbery proceeds, the Mandelkows taking $610.

Mrs. Lenox's two children, Edward, 11 years old, and Carol, 9, are being cared for by neighbors. Detective Kennedy said she probably will be taken before the grand jury in a few days. The Mandelkows are to be arraigned before Judge Charles S. Dougherty on robbery charges on June 25.

SEVEN VICTIMS IDENTIFY DAWN BANDIT'S BODY

Seven holdup victims yesterday identified the body of Harold Keen, the dawn bandit who was slain Thursday night, as that of the man who had robbed them. The dawn bandit, so-called because he preyed upon gasoline stations and lunch stands in the early morning hours, had committed twenty-eight robberies since May 29.

Information given by his father, Policeman Ernest L. Keen of the stolen automobile detail, and his wife, Angeline, 19 years old and an expectant mother, led police to young Keen's temporary hideout at 12516 Wallace street. For several days he had terrorized the family of a school chum who lives there, forcing them to give him haven. When Keen drew a gun against three detectives they shot him down.

The inquest will be held at 10 a. m. today at the county morgue.

PREDICTS DOOM LIES IN WAKE OF COMMUNISM

Communism dooms the state adopting it because to succeed it must destroy family life, Judge Edward B. Casey of the Municipal court said last night. He spoke before a father and son banquet of Troop 832, Boy Scouts of America, in St. Demetrios Greek Orthodox church at 2721 Winona avenue. The organization is said to be the only all Greek troop in this country.

"Communism violates the law of nature which causes parents to protect their children to the exclusion of the welfare of others," Judge Casey said. "The net result of communism in Russia has been that another gang of tyrants, headed by bloody Stalin, have 160 million people under their thumbs."

QUICK SHOOTING GANG HOLDS PAIR CAPTIVE 7 HOURS

Wrecks Pursuer's Auto with Hail of Shots.

Rice Lake, Wis., June 17.—[Special.]—A wide hunt was made in the heavily wooded area of northern Wisconsin tonight for three quick shooting gunmen who held a man and woman prisoners all night and wrecked with bullets the automobile of a county officer who pursued them.

The gunmen were first sighted early last evening as they sped through Cameron, five miles east of here. County Trafic Officer L. E. Taylor gave chase. The fleeing men promptly opened fire on Taylor's car.

Bullet Punctures Radiator.

The officer was gaining on them when a bullet punctured the radiator of his automobile and stalled the car.

The gunmen's next known location was on a road five miles east of Cameron at 10:30 last night. Without warning they opened fire on the automobile in which Bert Hines, middle-aged widower, and Miss Esther Peterson, both of Cumberland, were riding.

One of the bullets struck a tire. Hines immediately stopped the car and he and Miss Peterson waited with raised hands until the gunmen drew alongside. They forced Hines to drive down a side road.

Forced to Surrender Car.

About half a mile off the main road the highwaymen halted Hines and made him and Miss Peterson get out of their car.

The gunmen repaired the tire on Hines' car and then transferred from their car a quantity of goods.

For nearly seven hours, until 5:30 this morning, the gunmen kept Hines and Miss Peterson prisoners. They were not harmed, but they were kept covered with weapons. Finally the three men climbed into Hines' car and drove away. After they had left, Hines and Miss Peterson entered the car the gunmen left and drove to a tavern, where they notified authorities.

WHEATON POLICE SEIZE EX-CONVICT AFTER ROBBERY

An ex-convict who knocked down the woman manager of the Western Union office at 119 North Hale street in Wheaton and took 98 blank American Express company money orders was captured by a squad of Wheaton police yesterday within ten minutes after he had committed the crime.

When the ex-convict, Eldon Voight of Glen Ellyn, entered the office and ordered her to turn over any money in the place, Mrs. Frank Le Baron noticed that he was unarmed. She screamed. He knocked her down with his fist, grabbed the blank money orders and fled.

The Wheaton police squad heard the screams and pursued Voight, seizing him a block away. Voight said he had served nine months in the Wisconsin state prison for robbery and that he is on probation on a federal charge of altering checks.

4 Held to Federal Grand Jury After Alcohol Raid

Mrs. Rose Chlibek, her daughter, Josephine, 18 years old; her son, Frank, 19, and her brother-in-law, Frank Stahulak, were held to the federal grand jury in bonds of $3,500 each by United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker yesterday on charges of violating the internal revenue law. The four were arrested last Saturday by agents of the alcohol tax unit who seized a 700 gallon recooker and 35 gallons of alcohol in their home at 4338 South Marshfield avenue.

M'KINLEY CHOSEN CHIEF JUSTICE OF CRIMINAL COURT

Judge Michael L. McKinley of the Superior court yesterday was elected chief justice of the Criminal court for the year beginning next Sept. 5. Judges of the Superior and Circuit courts met to make assignments of their membership to courts and branches, following which those named to the Criminal court elected Judge McKinley.

Superior court judges named to the Criminal court besides McKinley were William J. Lindsay, Walter T. Stanton, and James F. Fardy. From Circuit court to Criminal benches will go Judges Joseph Burke, George Fred Rush, and Robert Jerome Dunne.

Brothers Heads Circuit Court.

The Circuit court elected Judge William V. Brothers chief justice, and Judge Grover C. Niemeyer was reëlected chief justice of the Superior court. To the divorce branch the Superior court assigned Judge Robert C. O'Connell. The Circuit judges again assigned Judge Philip J. Finnegan.

Chancery assignments from the Superior court were drawn by Judges Charles A. Williams, who will head the division for his court, John J. Lupe and Donald S. McKinlay. To the chancery branch of the Circuit court will go Judges Cornelius J. Harrington, who will head the division for his court; John Prystalski, Stanley H. Klarkowski, and William V. Brothers.

Named to Law Division.

To the law division the Superior court named Judges Peter H. Schwaba, who will head it; Rudolph Desort, E. I. Frankhauser, Martin M. Gridley, John C. Lewe, John P. McGoorty, Oscar F. Nelson, Grover C. Niemeyer, Joseph Sabath, and Francis B. Allegretti.

The Circuit court named to the law division Judges John R. Caverly, who will be its head; Benjamin P. Epstein, Walter La Buy, Denis J. Normoyle, Thomas J. Lynch, Michael Feinberg, Harry M. Fisher, and Daniel P. Trude.

Frank H. Bicek of the Circuit court was renamed by his associates to the Juvenile branch.

U. S. GETS READY FOR EXECUTIONS OF FIVE KILLERS

Bank Robbery Slayer in Michigan to Be First.

Washington, D. C., June 17.—(AP)—The department of justice, which has not had an execution since Arthur Gooch was hanged in Oklahoma on June 19, 1936, for the kidnaping of two police officers, arranged today to put five federal prisoners to death.

Anthony Chebatoris is scheduled to be the first to die. He is under sentence to be hanged July 8 at the federal detention farm at Milan, Mich., for a slaying in connection with a Michigan bank robbery.

The other four awaiting execution for committing federal crimes are James R. Dalhover, diminutive trigger man for the former Brady gang, who will be put to death at the Indiana state prison; John H. Seadlund, who kidnaped and killed Charles S. Ross, a Chicago greeting card manufacturer, last October; Glen Applegate and Robert J. Suhay, convicted of killing Special Agent Wimberly W. Baker at Topeka, Kas., on April 17.

Under a law passed last year, federal prisoners must be executed by whatever method is prescribed by the laws of the state within which sentence was imposed.

DIES IN BLAZING AUTO; LEAVES NOTE TELLING PLAN FOR 2 MURDERS

Ionia, Mich., June 17.—(AP)—Coroner Bruce Sales of Belding tonight ruled as suicide the death of Dr. Leon E. Duval, 46 years old, assistant medical superintendent of the Ionia State Hospital for the Criminal Insane, whose charred body was found in his blazing automobile near here today.

A few feet from the flaming car was found the following note: "This is a deliberate act of suicide, chosen as the alternative to two murders which I had planned to commit. The intended victims will know whom I mean."

SLAYER OF WIFE AND HER FRIEND FREED ON BOND

CRIMINAL COURT.

Edward Lhotka, rape, sentenced to 2 years in the penitentiary; Samuel Cohen, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in the penitentiary; Charles Cooper, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in the penitentiary by Judge Francis B. Allegretti.

Policeman John F. Lewe of the Burnside station, who has been in custody since June 7, when he shot and killed his wife and her friend, Harry O. Johnson, at Randolph street and Wabash avenue, was freed on a $20,000 real estate bond yesterday by Chief Justice Cornelius J. Harrington of the Criminal court. Hearing in the case was continued to June 30, pending the outcome of the inquest on June 29.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 17.—[Special.]—Representative John Taber [R., N. Y.], ranking minority member of the house appropriations committee, today submitted tables purporting to show that the third session of the seventy-fifth congress, which adjourned last night, appropriated a total of $13,371,001,049, by far the highest in the peacetime history of the country.

Mr. Taber also arrived at a figure of $10,252,892,557 for the first session [1937], making a total of $23,623,893,606 for the congress. There were no appropriations in the second session.

He reached these totals by including reappropriations of unexpended balances, miscellaneous specific appropriations, and appropriations for various public acts, which he estimated at $100,000,000.

Eleven Billion in New Funds.

Official figures of the house appropriations committee show actual, new money appropriations from the treasury of $11,292,886,862 for the session just closed. Official figures of the senate appropriations committee give a total of $9,389,000,000 for 1937, making a total for the seventy-fifth congress of $20,681,886,862.

Appropriations for the last session, as compiled by the house committee, were:

Agriculture	$ 745,790,279
District of Columbia	47,255,155
Independent offices	1,423,098,240
Interior	129,678,460
Legislative	21,663,783
Navy	546,866,494
State, justice, commerce, and labor	130,589,795
Treasury and postoffice	1,403,683,526
War department:
Military	459,401,254
Civil	196,962,867
Deficiencies:
First	28,089,009
Relief	250,000,000
Second	275,403,000
Relief and pump priming	2,915,405,000
Permanents and indefinites, [includes services of public debt, trust funds, etc.]	2,719,000,000
Total	$11,292,886,862

Items Held Chargeable.

Representative Taber said that reappropriations were properly chargeable because in every case where he included them they came out of old appropriations that otherwise would have expired. He predicted a deficit of from 7 to 8 billion dollars for the fiscal year beginning July 1 and a national debt of approximately 45 billion dollars at the close of the fiscal year, June 30, 1939.

"Of the $13,371,001,049 in appropriations for this session approximately $600,000,000 will have been spent by next July 1," said Mr. Taber. "Approximately $1,500,000,000 will not be spent until after July 1, 1939, but we are already promised deficiencies amounting to $1,200,000,000 for the fiscal year 1939 which will have to be made in the next congress.

"This means probable expenditures in the fiscal year 1939, which begins next July 1, of approximately $13,000,000,000 in addition to about $500,000,000 of carry over appropriations which will be drawn out of the treasury in 1939. In addition to that, the RFC is in a position to lend $1,500,000,000 so that an estimate of $13,500,000,000 as the government's expenditure in the year 1939 is conservative.

Points to Revenue.

"As against that, with the present trend of the Roosevelt depression, we can expect $4,500,000,000 of government revenues, in addition to postal revenues of approximately $900,000,000.

"It needs no statement by me to show the alarming character of this picture of our government finances.

"Pump priming on a colossal scale in the last five years has completely demoralized the economic setup of America. It has destroyed the social security of our people. It has destroyed their jobs forever, and now we have been forced by the administration into another pump priming proposition, designed to prevent industrial recovery and to completely destroy private business and private ownership of our farms and to completely regiment and enslave the people."

Identify Body of Leap Victim Killed in Loop

The body of an elderly man found early Thursday on a setback of the 27th floor of the 1 North La Salle street building was identified early today as that of Charles L. McDowell, 75 years old of 411 South Wabash avenue, a real estate salesman. Police said he apparently had plunged from another setback on the 37th floor.

Divorced by Mate

MRS. HELEN COLTON.

Ray Colton of the Webster hotel, employed by the United Air Lines, was granted a divorce yesterday by Judge Charles A. Williams from Helen L. Colton, an aviatrix, who is now living in Los Angeles, Cal. Colton is a former weather flyer.

The couple were married in September of 1929 and separated April 15, 1936. There are no children, and no alimony was asked. The decree was granted on grounds of desertion after Attorney Charles C. Cooley said Colton had repeatedly asked his wife to return after she went west on a stunt flight, but she had refused.

ADMITS CASHING BOGUS CHECKS.

William Cashman, who said he was a former city policeman, confessed at the Chicago Lawn police station last night he had cashed twenty-five bogus checks for $300 in taverns in the last year.

cers of which have been starving for orders.

Further relief to business, according to the administration, will come from huge federal outlays for surpluses.

SPENDING.
2,800,000 WPA workers for 8 months	$1,425,000,000
Aid for destitute farmers	75,000,000
Increase in farm subsidy	212,000,000
NYA school program	75,000,000
Maintaining CCC at present strength	50,000,000
PWA grants	450,000,000
Highway spending	100,000,000
Increased flood control spending	37,000,000
Federal buildings	25,000,000
Spending total	$2,449,000,000
LOANS.
RFC loans to business	$1,500,000,000
Loans to local governments for PWA projects	550,000,000
Slum clearance	300,000,000
Rural Electrification administration	100,000,000
Lending total	$2,450,000,000
Total for both spending and lending	$4,899,000,000

If the proposed WPA program were to be continued for a full year instead of eight months, the $2,449,000,000 under the spending program would be increased to approximately 3 billion dollars.

GOV. LEHMAN LASHES AT WIRE SNOOPING AS WEAPON OF DICTATOR

New York, June 17.—[Special.]—Gov. Herbert H. Lehman today called espionage, wire tapping, and search and seizure "the most vicious weapons that dictatorship invokes against the individual rights of its citizens." He addressed the seventeenth annual state convention of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War at the Westchester county center in White Plains.

"In the last two days we have seen a frightening example of the possible growth of the evil of wire tapping and of what 'can happen here,'" said the governor, referring to the last minute effort in congress to pass a bill which would permit wire tapping by federal agents upon specific approval of the head of the department employing the wire tapper.

"I am particularly concerned with the danger of wire tapping," said Gov. Lehman. "Today, no one is safe from the menace of wire tapping. It has caused people to be afraid of discussing their most intimate personal problems."

Pythians Award Veteran's Medal to Ex-Sen. Deneen

Former United States Senator Charles S. Deneen was presented with a Pythian veteran's jewel last night in recognition of his half century's membership in the Knights of Pythias. The ceremony took place at a meeting of Englewood lodge, No. 653, of the order at 6455 South Marshfield avenue.

INDIANS WEARY OF CIVILIZATION; WANT TO MOVE

Washington, D. C., June 17.—(AP)—A group of homesick Oklahoma Indians asked the federal government today to help them to run away from civilization. They explained they were tired of trying to get along in a white man's world and wanted to return to the simple ways of their ancestors.

They proposed to do this by moving to some secluded spot, abounding in game and fish and forests. Jack Gouge, a Creek Indian from Hanna, Okla., and the leader of the delegation, told John Collier, Indian commissioner, about 4,000 Indians were prepared to join the migration.

Collier said he was entirely sympathetic, but the matter was one for congress. He explained to Gouge that there was no such land available on present reservations.

JOHN CASE QUITS JOB AS MANAGER OF DAIRY CO-OP

John Case, general manager of the Pure Milk association for more than two years, left the organization yesterday to operate his 630 acre dairy and beef cattle farm near Naperville, Ill. This was announced by G. E. Eckhoff of Kankakee, president of the association.

Case had been a member of the organization since it was established about 13 years ago as coöperatove bargaining agent for dairymen in the Chicago milk producing territory. He was one of the nine charter members, and president of the association for two years, having been succeeded as head of the organization by Eckhoff about a year ago.

Eckhoff said that a committee of dairy farmers was studying a choice for a new general manager.

CONGRESS VOTES MANY INQUIRIES DURING SESSION

Special Groups Named as Investigators.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 17.—[Special.]—A summer rash of investigations, with appropriations totaling almost a million dollars, was left behind by the third session of the 75th congress when it adjourned last night.

First to get out a statement on its activities today was the senate committee on campaign expenditures which also is directed to investigate the use of any funds, appropriated by congress, for the purpose of influencing votes in any primary, convention, or election at which a senatorial candidate is to be nominated or elected during 1938.

The statement issued by Senator Morris Sheppard [D., Tex.], chairman of the committee, gave warning that "all governmental agencies must keep clear of all primary and election campaigns—must keep their hands off."

The authorization of the Sheppard committee to investigate the use of federal appropriations to influence votes was the result of senatorial demands to prohibit by statute the juggling of relief projects and expenditures to reward candidates who voted right and punish those who defied President Roosevelt's demands.

Hopkins Starts Protests.

The Roosevelt administration was condemned by half a dozen Democratic senators for playing politics with human misery as a result of a statement by WPA Administrator Harry L. Hopkins indorsing Representative Otha D. Wearin [D., Ia.] in his unsuccessful primary campaign against Senator Guy M. Gillette. Administration leaders opposed and succeeded in defeating by close margins amendments by Senator Carl A. Hatch [D., N. M.] and Warren R. Austin [R., Vt.] to prevent the use of the $3,723,000,000 relief and pump priming appropriation for political purposes.

A majority of the senators appointed by Vice President John N. Garner to the Sheppard committee, however, voted for the Hatch and Austin amendments. Three members, Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney [D., Wyo.], Senator David I. Walsh [D., Mass.], and Senator Wallace White [R., Me.] voted for the Hatch and Austin amendments. Senators Pat Harrison [D., Miss.] voted against both amendments but voted to reconsider the Hatch amendment. The fifth member, Chairman Sheppard, voted against both amendments.

Monopoly Inquiry Well Financed.

The most spectacular investigation is expected to be the joint congressional and executive study of monopolies, which has $500,000 to spend, $100,000 for the use of committee itself and $400,000 subject to allocation by President Roosevelt among departments and administrative agencies. The congressional slate was completed today when Speaker William B. Bankhead appointed Representative Hatton W. Sumners [D., Tex.], chairman of the judiciary committee; Representative Edward C. Eicher [D., Ia.], and Representative B. Carroll Reece [R., Tenn.].

Vice President Garner had appointed Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney [D., Wyo.], Senator William H. King [D., Utah], and Senator William E. Borah [R., Idaho]. Republicans have expressed a fear that the monoply investigation would be turned into a witch hunting expedition against corporations whose officers contributed to the Republican national committee, but the makeup of the congressional half of the joint committee would not indicate any predisposition to devil chasing.

Fear Administration Supporters.

With the Republican Mr. Reece and the conservative Mr. Sumners, giving the house group an anti-administration majority, and with the senate group containing not a single consistent administration supporter, the witch burning, if any, will have to be done by the executive members of the joint committee. And they could be stalemated by the congressional group.

The department of justice is expected to be represented by Thurman Arnold, the Roosevelt trust buster; the department of labor by Isador Lubin, commissioner of labor statistics; the department of commerce by Richard Patterson, a new appointee; the treasury department by Herman Oliphant, general counsel and a fiscal brain truster; the securities and exchange commission by Jerome Frank, another brain truster, and the federal trade commission by a representative whose identity is not yet known.

The second largest investigation concerns the half billion dollar social-istic experiment in the Tennessee valley. A joint 10 man congressional committee, headed by Senator Vic Donahey [D., Ohio], has $100,000 at his disposal for the purpose of investigating all phases of the administration of the TVA, including the charges of dishonesty and malfeasance, made against Directors David E. Lilienthal and Harcourt A. Morgan by former Chairman Arthur E. Morgan.

The other investigations are of the usual character resulting from the instinctive desire of legislators to promote or harass particular groups or interests and to make the most of the publicity opportunities thereby afforded.

Senator Robert M. La Follette [Rad., Wis.] was given another $60,000 for his "civil liberties" committee, which has been used to harass employers proscribed by John L. Lewis' C. I. O.

Representative Martin Dies [D., Tex.] is chairman of a house committee with an appropriation of $25,000, to investigate un-American activities.

Senator Josiah W. Bailey [D., N. C.] is chairman of a senate commerce subcommittee, with an appropriation of $25,000, to investigate costs and prices of the principal commodities of commerce.

Profit Sharing Inquiry.

The senate finance committee, under a resolution by Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg [R., Mich.], has an appropriation of $30,000 for the purpose of making a study of plans under which business establishments share their profits with their employés.

Senator James P. Pope [D., Idaho] is chairman of a joint congressional committee with an appropriation of $10,000 for the purpose of investigating the supply and uses of phosphates. They are used in the making of fertilizers, soft drinks, and incendiary bombs.

In Tax Dispute

MADGE EVANS.

Los Angeles, Cal., June 17.—[Special.]—Screen Actress Madge Evans sought to prove to the federal board of tax appeals today that wigs, special photographs, and entertainment are necessary to her profession and deductable from her taxable income.

The government claims a tax deficiency in 1934 of $2,237, which includes such things as wardrobe, $3,096; makeup and wigs, $583; special photographs, $1,200, and entertainment, $338.

Another deduction was $459 for removal of tonsils. She said it improved her speaking voice.

G. O. P. CONGRESS LEADERS ASSAIL SESSION RECORD

Charge Failure to Aid Business Recovery.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 17.—[Special.]—In a joint statement Senator Charles L. McNary of Oregon, Republican leader of the senate, and Representative Bertrand H. Snell, Republican leader of the house, denounced the Democrats for shutting down congress without attacking the fundamental causes of the paralysis of business.

"With the nation in the throes of a severe economic crisis which daily grows worse," said the two Republican leaders, "the New Deal congress, by its adjournment at this time, has abandoned its obligation to the American people."

Outline G. O. P. Program.

Asserting that "throughout this congress the Republicans have fought with one objective in mind—namely: The elimination of such New Deal policies as have strangled business, discouraged private investment, and thus decreased opportunities for employment," Messrs. McNary and Snell outlined the Republican program and promised renewed efforts to achieve it in the next congress, in which Republicans, they predicted, would be more numerous.

This Republican program, as stated by the leaders, follows:

"We proposed and fought for the outright repeal of the repressive tax on undistributed corporate earnings. We proposed modification of the restrictive rates of the capital gains tax which has contributed to freezing the money markets.

"We proposed repeal of the dangerous discretionary authority which the President now has over the nation's monetary system—discretionary powers which keep the country in a state of jitters.

"We urged—incessantly—balancing of the federal budget through elimination of wasteful expenditures and through equitable taxation.

Relief on State Basis.

"We proposed that the administration of relief be lodged with the states, supported by adequate federal grants, thus bringing this activity closer to the people, avoiding waste and eliminating politics.

"We repeatedly sponsored measures to end the shameless perversion of the New Deal relief administration and funds to political purposes.

"We urged revision of the social security act, proposing elimination of the unnecessary reserve fund provisions and a decrease in the taxes on both employer and employé. This can be done without weakening the benefits under the act.

"We proposed amendment of the national labor relations act in order to end the present wasteful and disruptive discord between employer and employé and among labor organizations by clarifying the mutual obligations of worker and employer and the duties of both toward the public.

"We sought to limit government competition with private enterprise in order that business might be able to create jobs with some certainty as to the future.

Fought Rule of Burocracy.

"We fought at all times against proposals subjecting agriculture, labor and industry to the compulsory decrees of a federal burocracy.

"In brief, the Republicans of house and senate have fought to bring about a sound, lasting revival of American industry and business, believing this is the only means whereby farmers can find markets at fair prices for their crops, workers jobs at living wages, and consumers a better standard of living.

"This is the Republican program. We remain pledged to fight for its adoption. We shall continue that fight unremittingly when we return to Washington next January in greatly increased numbers."

Neglected Duty to Business.

It was the first duty of congress, said the Republican leaders, "to remain in Washington and adopt measures to alleviate the paralysis of business and halt the downward spiral of economic forces engulfing the country."

"We have so contended for many months, proposing specifically the steps which should be taken," they continued. "But the pleas and proposals of the house and the senate Republicans have been in vain. Their warnings of the dangers inherent in many New Deal policies have been ignored or ridiculed.

"It is with the keenest regret and aversion that we now witness a bitter fulfilment of the warnings we have issued. The planned Roosevelt recovery has, as we warned, become the Roosevelt depression."

LISTENING DEVICE IN SUITE, HONEYMOONERS CHARGE; ASK $75,000

Los Angeles, Cal., June 17.—(AP)—Charging a listening device had been placed in their honeymoon suite, Leonard G. Bisco, New York lawyer, and his bride, Loretta, today filed suit for $75,000 damages.

Defendants included the Vista del Arroyo hotel, Pasadena; D. R. Linnard, its manager; Sidney M. Wittner and Morris Talbot, New York lawyers, and J. W. Morin, Pasadena attorney.

Bisco previously charged the lawyers obtained advance information through the listening device regarding a million dollar suit in which he was taking a deposition. The newlyweds' damage suit charged invasion of their right of privacy.

ROOM TO BREATHE

By CALEB

ON THE night of July 10 a brilliant pencil point of light will search out and illuminate, one after another, the memorable and noteworthy points along Chicago's fabulous water front as a radio announcer describes them to a listening world.

Mile after mile of magnificent, sweeping lake front lined with parkways, broad boulevards and harbors. Chicago has a splendid heritage, but high among its list of great natural gifts are the blue waters of Lake Michigan stretching down the shore line for twenty-eight miles, and on beyond through adjacent communities.

To this great natural gift Chicago has had the rare good sense (and it is rare among cities) to add as complete and fine a development for the public good as skilled, far-sighted minds could plan. Many a city less wise has shut itself off irrevocably from a great natural water front.

Not long ago a boy and his father walked across the grassy expanse next to the lake, and the father said, "When I was your age the spot on which we are walking was way out in the lake—farther than I could swim." To which the boy replied:

"It's swell, isn't it? A fellow can really breathe out here."

Chicago is swell, and a fellow can really breathe here. Somehow the open spaces of the city's lake front have always seemed to influence its thinking. Eighty-two years ago the Chicago brand of thinking brought a young New England merchant here to try his fortune. Before and since that day, the same kind of thinking has brought many another man and woman here—to remain and make outstanding contributions to the community.

There is room to breathe in Chicago. From the practical standpoint that is the thing that makes the city such a pleasant place in which to live the year 'round. From another standpoint it's the mental quality that still brings worth-while men and women from near and far to cast their lots here.

We hope Chicago never shuts off either its priceless lake front or the open lanes of its thinking—thinking that gives men and women room in which to breathe and to achieve. The city is not without its problems—for growth and achievement beget problems. But so long as there is room to breathe, solutions for them will be found.

NAHANT BUZZES FOR WEDDING OF JOHN ROOSEVELT

President's Son Marries Anne Clark Today.

mediately after he was notified by telephone that congress had adjourned.

Reherse Wedding Ceremony.

During the afternoon a rehersal of tomorrow's wedding was held at Union church. James Roosevelt took the part of the bridegroom and Mrs. Elliott Roosevelt was the bride. A bed sheet served as her bridal train.

John and Anne [he calls her Annie] sat in the pew that will be occupied tomorrow by the President and Mrs. Roosevelt. As the ushers and bridesmaids marched and counter marched, John remarked that it looked awfully complicated.

The wedding party was in a jolly mood and there were many giggles as the rehersal proceeded. The only entirely serious person was Joan Clark, who is 10 years old and a sister of the bride. She was applauded frequently for the poise with which she led the procession as flower girl.

Dignitaries Will Attend.

The real bridal march will be made under the eyes of New England's social leaders, members of the cabinet and the diplomatic corps, and other high officials of the federal government. The ceremony—the Episcopal single ring ritual—will be performed by Bishop Henry Knox Sherrill and the Rev. Endicott Peabody, headmaster of Groton school, which was attended by the President and his sons.

After the ceremony the President and Mrs. Roosevelt will attend the wedding reception. Then the President will board his yacht for the trip back to Washington and Mrs. Roosecelt will leave by train.

DEFEAT UNION OFFICER ACCUSED AS COMMUNIST

Accused of being a communist, John MacDonald, Toronto, Ont., a member of the executive board of the Pattern Makers' League of North America, was defeated for reëlection yesterday by Howard Rose of Montreal. MacDonald denied the charge, which was made by George Q. Lynch, general president. Lynch and other officers were reëlected. The election marked the closing session of the league's annual convention in the Stevens hotel.

The convention formally expressed the view that no peace efforts between the American Federation of Labor, of which the league is an affiliate, and the Committee for Industrial Organization can be successful while one man [John L. Lewis, head of the C. I. O.] has arbitrary and dictatorial powers to veto decisions of negotiating committees.

300 POUNDS CHICKEN, 50 TURKEYS ORDERED FOR WEDDING PARTY

Nahant, Mass., June 17.—[Special.]—The following supplies have been purchased by James J. Scully, steward of the Nahant Tennis club, to feed the 500 guests expected at the reception after the wedding of John Roosevelt and Anne Lindsay Clark tomorrow afternoon:

14 bushels green peas.
90 pounds of ham.
50 twelve pound turkeys.
2 whole baby lambs for cold cuts.
12 whole tongues.
25 pounds potato chips.
300 boxes of strawberries.
70 dozen assorted cakes.
25 pounds of coffee.
50 pounds of lump sugar.
5 two gallon cans of cream.
25 pounds butter.
80 dozen rolls.

2 BOYS, EACH 13, TAKE AUTO FOR JOYRIDE; CAUGHT

Lowell Johnson and William Carlson, both 13 years old, saw Mrs. Marie Kelling leave her automobile unlocked in front of her home at 130 West 71st street last night, and decided on a joy-ride. A passing motorist obliged them with a push to get the car started. Lowell, who is a freshman at the Parker High school, was driving.

At Wentworth avenue, they stopped and bought three gallons of gasoline. But at 65th street and Stewart avenue, John De Jonge, 953 West 61st place, suspected something was wrong, halted the young motorists and took them to the Englewood station, where their parents found the boys. Lowell lives at 7049 Eggleston avenue, and William at 7042.

HEAVY VOTE CAST ON DE VALERA BID FOR NEW POWER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, June 17.—Ireland went to the polls today to decide whether to give Prime Minister Eamon de Valera a stronger hand in parliament with which to carry out his five year reconstruction program.

The prime minister hoped for at least two more seats in the dail eireann [lower house of parliament] to overcome the defeats which have marked recent efforts to pass reform bills.

214 Candidates Run.

Fine weather brought out a large vote which will be counted in the twenty-six counties tomorrow and Sunday. The voting was orderly. The election, with 214 candidates, was called after De Valera dissolved the dail on May 27 following defeat of a government civil service measure.

De Valera hinted that if a government majority were not returned in this election he would attempt to abolish the present system of voting and call another election. It was predicted there would be no landslide for either side. Many observers, however, expected the government to win enough seats to give it a working majority.

Two Parties Campaign.

The two principal parties, the government Fianna Fail and the opposition Fine Gael, headed by former President William T. Cosgrave, carried on active campaigns.

De Valera counted on his recent success in negotiating a new trade treaty with Great Britain to win support, while Cosgrave, seeking to prevent a clear majority for the government, charged the prime minister merely wanted a "subservient dail" to carry out orders.

LOGANSPORT WOMAN DIES.

Logansport, Ind., June 17.—[Special].—Mrs. Emma Hauss, 52 years old, mother of Fred A. Hauss, local manager of the Northern Indiana Service company, died today. Her husband, August and a daughter survive.

SLEEPING PORCHES CURE INSOMNIA OF ZOO WALRUS PUPS

For two weeks Director Edward H. Bean of the Chicago Zoölogical Park at Brookfield has been perturbed about a change in the disposition of his two walrus pups, Pussey and Ootah, said to be the first ever acquired by a zoo.

Playing in their private pool, they seemed to be lethargic. Thursday night Mr. Bean examined his pets and found their tender skins infested with hundreds of mosquitoes.

During the day the pups could clease their hides in the pool. It was at night that the mosquitos dined off Ootah and Pussey. Mr. Bean remedied the situation by placing two little screened porches on the rocks beside the pool. Then the pups sleep at night in peace and safety.

DENY MONTROSE DUMP IS STILL USED FOR REFUSE

Six ward superintendents appeared yesterday in the court of Judge Walter T. Stanton and four of them testified that they knew of no garbage being dumped in the abandoned brick yard known as the Montrose dump. An injunction against the city, prohibiting dumping in the area bounded by Irving Park road, Montrose avenue, California avenue and the river, was issued last March.

The ward bosses appeared at a hearing after witnesses for complaining property owners testified that they followed garbage wagons as late as last Tuesday and saw them pick up garbage and dump it there. They also complained of flies and rats. Judge Stanton ordered a survey by the health department of conditions at the dump and set another hearing for July 15.

HEART ATTACK IS FATAL.

COUNTY AWARDS CONTRACTS ON 28 PAVING PROJECTS

Contracts totaling $1,722,571, for twenty-eight paving projects, were awarded yesterday by the county board. The awards were $800,000 less than the county engineers' estimates, and $472,413 under the first bids which were rejected by the state highway commission.

Because the county will pay its share of the new construction from state gasoline tax funds, the state must approve the contracts. Daniel Ryan, chairman of the committee on roads and bridges, said he expected approval from the state and the federal public works administration which will provide 45 per cent of the cost of sixteen projects.

The board also approved the request of Maj. George A. Quinlan, superintendent of highways, that federal aid be sought for the county's road construction program for the next two years. The program calls for expenditure of about ten million dollars.

Wins $25,000 for Injuries in Fall from Coaster Ride

Joseph Castle, who was injured Aug. 27, 1934, when he fell from a coaster ride in Riverview park, won a $25,000 judgment yesterday in the court of Judge William Daily of Peoria, sitting in Chicago. In an earlier trial he had won $20,000 only to have the verdict thrown out and the case remanded for retrial by the Appellate court. Castle was thrown from a car to the tracks and then twenty-seven feet to the ground, according to the testimony.

Yeggs Leave Looted Safe and Stolen Car in Alley

A small automobile and a safe stolen in a burglary of the Crane company branch at 3500 Milwaukee avenue early Thursday morning were found last night in the alley behind 4038 North Keeler avenue. The safe had been blown open. Crane company officials did not know the exact amount of money in it.

TEACHES SCHOOL IN WAUKEGAN 53 YEARS; QUITS AT 80

Mrs. Adeline Morey, believed to be the oldest public school teacher in Illinois in point of service and age, retired yesterday after teaching the first grade of the Central school in Waukegan for fifty-three years.

At graduation exercises in the school auditorium, her retirement was announced by John E. Reardon, secretary of the board of education for thirty-two years, who had been one of her pupils. Mrs. Morey, who is 80 years old, has taught three generations of Waukegan residents.

Warn Kane County Taverns to Get Rid of Slot Machines

Proprietors of 75 rural taverns in Kane county were warned yesterday in a letter from Peter Jungles, chairman of the county liquor commission, that liquor licenses of all taverns where slot machines are found will be revoked. The county board of supervisors recently instructed the commission to rid the county of gambling devices after a complaint had been made by Supervisor Thomas Jordan of St. Charles.

DRAW UP BATTLE LINES FOR SHOW OF ARMY MIGHT

Big Guns Rumble Tonight in Soldiers' Field.

The rumble of big guns and the screaming roar of diving planes will be heard on Chicago's lake front tonight. But it will be no cause for alarm. The noise will come from Soldiers' field, where the annual military show of the 33d division, Illinois National Guard, will be given. The show will be repeated tomorrow night.

For the last three days troops and equipment have been coming into Chicago from all parts of the state. Planes from the 107th observation squadron, stationed at Detroit, and tanks from Wisconsin have arrived to participate in the demonstration.

Elephants, Camels Arrive.

Elephants and camels were brought in from circus headquarters in Indiana to be used in a demonstration f ancient fighting methods and equipment.

Headquarters for the military show announced yesterday that all reserved seat tickets for tonight's performance are sold, but general admission tickets will be available at the gates. Reserved seats for tomorrow night also were available.

Planes will fly over the stadium each evening at 8 o'clock. Their maneuvers thrilled 50,000 spectators each night last year, and the officers directing the show promise that their stunts will be even better this year.

5,000 Troops Take Part.

Immediately after the planes leave for the Municipal airport most of the 5,000 troops taking part in the show will enter the stadium to show naval drills, infantry maneuvers, and the hard riding of cavalry men and artillery men.

The second part of the show will be a series of pageants showing the troops and fighting equipment of fifteen of history's greatest armies. The scenes will begin with ancient cave fighters and the wild riding charioteers of Thothmes' Egyptian army and will end with a graphic portrayal of the battle of the Argonne.

The elephants will carry the javelin throwers of Hannibal's Carthaginians, who crossed the Alps two centuries before Christ to defeat the Romans. The elephants threw more of a scare into the Romans, who had never seen any of the beasts, than tanks do into the modern infantry man.

The spirit of the Holy war in which the Mohammedans swept into southern Europe will be brought back to life when the camels race across the arena.

R.O.T.C. ARTILLERY UNITS ARRIVE AT FORT SHERIDAN

Coast artillery students from R. O. T. C. units in seven midwestern colleges arrived at Fort Sheridan yesterday to begin a six weeks' period of intensive training. The youths, 286 in all, were given physical examinations and equipment yesterday and will begin practice by firing 3 inch anti-aircraft guns at targets pulled by planes on Monday.

At the end of the period of training on July 28 the men who have completed four years of R. O. T. C. work in college will be commissioned as second lieutenants in the officers' reserve corps. Brig. Gen. Karl Truesdell is in charge of the camp. Students are from the universities of Illinois, Kansas, and Cincinnati; Washington university at St. Louis; Michigan State college, and Kansas State college.

HEAD OF TAVERN OWNERS IS FINED FOR TERRORISM

Judge Eugene J. Holland of the South State street court yesterday fined Anthony Intravartolo, 833 North Monticello avenue, president of the Chicago Tavern Owners association, $200 for disorderly conduct after Capt. Daniel Gilbert of the state's attorney's police testified that several tavern owners complained they had been threatened unless they joined Intravartolo's organization. The windows of those who refused to join were broken soon after a visit from Intravartolo, Capt. Gilbert said. Three other men arrested in the investigation were discharged.

N. Y. RACKETEER GETS $15,000 FINE, THREE YEAR TERM

New York, June 17.—(AP)—Jacob [Gurrah] Shapiro, a racketeer with a record of 100 arrests and four convictions since 1915, tonight was convicted by a federal jury of dominating the $75,000,000 a year fancy fur industry by violence in violation of the Sherman anti-trust act. He was sentenced to three years in prison and fined $15,000 by Judge Grover Moskowitz. Shapiro already is under a two year sentence for racketeering in the rabbit fur industry.

TWO FREED AFTER FIGHT.

3 Wives in 2 Days

[Associated Press Wirephotos.]

Reno, Nev., June 17.—[Special.]—James McDonald III., young millionaire, who was divorced twice and married once here yesterday, was married again at Carson City, Nev., today.

James McDonald III.

His third wife is June C. Kerns, 18 years old, of Cassel, Cal., whose home is near McDonald's California home. McDonald, 24 years old, is heir to an oil fortune estimated at $12,000,000.

Yesterday afternoon the young man was divorced by Mrs. Alecea McDonald, who charged desertion. At a private hearing District Judge B. F. Curler approved a property settlement and an agreement concerning custody of a daughter, Jacqueline.

McDonald then married Doris Marie Cunningham of Reno, mother of his 14 months old son, to give the boy a legal name. Half an hour later she won a divorce on the ground of cruelty. Custody of her son, James McDonald IV., was provided for.

BALLOON CORPS VETERANS TAKE IN RECRUIT OF 73

World War Sandbaggers Hear of Pioneer Days.

A little group of world war veterans, most of them partly bald or gray, met at the Great Northern hotel last night for a gabfest about their experiences as "sandbaggers"—members of the American balloon corps overseas.

Before the meeting was half an hour old, however, they were listening in awe to a silver haired gentleman who flew balloons in the baby days of modern aeronautics before many of them were born.

A Balloonist Since 1882.

This pioneer in aviation is James L. Case, now 73 years old. He made his first flight at a county fair when he was 17 years old. That was in 1882. Since he has gone up more than 2,000 times in balloons.

"It's all been wonderful," he drawled. "I've flown for Barnum's circus and in races against such men as Roy Knabenshue and Leo Stevens. I've made landings on haystacks and lakes. And all the while I found it a great experience.

"I made one of the first parachute leaps. It was in 1892 in Quincy, Ill. The parachutes weren't packed like now. They were attached to the balloon and we had to jerk it and then swing out and down."

Flew at Columbian Exposition.

Then he told of his exhibition ascensions at the Columbian exposition; of winning the first long distance balloon race in 1908, with the takeoff at White City; of sudden drops and breath taking risings; of watching the Wright brothers working on their first crude planes. Mr. Case now lives with a daughter, Mrs. George Payne, at 8019 Kingston avenue.

When he finished, his listeners made him an honorary member of their group, the Chicago chapter of the National Association of American Balloon Corps Veterans. The chapter was formed several months ago, has a membership of 75 ex-sandbaggers, and is headed by Sidney Rothschild, balloon commander.

WORKMEN DIG UP SKELETON AT SCENE OF GETTYSBURG BATTLE

Gettsburg, Pa., June 17.—(AP)—Parts of a skeleton believed to be that of a Confederate soldier who died in Pickett's immortal charge on the Union lines 75 years ago next July 3, were found today near the Emmettsburgh road. The bones were found by workmen digging for water lines.

SUE FOR CUSTODY OF SON GIVEN UP SEVEN YEARS AGO

A suit to regain custody of their son Richard, 9 years old, was filed yesterday in Circuit court by Mr. and Mrs. John Sus of 625 Grenshaw street. Their attorney, Jacob L. Tenny, told the court that seven years ago the child was turned over to Mrs. Sus' niece, Mrs. Tillie De Salvo, of 707 De Koven street, when Mrs. De Salvo said she was lonesome. Since then, the court was told, the parents have paid for his board, room, and clothes. Now Mrs. De Salvo refuses to give up the child, the petition declares. Judge Harry M. Fisher granted the plea for a writ of habeas corpus and ordered Mrs. De Salvo and her husband, Joseph, to bring the boy to court Monday morning.

FIELD MUSEUM GETS NEW KIND OF SNAKE—ALMOST

A curator of snakes for the Field museum, K. P. Schmidt, was prowling about the underbrush in Arkansas several months ago engaged in his favorite occupation, looking for snakes. He excited some interest among the Polk county folk, and they in turn excited his interest when they asked him if he had any coon-tail rattlers.

Mr. Schmidt, believing he was on the trail of a new kind of rattler, so far as the Field museum goes, persevered, but departed without his coon-tail. He left word, however, to send him a coon-tail when the next one was caught.

The coon-tail arrived, nicely pickled in preservatives, at the museum this week. Much to Mr. Schmidt's disappointment, however, it turned out to be just another cane brake rattler, of which the museum had specimens. He deduced that the local snake observers in Polk county call it a coon-tail because its tail, which is about 5 inches long, is striped gray and black, like a raccoon's.

EARLE AND AIDS BATTLE IN COURT TO BAR JURY QUIZ

Deny Charges of Graft in Voluminous Document.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., June 17.—[Special.]—Fighting a grand jury investigation to the last ditch, Gov. George H. Earle today told the Supreme court of Pennsylvania that the charges of graft and corruption in his administration were "unqualifiedly false."

In a voluminous document filed before the court, the governor and thirteen other high-ranking Democrats denied the charges that they had conspired to cheat and defraud the state in graft estimated at more than 8 million dollars.

The seven black-robed justices, sitting in a crowded courtroom at the city hall here, listened to the arguments of both sides but adjourned without handing down a decision on whether the inquiry should be conducted.

May Take Over Control.

An indication of what the governor's next move will be if the court allows the investigation was given when Guy K. Bard, new attorney general and a party wheel horse, told the justices he had the power to supersede and take over the whole show. Earle's foes claim such action would result in a "whitewash."

Carl B. Shelley, Republican district attorney of Dauphin county in which Harrisburg, the state capital, is located, charged the governor was attempting to delay action on his petition for an investigation in order to destroy its effectiveness.

Remarking that there should be no "halo" placed on the head of a man in public office and that Earle was subject to the same scrutiny as a humble citizen, Shelley told the Supreme court that the powers of a grand jury to investigate might as well be abolished if the governor were held immune.

Prosecutor Accuses Governor.

The prosecutor also accused the governor, who is the Democratic nominee for senator, of trying to intimidate the three common pleas judges of Dauphin county, William J. Hargest, Frank B. Wickersham, and John E. Fox, who ordered the investigation in the first instance. In an address last Monday night Earle referred to them as "three highly political minded Republican judges."

The investigation, Shelley reminded the court, was asked by the former Democratic attorney general, Charles J. Margiotti. Margiotti went against the wishes of Earle in asking the Dauphin county authorities for grand jury action and the governor, in a rage, dismissed him as the state's highest law officer during the heat of the primary campaign.

DEMOCRATS MAP CAMPAIGN PLANS FOR DOWNSTATE

Springfield, Ill., June 17.—[Special.]—Preliminary plans for the downstate Democratic campaign next fall were discussed today by the state central committee, which named F. Lynden Smith, Gov. Henry Horner's public works director, to head the drive in the 101 counties outside of Cook.

State Chairman Harry B. Hershey of Taylorville said there was no discussion of the campaign in Chicago—a touchy subject because of the hot primary fight in which most of the candidates backed by the governor and State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney were victorious. "I suppose the cook county committee will handle it," Hershey said.

Setting of a date for the state convention was left with Hershey, and a committee to arrange for Governor's Democratic day at the state fair was named, with Committeeman A. M. Thompson of Marion as chairman.

STRIKE OF OFFICE WORKERS TIES UP 2 NEWSPAPERS

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 14.—(AP)—Pittsburgh's two afternoon newspapers, the Sun-Telegraph and the Press suspended publication today after mechanical department employés refused to pass picket lines thrown about the newspaper buildings by striking office workers.

Skeletonized crews of newsmen, maintenance men, and a few employés chosen by department heads remained at their jobs, but nearly 2,000 others were notified that their pay had ceased for the duration of the strike.

The Office Workers' union which called the strike is asking a closed shop, pay increases, and improved working conditions. The Metropolitan district's million residents turned to radio broadcasts for news or awaited early night editions of the Post-Gazette morning newspaper.

New Beach Style

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

New York, June 17.—[Special.]—Strapless bathing suits for girls and women have been frowned upon in many sections of the country, but they are gaining popularity at beaches in the vicinity of New York. Some social leaders have appeared in the new style at Atlantic Beach, a resort on Long Island. Elimination of straps from feminine attire first appeared in evening gowns.

DISSOLVES WRIT AGAINST POLICE PROMOTION LIST

Judge Donald S. McKinlay yesterday dissolved the temporary injunction he issued last week against the promotion of policemen to sergeants from the new eligible list. He also dismissed a mandamus suit brought on behalf of 120 policemen who were in leading positions on a former list.

Judge McKinlay upheld the contention of the city corporation counsel that the matter had been decided by the Appellate court in a similar case in 1936. While he indicated that he was not in agreement with the law, he held that the legislature had given the civil service commission the right to cancel both original and promotional lists after two years.

FALL CAMPAIGN PLANS DRAFTED BY STATE G. O. P.

Report Political Feeling Is Running High.

G. O. P. county chieftains and candidates for state offices drafted plans yesterday for the coming election campaign at a meeting of the Republican state central committee in the La Salle hotel. The nominees reported that political feeling downstate is running high.

A suggestion that a national figure be chosen to address the state convention at Peoria, Aug. 31, was vetoed. Instead, only state personages will speak and Richard J. Lyons, G. O. P. candidate for United States senator, will make the keynote address. Representative Elmer Schnackenberg of Chicago and State Senator Earl Searcy of Springfield will be co-chairmen of the meeting.

Name Women's Division Head.

Chairman A. K. Stiles of Sycamore announced that Mrs. Mary L. Silvis of Rock Island will head the women's division of the state committee. Richard Yates Rowe of Jacksonville was appointed chairman of the organization committee.

Other state candidates who appeared were William R. McCauley, Olney, for state treasurer; Wiley B. Garvin, Mascoutah, for superintendent of public instruction; George E. Lambur, Supreme court clerk; Simeon E. Lantz, Congerville, and Stephen A. Day, Evanston, for congressman at large.

Finds Farmers in Revolt.

Lyons told the committee that on a tour of the state he found the corn belt farmers in open rebellion over the loss of the market in the south, where the administration has advocated planting to corn land which formerly produced cotton. He said the leading issue in the fall campaign will be the question of jobs.

"People are tired of pump priming that merely primes the pay rolls of the federal government instead of private industry," he asserted. "If 85 to 100 new Republican congressmen and six or eight new Republican senators can be elected, business and industry will go forward with a rush and millions of unemployed will be put back to work."

Swing to Republicanism.

McCauley said he had never seen Republican enthusiasm running so high as now.

"Our fight is to impress the unemployed, the man on WPA, and the millions on relief that the only sort of pay roll that means contentment and happiness is not the pay roll of government, but the pay roll of business and industry," he said.

A budget committee was chosen to determine how funds shall be spent. It consists of Chairman Stiles, Charles A. O'Connor, head of the Republican County Chairmen's association; Edward F. Moore, Cook county chairman; Representative Everett Dirksen, Pekin; George F. Harding, national committeeman; George Rossiter of Chicago and Lyons. Rossiter will represent the citizens' finance committee.

DEMANDS CONTEMPT CITATION FOR HAGUE ON HIS RED CHARGES

Newark, N. J., June 17.—[Special.]—Federal Judge William Clark was asked late today to hold Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City in contempt for making a statement to the press which he had been unable to give as a witness in the free speech suit against him.

The demand that the Democratic political chieftain be cited was made by Morris L. Ernst of counsel for the C. I. O. and American Civil Liberties union, plaintifs in the suit. The attorney declared he would file contempt affidavits next Tuesday.

Ernst objected to the charge made by Hague to reporters that the attorney was responsible for stopping a New York legislative committee from exposing radical influences in the public schools of that state.

SAWMILL MAN HITS HIGH TAXES AS HE RETIRES

Rochester, Ind., June 17.—[Special.]—D. A. Pike announced today he has retired from the sawmill business and does not plan to rebuild his mill at Akron, ten miles east of here, which was destroyed by fire several weeks ago, causing a loss of $30,000 which was covered by insurance.

Excessive taxation was given as one of the chief reasons by Pike for his retirement from manufacturing of lumber. He said that his tax bill to the government last year alone amounted to $7,200.

ASSESSOR POINTS OUT WAY TO GET PERSONAL TAXES

Add Unpaid Items to Real Estate Bills, He Urges.

Ninety per cent of the personal property taxes billed in Cook county could be collected if the county treasurer would add unpaid personalty taxes to the following year's real estate tax bills, Assessor John S. Clark said yesterday.

Since the elimination of assessments on household goods, Mr. Clark estimated, between 90 and 95 per cent of all persons billed for personal property taxes also own real estate within the county.

There is a provision in the statutes, never applied in Chicago, for addition of unpaid personal property taxes to real estate bills. The personalty tax then becomes a lien on real estate.

Applies to Back Levies.

Mr. Clark's estimate of 90 per cent collections under this system, he said, would apply to back tax levies, as well as to those in the future. The only exception, he thought, would be portions of the 1931 roll, when so-called telephone book assessments placed a large amount of uncollectible items on the books. Other assessments made by his predecessor, J. L. Jacobs, and by his own staf are collectible if county officials will take proper measures to collect them, he asserted.

Mr. Clark emphasized the fact that, while tax collections are not a function of his office, he is vitally interested in them because failure to collect taxes reflects on the efficiency of the assessment process.

"If taxpayers knew that they were going to have to pay their personal property taxes we would get more coöperation from them in making up our rolls," he explained. "The Kelly act was supposed to centralize the making of assessments in a single assessor and their review in a two man board. As personal property taxes are now treated by the courts, we have thirty justices of the peace, several judges of the Municipal court and one or more Circuit judges all substituting their judgment for that of the assessor and board of tax appeals."

Mr. Clark reiterated a denial made some months ago that there had been any leaks out of his office of information gained from federal income tax returns for the purpose of making personal property assessments. He is to discuss the use of the returns Monday at a conference with his advisory committee on taxation of intangibles.

Horner Defers Action.

Gov. Horner, who must request use of the federal tax returns for the assessor, was quoted recently as saying that he would not ask for the information this year until the advisory committee assured him that there would be no leaks.

Monday is the last day for filing 1938 personal property schedules from the country townships of Barrington, Bremen, Hanover, Niles, Northfield, Norwood Park, Orland, Palatine, Palos, and Rich. Taxpayers who fail to file a schedule are given a statutory increase of 50 per cent in their assessment.

MINER DIES OF INJURIES.

Benton, Ill., June 17.—[Special.]—William Wilson, 60 years old, of Valier, died today. He was caught under a fall of coal in the Valier mine yesterday.

BITTER CLASHES STIR HEARING ON CITY MANAGER

Arguments on Plan Bring Heated Challenges.

Heated arguments advocating and opposing the city manager form of government occurred yesterday among witnesses appearing before a legislative committee meeting in the city council chambers.

Speakers were challenged repeatedly, and both groups resorted at times to personal attacks in their speeches. The real issue was forgotten in the wrangling which ensued when witnesses insisted upon developing long statements either in support or in opposition to the city managerial program itself. At the end of the day the committee took the matter under advisement.

Opponents Open Hearing.

The morning hearing was opened by opponents of the bills now on file. Among the first speakers was Judge Oscar F. Nelson of the Superior court, who charged that proponents of the bills were backed by a secret committee which is seeking to establish a Fascist form of government in Chicago.

Roger Dunne, chairman of the Chicago city manager committee, attempted to interrupt Nelson, but was ordered to remain silent by the legislators. Later, however, the committee members voted to allow speakers to be challenged from the floor if application was made first to the chairman.

Assails Silk Stocking Citizens.

Former Municipal Judge John H. Lyle charged that the Chicago City club had been "sold" on the proposals to establish a city manager form of government in Chicago by a group of "silk stocking" citizens. He referred to a campaign by the Chicago city manager organization for collection of a $250,000 fund to finance speakers and promoters.

"I have proof that the money is being collected by high pressure professionals, who are receiving a third of every dollar they get," said Lyle.

In justification of their proposals, said Lyle, proponents assert that they will achieve economy and more efficient government. He charged that costs of government had risen in every city where city managers were operating.

Taft Defends Plan.

Charles P. Taft, son of the late President William Howard Taft and himself a member of the city council of nine members at Cincinnati, was the first speaker for the afternoon session. An active proponent of the city manager plan, which he and a group of associates put into operation in his home city twelve years ago, Taft repeated in effect the statements he had made an hour before at a luncheon of the Chicago city manager's group.

"I want to deal with the chief arguments against the proposal as given here today," said Taft. "The plan is not unAmerican nor is it Fascist in any way. In our case it has been a very democratic form of government. The council is directly responsible to the citizens of our city, and the council controls every decision of policy. The city manager is merely an administrator who works with us, taking our directions, and occasionally making recommendations of his own. There is no opportunity for dictatorship."

Challenges Lyle's Statement.

Edward A. Zimmerman, chairman of the Illinois Council-Manager conference, challenged statements made by Lyle, saying they were intended to deceive the voters and to conceal the facts from them.

Zimmerman charged that organized labor, which had gone on record through John A. Fitzpatrick, president of the Chicago Federation of Labor, as opposed to the passage of the legislation, was unaware of the true significance of the program.

Anna Marie Milewski, ordered to Juvenile home after she had been caught carrying two stolen dresses in a store.

Mrs. Anna Milewski, 28 years old, was found guilty of petit larceny yesterday by Judge Oscar S. Caplan in the Women's court. In court was her daughter, Anna Marie, 10 years old, who was seized in a department store at 1279 Milwaukee avenue with two stolen dresses.

Mrs. Anna Milewski.

Her mother, stepfather and uncle fled after the theft, but Mrs. Milewski surrendered as the child was being placed in a patrol wagon. The stepfather, Albert, an ex-convict, and uncle, Joseph Endrukatis, are being sought.

Mrs. Milewski was released on bail pending hearing on an application for probation next Friday. Her home is at 4403 South Wolcott avenue.

City Sealer James O'Keefe and three aldermen who wish to know what makes Chicago beer glasses wear such high collars met yesterday with six representatives of the brewing industry. The aldermen are William A. Rowan [10th], Joseph P. Rostenkowski [32d], and Thomas J. Terrell [29th].

The conferees were heads of breweries and officials of the Illinois Association of Brewers. They blamed the bartenders for the situation and agreed that they do not wish to see the public gypped, in the fear that it might turn to beverages with more zing in them.

Mr. O'Keefe said he believes he has authority to measure the glasses whenever and wherever they are suspected, and he proposes to do so. At Ald. Rowan's suggestion the assemblage then adjourned to a nearby tavern where the bräumeister proposed to show the eager aldermen just how to lower the collar on a glass of beer.

Trainman Wins $20,000 Award for Loss of Arm

For the loss of his right arm in a railroad accident William A. Thrasher of La Junta, Colo., was awarded $20,000 damages yesterday by a jury in the court of Judge William J. Lindsay. Thrasher, a trainman for the Santa Fe railroad, was injured at Howell, Kas., Dec. 16, 1936. The suit was brought by Attorney Samuel Cohen through the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

LOOT PAINT COMPANY PLANT.

Burglars entered the plant of the Tomlinson Paint and Varnish company, 1114 North Kilbourn avenue, yesterday and took $100 from a small safe and other loot valued at $200.

EXTEND SURFACE LINES FRANCHISE; IGNORE PROTESTS

Aldermen Assail Delay in Unification.

The city council committee on local transportation deferred action yesterday on a proposal to let the surface lines franchise expire at the end of this month. The aldermen voted instead, after a storm of criticism against the lines, to extend the old operating permit until July 15.

This action was taken after William H. Sexton, special traction attorney for the city, said he was certain a solution of the unification problem is at hand. A definite answer will be forthcoming soon either from the companies involved or from the federal court, where the street car company and the Rapid Transit [elevated] lines are in receivership, he asserted.

Asked for Rental Fee.

The meeting was called to consider the proposal of Ald. Jacob M. Arvey [24th] that the council refuse to renew again the street car franchise which has been kept alive since 1927 by temporary extensions. He urged that it be replaced by a new operating agreement whereby the city could claim a rental fee for use of the streets.

Almost the entire session—4 hours of explanations, arguments, and suggestions—was taken up by aldermanic expressions of impatience at the inability or unwillingness of the companies to reach a unification basis that will permit modernization of Chicago's transportation facilities.

"When we deal with the Surface lines we need a club to get some action," asserted Ald. James B. Bowler [25th].

"The bankers are the ones we should blame," declared Ald. James J. McDermott [14th]. "They're concerned with no one but themselves."

Calls Wait Too Lengthy.

"We have waited too long for a definite offer from the street car company," Ald. James R. Quinn [50th] said. "Nothing has materialized. If we let the old ordinance lapse the bondholders will realize that they have nothing but a second hand company, some real estate and an equity in funds already sequestered by the federal court."

Ald. Bowler said the city should offer the companies new operating agreements containing provision for payment of 3 per cent of the gross receipts for use of the streets. No compensation has been paid under the 1907 ordinance since 1931. However, Mr. Sexton said he would be unable to draw the necessary ordinances before the end of the month. The aldermen then adjourned.

DRUNK, AUTOIST SENT TO JAIL FOR DRIVING OFFSIDE

John Madij, 1228 West 33d street, a truck driver, was sentenced to five days in the county jail by Judge Stephen Adamowski in the Safety court yesterday for driving while intoxicated. Madij was arrested June 10 while driving in the wrong side of Wallace street.

Harry W. Gahagan, 5555 Sheridan road, real estate dealer who on Tuesday started serving a sentence of 20 days in jail imposed two years ago for driving while intoxicated, yesterday dropped his efforts to obtain freedom on a writ of habeas corpus. His attorney withdrew a petition filed in the Criminal court.

Woman Realty Operator Sentenced for Slaying

Detroit, Mich., June 17.—(AP)—Mrs. Julia M. Barker,, once wealthy Detroit real estate operator, was sentenced today to serve ten to fifteen years in the Detroit House of Correction for the fatal shooting of Mrs. Edith Mae Cummings, her associate, last Jan. 15. Circuit Judge Ira W. Jayne pronounced sentence in the crowded courtroom where Mrs. Barker two weeks ago was convicted of manslaughter.

SECOND VICTIM OF AUTO CRASH NEAR GOLF DIES

William Gehrke, 54 years old, 4214 Milwaukee avenue, a plasterer, died yesterday in the Northwestern hospital in Des Plaines from injuries incurred in an automobile accident Thursday in which John W. Marsh, 48, of 3424 Lowell avenue, was killed and two other persons were injured. The accident occurred when Marsh's truck, in which Gehrke was riding, collided with an automobile at Milwaukee avenue and Golf road near the village of Golf.

Patrick Doolin, 47 years old, 811 Singer avenue, Lemont, died last night in the Little Company of Mary hospital of injuries incurred earlier in the day when he was struck by the automobile of a hit and run driver. He was found unconscious beside the road at 111th street and Archer avenue by a passing motorist, who took him to the hospital.

Mrs. Della Phillips, 50 years old, 6652 Maryland avenue, Chicago, died today in a hospital at Ottawa, O., of injuries suffered on June 4 in an automobile collision. Raymond Bunn, 27, of Leipsic, O., driver of one of the cars, pleaded innocent to a charge of second degree murder and was released under $1,000 bond. The charge was filed by James Phillips, husband of the victim.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 376 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 289 were killed in Chicago, where 8,152 were injured in the same period.

A NEWSPAPER CITED FOR CONTEMPT.

A committee of the Los Angeles Bar association has cited the Los Angeles Times for contempt of court. The complaint is based primarily on five editorials, published in recent months, commenting on matters which it is contended were still pending in court in one form or another when the comments appeared.

Three of the editorials commented on the verdicts rendered by juries in criminal cases before sentence had been pronounced. These editorials discussed the juries' findings but did not suggest what the sentences should be. In a fourth editorial, written in connection with Jackie Coogan's effort to recover from his parents a part of his earnings as a minor, the newspaper discussed the California law establishing parental rights to children's earnings, examined its origins and suggested that the law might well be amended in the interest of the child actors of Hollywood. The article was devoid of animus or prejudice. The fifth editorial opposed probation for two men convicted of felonious assault as labor sluggers. As the Times pointed out in a subsequent editorial [which has been made the basis of an additional citation] it is customary for judges considering questions of probation to call for informed or interested opinion.

There is no reason to believe that any of this comment prejudiced the rights of any of the persons concerned in the litigation. None of the persons who might conceivably have been injured is known to have made any protest to the court or to the newspaper, though they had every reason for doing so if aggrieved. None of the judges who might have felt that the comment embarrassed them in the performance of their duties took any action. There is no reason to think that the contempt, if there was one, in any of the editorials was anything more than technical. In most jurisdictions the comment as printed in the Times would be recognized as fair and privileged under the protection of the first amendment.

The organized lawyers of this country do some queer things. Abuses abound in the courts, as every one knows. In most of these abuses lawyers are concerned directly. In the heat of controversy sharp practice is frequently resorted to. Trials are delayed needlessly. Witnesses are deliberately befuddled. Suits are filed all too often for purposes scarcely distinguishable from blackmail. The conduct of lawyer criminals is a stench in men's nostrils.

And yet, with all these abuses and many others crying for correction by the bar—for the bar alone can correct them—it wastes its time and its energy all too often in such efforts as the current one in Los Angeles. Precisely because the organized lawyers of this country have so largely neglected their duty to raise the professional standards of the bar of this country the newspapers have been obliged in the public interest to watch the courts with particularly close attention. Only by acquainting the public with the conduct of the courts and commenting upon it frequently and forcefully have many old abuses been abolished and many new ones been held in check.

It is the duty of the newspapers to watch the courts and report on them fairly. Because our courts are not the king's courts but the people's courts, it is not only the duty but also the right of the newspaper, guaranteed by the federal and state constitutions, to comment on the work of the courts. The duty and the right are both subject to common sense restraints which, with the fewest exceptions, newspapers are careful to observe. It is neither fair nor lawful to comment on a pending case in a fashion to prejudice the rights of a party to the litigation; but, as Mr. Justice Campbell of the South Dakota Supreme court said in the important American-News case in 1936, the obstruction to justice in a pending case must be actual and demonstrable, not derived from theory or possibility.

"We entertain the opinion," he said, "that if error is made in either direction it is better and wiser to err in favor of absolute and unrestricted freedom of speech rather than in the other direction."

There is nothing sacrosanct about the courts in this country. What goes on in them may be discussed and criticized. They are an arm of the government and as such their acts are proper subjects for comment. If comment must invariably be withheld until the last court has said the last word the press will be effectively muzzled on many matters of public interest and importance. No great extension of the theory for which the Los Angeles bar is contending would have been required to silence all protest against the Sacco-Vanzetti verdict or the Mooney or Scottsboro verdicts, for these cases were pending in one court or another for years.

Something like the kind of respect for the courts for which the Los Angeles bar is contending is to be found today in Russia, Germany, and Italy. The work of the courts in those countries is not subject to the free comment of a free press. In consequence, verdicts are rendered which outrage justice and decency. Men are convicted on flimsy evidence. Extorted confessions are admitted. Prisoners are often denied counsel. When, in the face of these obstacles, they are acquitted, they are frequently rearrested for no better reason than that the government wants them jailed. The controled newspapers dare not expose these outrages and for that reason they persist.

As Mr. Justice Campbell well said, the "need of a free and unfettered press is perhaps more urgent in this country today than ever it has been before." He was thinking of the spread of tyranny all over the world and of the free press as a means of checking it in this country. It is unfortunate that the Los Angeles bar did not consider this aspect of the matter more fully before filing its action.

LEWIS PAYS HIS WAY TO CONTROL.

It's been a long time politically since Senator Truman Newberry of Michigan was tried by the United States senate because he had spent $190,000 in his campaign. There was no pretense that the senator had done anything dishonorable or that the money had been used for corrupt purposes. It was, in the opinion of some puritanically minded senators, just too much money, even though he was allowed to hold his seat in spite of the charges both in the courts and in the senate.

Times have changed. The reports on the Pennsylvania Democratic primaries for the nomination of candidates for the United States senate and for governor reveal that John Lewis of the C. I. O. spent over $500,000 in his attempt to nominate his man, Thomas Kennedy, for governor. Of this amount over $100,000 is represented by unpaid bills. Kennedy was not nominated, although James Farley also tried to put him over for the White House.

In less than two years Lewis has spent over a million dollars, derived mostly from the treasury of his miners' union, in political campaigns. The miners did not contribute it. The money was extorted from them. Lewis' investment has been one in political control of government and he has demanded a return in Washington for every dollar spent. He doesn't beat around the bush. He says he pays for things and he intends to have them. He wants legislation and he wants control of administrative bodies dealing with controversies in which he is interested. He buys into the government.

It was only a few days before the adjournment of the 75th congress that he was found in the office of the speaker of the house, at the speaker's desk, dictating to members of the rules committee, who refused to knuckle under and denied him the Walsh-Healey blacklist bill, with which he intended to cudgel employers into submission to his National Labor Relations board.

No other organization has used money in campaigns for avowed purposes of obtaining specified advantages in legislation and administration as has the C. I. O., excepting, of course, the New Deal itself, which converts public appropriations into a slush fund to subsidize or intimidate the vote.

The corrupt practices act makes it a felony for corporations to contribute anything to political funds, the theory being that no corporation would make a present of money to a political committee unless it intended, as Mr. Lewis does, to cash in on the investment. Mr. Lewis has cashed in. He owns the department of labor and the labor relations board, his sit-down strikes had the aid of the postoffice department, which refused to deliver parcel post packages to persons legally occupying industrial plants and besieged in them, and he has nothing to fear from the department of justice.

The use of money to buy up elections never was so scandalous as it has been in the last four years. Most of it is money from the public treasury which for the third time under the New Deal is being emptied to continue the adventurers and revolutionaries in the power which they have used and abused to impoverish the richest country in the world.

NAZI FURY.

The new outbreak of racial terrorism in Germany, with its persecution of the Jews, will occupy the attention of the Storm Trooper muscle men while Hitler seeks a new approach to other international disturbances. For such a régime passiveness is impossible and a state of calm unthinkable. There must always be an audacity or an atrocity to keep the fever running high. This is not only temperamentally imperative for such a man as Hitler but it is a political requirement of his organizations and form of government. It keeps the minds of the Germans from dwelling on their own misfortunes.

Temporarily the Furor, having ravished Austria and hesitating to attack Czechoslovakia, must seek a diversion at home to ease his own restlessness and satisfy his need of perpetual motion. The Furor's quiet day would be only one of looking for an outlet for the ever pressing sadism which consumes him. If he were to allow the Nazi mind to relent, to come out of its excitement and fever of passion and prejudice, there might be a reversion to German sobriety, intelligence, and good humor. That would be fatal to the purposes of the organized phantasmagoria which is the Nazi state. So the Jews in Germany must suffer lest the Nazi frenzy, getting a probation from active duty, subsides into reflection and reconsideration.

Over here, Mr. Joe Jacobs must think that of all times the Hitlerites could have chosen for their exhibition of barbarism the present is the worst, when he is trying to get an indulgent public opinion for his prize fighter Schmeling, the German champion, who is soon to meet Joe Louis in a New York ring for the world's prize.

KEEP COOL.

[Detroit News.]

It was a kindly impulse that prompted Gov. Murphy to take time out from the press of his many duties to write a word of encouragement to Reginald Fischer. Reginald had the bad luck to reverse the order of the a and the u in the word, fraud, and so he scored the first down in the Detroit News Metropolitan and National Spelling Bee.

Now, naturally, that was a big disappointment to Reginald. He had his big chance and he muffed it. But the time may come when Reginald will understand that that little miss, which was as big as a mile in keeping him from winning the spelling bee, was one of his biggest boosts toward success. He didn't miss because he didn't know, but because he failed to keep his self-control. He got rattled in an emergency. No doubt he has thought that over many times since and has determined it won't happen again. If he makes good on that resolution he has gained something that will be worth a lot to him all his life.

DYMAXION MAN.

It was fitting that Buckminster Fuller, engineer, inventor, philosopher, and author, should come back to Chicago on the first run on one of the new streamliners, for Fuller was perhaps the originator of the principle of streamlining, outside of the Creator of the fish and birds. It was he, at least, who got the first patent for a streamlined road vehicle. "For a road vehicle with a body of substantially unbroken curvature, including all the wheels and not including the contact points of the wheels with the road," was the way the patent read, if we remember correctly. You remember his shining silver dymaxion car exhibited at A Century of Progress.

* * *

A gentle-spoken man with a New England accent (his great-grandfather was Harvard 1801, and Margaret Fuller was his great-aunt, but he, scion of six generations of Harvard men, was fired after six months) and a dreamy manner, Fuller has called his new book "Nine Chains to the Moon," because a statistical cartoon would show that if all the people in the world were to stand upon one another's shoulders it would make nine complete chains between the earth and the moon. His book is a kind of inventory of civilization, an appraisal of man's habits of thought, and a provocative argument for a streamlined future, we are told by enthusiastic critics who have read the proof sheets.

* * *

There is only one reference to streamlining in literature, according to Fuller. In "The Ancient Mariner," where Coleridge, in describing the phantom ship, says: "The air is cut away before and closes in behind." The thing that controls streamlining is the vacuum, Fuller adds. It's not the tail movement of the small tropical fish that propels it along, but the vacuum created when it opens its mouth.

* * *

The opening sentence of "Nine Chains to the Moon" was quoted the other day by an admirer of the book, and it started a fine contest. Fuller's opening line: Upon the premise that the sum total of human desire to survive is dominant over the sum total of the impulse to destroy, this book is designed.

"A lovely opening line," said Christopher Morley.

"I knew a man once who fell so in love with the first line of a book he was writing that he never got any further," said Vincent Starrett, ruminatively. "And I bet I know the line," interrupted Morley, "and the man. See if I don't." He grabbed a pencil and paper and scribbled a line. So did Starrett, and they handed the results to us to judge. Both had written the same sentence—"Old Mr. Winterbottom was a cold stern man." The writer was John U. Higginbotham, and the aptness of his sentence pleased him so he went no further.

* * *

When we recited the little incident of Mr. Winterbottom, the cold stern man, to Otis Chatfield-Taylor later, he was reminded of the occasion at Oxford when a young prankster gave a dinner party and invited only persons named Winterbotham, Thistlebottom, Higginbotham, or similarly named. Then he arranged to be called away the evening of the dinner, but left messages that they were to introduce themselves to one another and dine without him. He wondered how long it would take them to catch on.

Wonder who used to own the solid gold, diamond encrusted star labeled "Deputy Coroner, Cook County," which now rests, bereft of a chest to sparkle upon, in the window of a pawnshop on North Clark street, across from the county building? Unredeemed by the original owner, it can be had for $325. Original cost of the bauble is said to have been at least $1,000. . . .

The current coroner's star isn't; that is, it isn't a star. It's a modest nickeled badge, bearing a number and the name of the holder and is worth not more than three or four dollars. The jeweled badge, which carries a 1/3 carat stone in each of its six points, wasn't given out by the coroner, or by any preceding coroner. He thinks it was a gift to the original owner, say from "the boys" to "a friend." Money flowed freely during prohibition among the "boys" and a thousand-buck gift to a "right guy" was nothing.

The care being taken to conserve Shirley Temple's earnings brought up the story of what had happened to Baby Peggy, child favorite of fifteen years ago, who when she was four was hailed as the two million dollar screen star. Jack Mulcahy, film advertising man, in town with the Temple party, encountered the erstwhile Baby Peggy, who now is 20, on the lot working as an extra girl in "Girls' Dormitory" in 1936 at $7 a day. She told him that during the year she had had 35 days' work at $7 a day. Most of her child earnings disappeared when her father, hoping to arrange an income for her when her screen services were not in demand, built a big hotel near Phoenix, then discovered afterward there was no water.

SINUS DISEASE FROM NASAL INFECTIONS.

SOME of us think of sinus disease as something that just happened—a malady that came from the sky, or from nowhere. The fact of the matter is that whenever these spaces are found to be infected the cause may be traced in practically every instance to colds, influenza, or to some illness characterized by nasal irritation, such as measles. We can understand, therefore, why so much emphasis is placed upon the proper care of inflammation within the airways lest it wander afield and permit bacteria to take up their abode in these areas.

I have many friends who cannot recall the time when they did not have what they termed catarrh, and the question is asked, therefore, "Is sinus disease common to children?" In other words, how early does it manifest itself?

As a rule youngsters will have few ailments until they begin to attend school. There they are exposed to strange organisms that find in the patient one who is not immune to their ravages. That is why from 20 to 30 per cent of all boys and girls of school age will harbor bacteria within some one of these bone-enclosed rooms.

The child who is conscious of swallowing mucus which drips down the back of the throat, or who suffers periodically from a profuse flow of puslike material from the nostrils, may be assumed to be a victim of sinus disease. The first step in treatment is to make certain that the openings from these pockets are free, thus permitting adequate drainage. Within two or three weeks most acute symptoms, however, will subside and while the discharge may continue intermittently for a month or more, with more outdoors and sunshine the normal resistance of the body will subdue the infection.

But suppose that it does not. Occasionally insanitary living conditions or improper food may permit one or more of these caverns to remain chronically inflamed. Thus we have the morning catarrh so often complained of. This is the time and place to apply the first rule of good hygiene, and every little one must be taught how to blow the nose gently, rather than to sniff back the nasal secretions. If at first only one space has been damaged, retaining the discharge may bring about a spread of the disorder and we may envision a youngster who is never free from the necessity of clearing the throat.

The effect upon general health cannot be overlooked. The condition is likely to present an ideal place for systemic absorption influencing not only disposition but mental and physical development. Other manifestations may include dark rings under the eyes, quick fatigue, and sometimes moroseness and ill temper.

Rather than say that sinusitis is caused by tonsils and adenoids, we may put it the other way. The infection may spread, inflaming the tonsils and causing enlargement. Will removal of tonsils cure the trouble? Sometimes, but not always. If a mass of diseased lymph tissue [the tonsil] is eliminated we have just that much less surface from which to pour toxins into the blood. We cannot say, then, as we would like to, that those who have been relieved of their tonsils and adenoids will not develop the malady.

The one who needs help is the thin, anemic youngster who presents a considerable amount of nasal sniffling with a cough in the early months of summer—the result of winter colds. In 99 cases out of 100 examination of the nose will show swollen air channels, and an X-ray of the facial bones will disclose the difficulty.

If we will take care of these disorders in early childhood we can effectively dispute the dictum that one never recovers from sinus infection.

SKILFUL AID IS BEST.

Mrs. M. writes:

1. Is it possible for a woman to enter the change of life at 30 years of age?

2. Can anything be done to inhibit the progress of the menopause?

REPLY.

1. Menopause at 30 is possible but only in the event that some trouble is present. A skilled gynecologist can make an accurate diagnosis and outline the correct type of management.

2. Certain glandular secretions are helpful.

1. Does tomato juice furnish an alkali within the body?

2. How does tomato juice compare with orange juice?

REPLY.

1. Yes.

2. Tomato juice has almost the same value as orange juice but to a lesser degree. Consequently, to produce the same effect more should be taken.

CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATION.

Chicago, June 10.—[Friend of the People.]—Some time ago I took the civil service commission examination for laborer for the Cook county commission. I should like to know whether I have passed and what the prospects for being called may be.

M. E. S.

The records of the Civil Service Commission of Cook County show that the writer passed the examination for laborer and is eligible for employment in that grade. Examinations for laborers are held in accordance with rule xi., section 1, and certifications are made under rule xi., sec. 2 of the Cook county civil service rules, which read as follows:

"Rule xi., section 1. Labor examination: Applicants for places as laborers shall file application on forms prescribed by the commission and shall be required to take such medical and physical tests as will prove their fitness to perform the work required in the places they seek to fill. Oral tests may also be made a part of said examination to prove experience and character."

"Section 2. Eligible lists: The names of said applicants, when accepted, shall be entered in alphabetical order, and shall be selected by lot individually or in numbers and certified whenever there are places to be filled. The commission may maintain its eligible lists according to department or bureau."

Should the writer's name be drawn for a vacancy, he will be notified.

PLACING THE BLAME.

Chicago, June 16.—If there is any one left who still believes this is not a New Deal depression, read on.

When we had Hoover we also had a Democratic house and senate which blocked every constructive move he tried to make for relieving that depression. The object, of course, was to smear him for political gain.

Now, with five years of Roosevelt, with an overwhelming majority in both house and senate in his favor, also more power than any previous President—what has he done? He has hhrassed and ridiculed business men with punitive laws and public statements until they are thoroughly discouraged. Taxes are higher than ever before; radical unions are trying to run their private affairs; billions of taxpayers' dollars are wasted on political greed and nonsensical schemes.

The result is now well known. Private capital cannot bring in a profit, so we have no business promotions or expansions. Instead of people going to work they are going on relief. Business is at a standstill; buying power is lower than in 1932.

You and I, the common people, are suffering from the unwise and stubborn acts of this administration. Don't be fooled by the old ballyhoo of blaming business for political mistakes made in the New Deal drive for power and control.

In November we have a chance to put better men in office; let's do it regardless of party. There are good Democrats and Republicans available.

FROM STREAMLINED WINDOWS.

Chicago, June 15.—The other morning while walking down Federal street the two new streamlined 20th Century trains passed, being backed down to the La Salle Street station for a public exhibition.

The trains were beauties, quiet running, and fast. However, the atmosphere along the right of way did not match up—slums, factories, littered vacant property, warehouses, signboards by the score, etc.

Compare this to the beautiful right of way these trains pass on entering their eastern terminal. To overcome this a simple remedy would be to switch these trains at Porter, Ind., to the subsidiary line, the Michigan Central, and have them run into the Illinois Central station at Chicago.

In contrast to the atmosphere along the present right of way, just as described, compare the beautiful park, lake, and outer drive, along the Illinois Central tracks, from 51st street northward.

FREE SUITS.

Chicago, June 15.—I have read with gratification of the admirable plan suggested by Mr. Sidney Hillman to purchase surplus stocks of clothing from manufacturers which, in turn, is expected to create a demand by them and in that way stimulate labor for clothing manufacturers.

May I point out that this action will only reach to the point of the manufacturer's situation, and when he again finds his supply and stock replenished and shelves again full he will only be in the same position as before, not finding a ready outlet and again stalemated for the lack of stock movement.

Now, may I respectfully suggest a plan similar in principle but one that will reach just a little further—namely, to purchase the surplus stocks of retail stores throughout the country. I point out that there are thousands of stores throughout the country which are overstocked with merchandise and which, in many cases, find these stocks entail just about the amount of money that they are now indebted to wholesalers. They, in turn, would pay their debts to the wholesaler and also begin buying to replenish their shelves, which, in turn, would create a movement with the wholesaler and the manufacturer and in turn create a demand for labor and raw material.

Also, may I point out that it is not the best policy to distribute newly manufactured merchandise for the purpose intended and such stocks as are on hand with retailers could be well utilized for this purpose. No doubt most of these retail merchants would be glad to dispose of their stocks at their invoice cost price.

Max Weiss.

FROM AN ECONOMIC ROYALIST.

Chicago, June 15.—I observe in today's paper that the Federal Surplus Commodities corporation is buying one-half million cases, or, I take it, six million cans of grapefruit juice to be distributed to families on relief. I notice that this self-same corporation has also bought millions of pounds of butter, trillions of eggs, and so on, and I don't see why it doesn't help the liquor people. What could be more refreshing and stimulating than to top off the day with a whisky and soda or a few martinis, bronx, or manhattans.

Jim.

MORE NOISE MAKERS.

Chicago, June 16.—The association of commerce has suggested the appointment of a noise abatement commission for the purpose of studying methods of fighting the evil. Besides the noisy street cars, the elevated and other trains, trucks [including—perhaps I should say especially—those used to transport three and four pleasure cars at a time], the following are a few items they might consider:

Lether heels that clank along the sidewalks, through the lobbies and corridors of our office buildings and everywhere else. In my opinion, a person must be quite an egotist to wear shoes equipped with these noisy heels. What is worse, some also have metal plates attached thereto. It seems to me the only reason for wearing these noise makers is to attract attention.

Automobile horn tooters. Existing horns should be removed and none built in the new cars. A good driver does not need a horn.

Whistling, especially the kind that is intended to emulate Elmo Tanner.

Radios that are tuned so that they can be heard half a block distant. Also advertising sound trucks that are too loud.

J. J. W.

OMINOUS; ALSO IRONICAL.

Chicago, June 13.—Hess' speech at Stettin "in the presence of Reichsfuehrer Hitler and 500,000 Nazis" on June 12 was not only "ominous," as your Berlin correspondent stated, but ironical. Considering Germany's treatment of the Jews it must have made the gods laugh to hear the Nazi orator say of the Sudeten Germans, "Being members of non-Czech nationalities they are being struck down, clubbed and shot, only because they are not Czechs."

THERE'S ONE OF THEM LEFT.

Gotham, Wis., June 14.—Some time ago you mentioned in the Voice of the People that the old-fashioned merchant, who treated his customers to a sack of candy upon payment of a bill, had disappeared. We have one in our midst, George Waddell, who never fails with his sack of candy or an ice cream cone upon payment of a bill, and I feel that a public acknowledgment is due him for this little kindly act.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lebanon, Ill., June 17.—[Special.]—Lebanon dozes in the June sun, blooms in the rains, much as it did more than a century ago when John Quincy Adams was President and the new state of Illinois was largely unsettled prairie and wilderness.

McKendree college, tucked away in part of the original forest on the edge of town, where faculty and students in 1828 cleared the campus thickets for their log cabin dormitories, frightening away the lurking panther, might be missed by the traveler today as Charles Dickens missed it when he rode this way in 1842. He lunched on the prairie on roast fowl, buffalo tongue, and champagne and found it all delightful. He stopped at the old Mermaid tavern on St. Louis street, but never mentioned the college in his American notes.

Memento of Circuit Rider.

Yet old McKendree is indubitably here and likely to stay. It seems to partake of the rhythms and stability of the inclosing natural scene. It is another memento of the passing this way of Peter Cartwright, Methodist circuit rider, who fought sin and ignorance with heroic action and founded seminaries which were in the nature of hopeful prayers for the future of this republic as a kingdom of God.

The 109th commencement just has been concluded and thirty-two more graduates have gone forth to put their mark on this country, the majority for post-graduate work in other institutions. Church, bar, medicine, schools, politics, war have felt the impact through the century of the citizens sent out from this old college, which has grown from one to nine buildings, from an endowment of $19,000 to $340,000, and which still receives $10,000 a year from the Southern Illinois Methodist conference.

Depressions Are Familiar.

Depressions are nothing new to McKendree, and it may be said that the current one has not affected it greatly. It has about an average number of students, 207 in the college, which is somewhat less than centenary year, but which is a good deal better than 1886-'87, when they had a real depression.

At its lowest ebb the college had thirty-three students. Only two degrees were given that year, and the question came up as to whether the college should be closed. The Rev. Isaiah Villars, then president, took up this problem in prayer with the trustees. Should the old college go? The answer was no.

The buildings were repaired and painted and the enrollment soon rose to 100 as the answer to this problem.

There have been twenty-seven presidents of the college. Dr. Clark R. Yost is the incumbent. He has begun an endowment campaign for $1,000,000. The mellow old campus bell still rings. The chapel of civil war vintage has new electric lights. Its stone steps are deeply worn and carved with initials. Bobwhite and doves call from the thickets as of old.

In 1907 in another time of stress the town of Lebanon, faculty and students, raised $70,000 to clear away the debts.

Samuel H. Deneen, father of Charles S. Deneen, former senator and governor, taught Latin here for thirty years. Nathan Horner, great-grandfather of Mr. Deneen, was one of the founders. Charles S. Deneen was graduated in 1882, in the same class with the late Senator Lawrence Y. Sherman. Silas L. Bryan, father of William J., chopped wood to earn his way through McKendree.

School of Many Soldiers.

From the firing at Fort Sumter McKendree gave its sons to the civil war. It turned out five generals, four colonels, a chaplain, captains, lieutenants, and privates. The 117th Illinois was called the McKendree regiment, with Prof. Risdon M. Moore as colonel.

Four McKendree sons have become presidents of the college. In 1922-'23 there were only 116 students, but this rose to 408 during 1928. The slogan of this centenary year, when a new gate was built at the campus entrance, where wild roses bloom and bees made a drowsy tune, was that McKendree must not fail.

Third Divorce

URSULA PARROTT.

Bridgeport, Conn., June 17.—[Special.]—The third marriage of Ursula Parrott, novelist, ended in divorce today when Superior Court Judge Edwin C. Dickinson granted her an uncontested decree from John J. Wildberg, New York theatrical lawyer, on grounds of intolerable cruelty.

Miss Parrott testified that her husband once approached her with a pistol and said:

"I could shoot you with this."

"But I didn't think he would really do it," she added. "I was afraid it would go off and the noise would wake up my son."

SATURDAY NEWS OF NEW BOOKS

Novel Mirrors Harsh Fate of Cossack Troop

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"The Mountains and the Stars," by Valentin Tikhonov. [Little-Brown, $2.50.] Published yesterday.

Another fierce, passionate Russian novel of the cruel and cruelty breeding lives of a band of Cossack soldiers in the early days of the bolshevik war has come to us. There is no indication that it is translated, except the obvious one that it sounds as though it were.

"The Mountains and the Stars" moves over a bit of the map unusual in white Russian army novels—outer Mongolia and the steppes of Siberia. Its vast company of characters are the members of the Asiatic cavalry division of the dead Czar's army, with a sadistic Baron Ungern at their head whom they fear but whose mad orders for punishment none dares disobey until the whole troop revolts. The two major characters are brothers, fatherless little boys as the book opens, who run away from their home, almost bare of food, children who in the midst of the most gruelling horrors of war oddly preserve some semblance of innocence.

There are murders, hangings, wholesale slaughter, punishments, lashings unto death, and a grand finale of rape and ravaging, balanced by scenes of almost superhuman heroism. By its very power of veracity the book becomes a violent indictment of what warfare does to men's souls.

D'Annunzio Idolized by His Biographer.

Gabriele D'Annunzio was Italy's greatest modern writer but he also was Italy's greatest modern fabulous citizen, destined for the headlines of the world and inserting himself in them when fate pushed him into smaller type. With such material "Dame Legend," as this biographer labels the world's wagging tongue, has made much and will. Tom Antongini—who calls himself D'Annunzio's secretary, but who obviously was his business guide, philosopher, and friend, and acted as literary agent, publisher, and often banker—feels his hero so maligned by "Dame Legend" that his first duty in this book is to remove the stigmas of gossip.

D'Annunzio is more than a hero to this literary valet. He is practically a god. This biography is frankly and from cover to cover a pean. And as such it is practically a museum piece.

But as a record of the intimate thoughts, modes of living, and individual acts of a great man, this volume is a storehouse of source material. It will be invaluable as a check-record for the hundreds of volumes of reminiscences that are bound to appear during the next few years.

Tom Antongini, in 567 pages, records meticulously the details of his hero's preferences in women, and other precious possessions, and sets down for posterity his hero's likes and dislikes in prose, prosody, perfumes, pens, politics, people, animals, amour, etc. The author surveys his hero with the thoroughness of an engineer and maps every inch of his physical, mental, and spiritual life.

Many modern biographies might be lumped under a heading "Clay Feet by Those They Trod On," but this one could be called "The Idol with the Golden Feet."

Collections of Stories by Erskine Caldwell

"Southways," by Erskine Caldwell. [Viking, $2.50]. Published yesterday.

Here are assembled sixteen short stories from the pen that wrote "Tobacco Road." In comparison with Erskine Caldwell's bitter tales of po' whites, these seem very innocuous, most of them no more acrid than the picture of smoke from a puffed corncob, while his previous work has been pure nicotine-pizen pungent.

Only one of the stories, "Wild Flowers," is an indictment of the social fabric of the south such as Erskine Caldwell wrote to accompany the very powerful photographs made of sharecroppers by Margaret Bourke White [to whom this volume is dedicated] in "You Have Seen Their Faces." Many of these "Southways" tales are even funny, although some of them are just meant to be.

This book is interesting as a record in the dossier of Erskine Caldwell, writer. It will neither put him in jail [as "Tobacco Road" threatened to do] nor keep him out if a literary cheka ever gets to the point of making every artist who does careless work serve time.

Walt Whitman's Pose Put Under Microscope.

That Walt Whitman had a pose always has been self-evident to any reader of his fine poems who took the trouble to find out what he could about the writer of them. For many years the obviousness of that pose militated violently against an honest judgment of his work. Many of his contemporaries either found the rôle which he assumed an objectionable one, or if they could look with an unprejudiced eye upon the good gray poet, something in them revolted against the egotism which made it necessary for such an artist to proclaim himself as he did.

Our generation has forgotten the fierce polemics over Walt Whitman. Esther Shephard recalls some of them in her search for the sources of his genius. The Emerson encouragement and the use Whitman made of it and Margaret Fuller's acknowledged influence on him are recounted, but his sudden rise to fame with "Leaves of Grass" has remained. Miss Shephard believes, unaccounted for until her discovery of the use Whitman made of one of George Sand's novels, "The Countess of Rudolstadt," whose hero is the later Walt Whitman almost to his very words.

Miss Shephard does a lot of leaping about from this to that in this book. But she has made a fresh and new interpretation of one of America's great literary figures.

Three Volumes Revive Phases of Pioneer Era

BY LLOYD WENDT.

"Wind Over Wisconsin," by August Derleth. [Scribners, $2.50.]

"American Years," by Harold Sinclair. [Doubleday-Doran, $2.75.]

In his newest novel August Derleth writes of the hard, beautiful, declining days of the fur trade in the vast northwest. The author is at heart a poet, and he makes you feel the calm, lush wonder of the wilderness, beloved by the traders and the trappers, who had the burden of forwarding encroachments against the Indians they had no wish to fight nor harm.

Thus Baron Pierre Chalfonte Pierneau, descendant of the coureurs de bois who peacefully penetrated Wisconsin, and who desired only to live quietly with his heritage, was forced into the maelstrom of Indian warfare, cheating, and trickery for a cause his nature hated. The adventure and action that follow carry the reader breathlessly through the book with a deep appreciation of Mr. Derleth's masterly descriptive powers and his deftness at creating men and women as serene and strong as the wilderness itself.

Of an earlier period, but characterized by the same sympathetic appreciation of the era it concerns, is Margaret Bell's "Women of the Wilderness." She writes with charming ease, weaves the awkward, scraggly facts of musty journals smoothly into her tales, and lets the vigorous life blood flow through her characters.

In the stories are Anne Hutchinson, Mary Chilton, Elizabeth Warren, Anne Bradstreet—all of them a part of a vital, exciting era. Through the eyes of these women, and others, the problems, accomplishments, and antics of their men are limned freshly, vividly, and, at the same time, with perspective and understanding.

Harold Sinclair tells a tale of early Illinois with a spirit and verve that send the leaves of history swirling. Facts aplenty abound in "American Years," and oldtimers will probably vouch for it that Mr. Sinclair speaks their language. His people are those who came to Illinois at the time of the Lincolns, and incidents in the life of Abraham Lincoln have an important part in the book.

Mr. Sinclair deals with the tough, open, talkative people who ripped up the woods and ploughed up the fields and then took time out from rearing families and building cities to fight a couple of wars and invent a few machines to make things easier for their children. His book is one of the livest and yet most genuine of historical novels in recent months.

Looking Over Latest Books

"Holy Old Mackinaw," by Stewart H. Holbrook. [Macmillan, $3.50.]

The title of this book probably is the mildest of the phrases used by the lumberjacks about whom Stewart Holbrook writes—if they would have deigned to use it at all. Their trek across the country from Maine to the Pacific coast, mowing down the forests as they went, is ably detailed by the author. Paul Bunyan was something of a piker when compared with the character Mr. Holbrook tells of in his first chapter. The rest of the book is neither so swift nor so smooth, but it still is good reading. W. D. O.

Three Thrilling Tales of Arctic Adventures.

"Below the Roaring Forties; an Antarctic Journal," by F. D. Ommanney. [Longmans-Green, $3.]

"The Sealers," by Peter Tutein. [Putnam, $2.50.]

Polar gales, subzero temperatures, and general all around foul weather of the bleakest type accompany the reader of this trio of blue water true adventure tales.

Warwick Tompkins, trained sailor and writer, did a fine bit of navigation in rounding Cape Horn in an 85 foot schooner, built nearly sixty years ago. He has done an equally fine job in logging it in concise, nautical, but entertaining English. "Fifty South to Fifty South" is a sturdy and unique addition to maritime literature.

F. D. Ommanney's "Below the Roaring Forties" carries his reader at times close to the course of the Wander Bird. This droll, humorous, well written, but extremely modest account of several thrilling years in the antarctic — whaling, exploring, and rescuing other explorers—is a captivating autobiography of a British scientist in the polar seas.

"The Sealers" is a simple, forthright account of life on a Norwegian sealer as told by a young Dane. The author, after being shipwrecked in Greenland, was picked up by Capt. Schjelderup in the Quest. Later he joined his rescuing Norwegian skipper in a voyage to the top of the world. His account of hunting seals is an exciting and unusual narrative of arctic adventure. A. C.

An Autobiography with Roots in Kentucky Hills.

Here is the soliloquy of a life that is rimmed and shut in by the dark hills of Kentucky. It is an autobiography written by one who is an observer of life rather than an actor in it. Jesse Stuart was born of farmer parents, but the urge for education and the burning desire to put into words the passion he felt for the soil drove him beyond the dark hills. He worked hard to get the meager schooling provided by the rural community of Greenup, Ky.

From there he went to Lincoln Memorial college, sweating through the heartbreaking grind of the steel mills to provide money for tuition and food. Eventually he obtained his degree at Vanderbilt. And in these contacts with the world Jesse Stuart found that life beyond the dark hills was sour. He writes with a detachment that lends drama and color to his work, and which makes casual the things that otherwise might be considered crude. C. L.

Dishonored Warrior Gets Able Appraisal.

The career of Maj. Gen. James Wilkinson was tarnished before his death in 1825, but not until many years later were biographers able to piece out the complete, sorry picture of his venality when archives revealed that from 1790 to 1796, when he was an officer in the United States army, Spain paid him at least $26,000.

Wilkinson served with distinction as a staf officer during the revolution, although even then he never was hampered by an ethical idea. After the war, while serving in the Ohio valley, he took pay from the gullible Spaniards and he had his hand in a series of other plots, including the Burr conspiracy, but a court martial acquitted him in 1812 and he was able to live out his life wearing a technical bade of innocence. At his death in Mexico he was still intriguing with Mexican officials.

Maj. Jacobs' biography is not only an excellent appraisal of Wilkinson but a good account of the frontier problems of the first three Presidents. Considering the disorganized state of the Union in those days, a reader is astonished, not at the cupidity of men like Wilkinson, but at the honor and wisdom of men like Washington. C. J. W.

Louis Adamic Takes Look at 'My America'

"My America," by Louis Adamic. [Harpers, $3.75.]

We have had many volumes from visitors or sojourners in our land which could be labeled "Your America [Thanks Heavens, Not Mine]," so critical have they been of our ways and our means of living. It seldom occurs to a native American to write about his own country, and when he does his eyes rarely see with the sharpness of foreign unaccustomed eyes.

Louis Adamic, a Slovene [author of that memorable book about his native Jugo-Slavia, "The Native's Return"], came to America, found life here not easy but good, became a naturalized American citizen, and now frankly writes of "My America."

Neither Louis Adamic's eye nor his pen is dull. And he has a strangely incorruptible honesty in his writing as he has in his observation. He sees his America from the legendary, foreign point of view—as a land of vast opportunity and greater freedom than most contemporary cultures offer. But he also sees America as a land where the foreign-born and their native-born children are handicapped in the economic and social battle. He feels that America's future greatness will be, as much of her past has been, in the fusion of "the melting pot."

But that outspoken section is only one in a long, disjointed volume of 662 pages which is a record of Louis Adamic's happy—and unhappy—years in the United States. It contains many excerpts from his diaries and some autobiography [but much less than one would expect].

"My America" would have been easier to read and nearer literature if it had been no more than two-thirds as long as it is and if it had had a stricter literary pattern, but perhaps paring it down might have removed its quality of deliberation and its conviction. F. B.

Looking at Hollywood
By Ed Sullivan

The Longest Day of the Year.

Hollywood, Cal., June 17.—June 21, according to the calendar, is the longest day of the year. This is the Summer Solstice, when the sun is the greatest distance from the equator and consequently more hours of daylight. Hollywood's stars and featured players disagree on this, just as you who read this will disagree as to the LONGEST day in your own individual lives, because this is a purely personal and individual choice, tied up to your own particular memories.

Jeanette MacDonald says that the longest day in her life was the Christmas she spent in Chicago, the first after her father died. "To me it seemed that the day would never end. I was playing in a show and after the matinée performance mother and I went out to a restaurant to eat dinner.

"The stores were decorated gayly; people were rushing past with packages under their arms; through lighted windows we could see ornamented Christmas trees. There was Christmas in the air, but only a vacuum in our hearts. We ordered dinner and tried to capture the spirit of the holiday in our orders, but everything that was served—the turkey, the dressing, the cranberry sauce, and the mince pie—seemed to be a reminder of dad. There may be longer days than that one, but I don't think it."

George Brent says that the longest day he can remember was Aug. 25, 1922. "I'd fled to Glasgow, Scotland, via Belfast, with a reward of 100 pounds on my head. Mike Collins had been killed and they were closing in on all of us who had served under him. A trawler was to pick me up at 10 o'clock that night and I was hiding out in a room in a cheap boarding house, waiting for darkness. The landlady was sour and suspicious, and once when I opened the door I found her peering through the keyhole. If she went to the police it was all up.

"Each hour became an agonizing interval, agonizing because there was nothing I could do. It seemed the sun would never go down. When darkness fell I sent the landlady for some pipe tobacco, and when she left I skipped and hid in a lumber yard. Don't tell me that June 21 is the longest day of the year, because I know differently."

Humphrey Bogart doesn't know the exact day, but his longest day of any year was at the helm of the troop transport U. S. S. Olivia, carrying 1,200 soldiers from New York to Marseilles. It was in the spring of 1917.

"Shortly after dawn I started a four hour trick at the helm of the troop transport U. S. S. Olivia, carrying 1,200 soldiers from New York to Marseilles. We were in waters infested with U-boats and the day previous they had sunk a hospital ship. Twenty minutes after I took the helm the boat slowed up and then stopped. The pipe which fed oil to the engines had broken. After three hours the engineers rigged up a temporary oil feed pipe and we started to limp along at six knots an hour. At 9 o'clock that night two British destroyers picked us up and convoyed us in, but that was a long, long day, believe you me."

Every generation and every race has attempted to express just such days as these. "A watched teapot never boils" is the oldest expression of how slowly minutes can tick off. Contrariwise, when you dread something that is scheduled to happen at a certain hour the minutes speed by at an incredible pace.

So Barbara Stanwyck says that she remembers most vividly the SHORTEST day of the year. She was 11 years old. Her father had died in Panama, and she was living with a family. "At 9 o'clock, at breakfast, the father of this family, meaning to be kind, told me that they couldn't keep me any more, as they were to have a child of their own. He suggested that perhaps it would be better for me to go to some orphans' home and live. That day went past so quickly that I've never yet ceased to marvel at it."

Youngsters who take screen tests out here tell me that the day they spend waiting for the reports on the screen test drags by with leaden feet. The clock seems absolutely motionless. Stars will tell you that the ordeal of sitting through a bad picture which they've made is horrible: "I swear that 'Parnell' lasted five hours on the screen the night I saw it," says Clark Gable. Every star has had that experience.

I've often wondered, as you probably have wondered, at the sensations of a man about to die in the electric chair, noose, or gas chamber. Probably the last twenty-four hours drive past at lightning speed, with the sun's shadow on the floor of the cell serving as the face of the clock. Oscar Wilde expressed it best in "The Ballad of Reading Gaol," I think, in writing of the wretch who was to be hanged:

The morning wind began to moan,
But still the night went on;
Through its giant loom the web of gloom
Crept till each thread was spun;
And as we prayed we grew afraid
Of the justice of the sun.

At last I saw the shadowed bars,
Like a lattice wrought in lead,
Move right across the whitewashed wall
That faced my three-plank bed,
And I knew that somewhere in the world
God's dreadful dawn was red.

The longest day I can remember, in my own life, was when I ran away to Chicago to join the United States marines, late in 1917. The fear of my father catching me before the train pulled out of Grand Central station was so intense that it seemed the train would never start, and that the day would never end. I was 16 then, and the memory of that day's extraordinary length is still fresh in mind, twenty years later.

Good Morning!

There's a Fred Astaire-ish something about Jack Hulbert, and a Ginger Roger-ish lovableness about Patricia Ellis. So, though the former doesn't exactly rival Freddie as a dancer, nor the latter Ginger in a number of ways one could mention, the two do make a nice team, agreeably reminiscent of the Rogers-Astaire combination, and their English made vehicle is a smartly knit and breezy show.

The story employs the familiar backstage motif with interesting variations, whiling the reels along with plenty of refreshing dialog, a good little song now and then, well, if not brilliantly sung, some clever solo dancing by Mr. Hulbert, situations that surprise you into chuckles, and mighty good acting by all concerned.

Miss Ellis as Jeanette, a chorus girl on her uppers, suddenly finds herself just everybody's lambie pie. A manager who had fired her from the show in which she was rehersing, makes her its star. Dunning tradesfolk beseech her to honor them with her patronage. . . . The flabbergasted young woman finally discovers that a merry fate has linked her name that of the O so rich and so conservative Mr. Rene Martin—whom she has never laid an eye on.

Now nobody but his cunning old [about 70 years] telephone operator has ever suspected that underneath the prim exterior of Rene beats a soul with S-W-I-N-G! Mr. Martin secretly practices tap dancing and—ACTING—in order that he may be chosen for a part in a play soon to be given by the stock exchange. SO—Mr. Martin is not so wroth as he might be when a certain dressmaker sends him a certain bill.

Sternly he tells his confidential old male secretary that here is a matter he will take care of himself. . . . And so to the Gaiety theater—where Jeanette mistakes him for a newspaper man—and falls in love with him, enlisting his aid in the Rene Martin matter which has got out of hand. . . .

The piece is interestingly staged, the director did his job with a twinkle. Everything, as a matter of fact, I found hunkadora but Miss Ellis' gowns. Most unflattering.

Miami Beach Picks Entry for State Beauty Contest

Katherine Carr Will Be Bride

Miss Katherine Carr, whose father, George Russell Carr, today is announcing her engagement to Robert Henze of Innsbruck, Austria. The announcement comes from Europe where Mr. Carr and Miss Carr are traveling. It is expected that the wedding will take place in Chicago at the end of July, and that Mr. Carr and his daughter and her fiancé will arrive here toward the middle of the month.

Miss Carr, who was presented to the late King George and Queen Mary at the first court of the season at Buckingham palace four years ago, was educated abroad. She was introduced to Chicago society last winter at a party given also for her younger sister, Mrs. Peter G. Moon, the former Martha Carr. Mr. and Mrs. Moon, who were married in April, have been traveling abroad on their honeymoon. They will sail for home on June 22 in the Normandie.

WEDDINGS

Mr. and Mrs. Herman H. Newberger of 5017 Drexel boulevard announce the approaching marriage on June 28 of their daughter, Calmina, to Seymour Koch, son of Mrs. Louis Koch. The wedding will take place at the Newberger home. Mr. Koch and his bride will live in Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Emil H. G. Meier of 3522 West 65th street announce the approaching marriage on June 25 of their daughter, Amalia, to Elmer O. C. Mickley, son of Mrs. Martha Panzegraf. The ceremony will take place at 7 o'clock in the evening at the St. Stephen's Evangelical Lutheran church, followed by a reception at the home of the bride's parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis P. Kalish announce the marriage of their daughter, Dorothy, to Joseph C. Sabath, son of Mr. and Mrs. Will Sabath.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Scheck of 5628 South Mozart street announce the approaching marriage on June 22 of their daughter, Grayce Ellen, to Forrest J. J. Morrison of New York City. After the wedding a reception will be held in the Shoreland hotel. The couple will go to Michigan on their honeymoon and make their home in New York City.

Six Weddings of Interest to Social Circles

BY JUDITH CASS.

JUNE reaches a new high in weddings today with six ceremonies of great interest to Chicago social circles taking place. Only two are being solemnized in Chicago, however, one in Highland Park and the other in Winnetka. The other four, at each of which there will be Chicago guests, will be in Marion, Mass.; Stamford, Conn.; Greenwich, Conn., and Philadelphia.

The one in Massachusetts will unite in marriage a Chicago girl and a Chicago man, Miss Nancy Ryerson and George A. Ranney Jr., but the other three will be weddings of Chicago men to eastern girls.

North shore homes and hotels are filled with guests who have come from away for Chicagoland's two big weddings this afternoon. Miss Mary Stovall Wood, daughter of Gen. and Mrs. Robert E. Wood of Highland Park, will be married at 5 o'clock in Trinity Episcopal church to William Stamps Farish Jr. of Houston, Tex., son of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Farish of New York.

Miss Fidelia Richards, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marcus D. Richards of Winnetka, and William Winston Roper Jr. of Philadelphia will be married at 4:30 o'clock in the Congregational church. A small reception will follow at the Richards' home.

Hold Reception at Wood Home.

The reception following the Farish-Wood wedding will be held at the Wood home. Miss Wood is having one of her sisters, Mrs. James R. Addington, as matron of honor. The other two, Mrs. Calvin Fentress Jr. and Mrs. Edwin E. Tullis, and their sister-in-law, Mrs. Robert W. Wood II, of Houston, and the bridegroom's sister, Miss Martha Farish, will be bridesmaids. Little Mary Tullis and Audrey Fentress will be flower girls for their aunt.

Young Mr. Wood will be his future brother-in-law's best man. Ushering will be Hugo Newhaus, a cousin of Mr. Farish; James O. Winston Jr., John Blaffer, and William T. Carter Jr. of Houston; Newton Buckner and Walter Teagle Jr. of New York; Anderson Fowler and Frank Johnson of Far Hills, N. J.; Denys Cadman of London; Briggs McLemore of Nashville, Tenn., and Raymond Graham, also of Texas. The Rev. Christoph Keller will officiate.

A. J. Connell, head master of Los Alamos school, at which the bridegroom and the best man both received their preparatory education, is flying here from New Mexico, arriving today for the wedding. Mrs. Wood's sister, Mrs. James A. Babbitt, and Mrs. Stovall Conklin, niece of Mrs. Wood, of Haverford, Pa., are here, and so are Mr. and Mrs. Hardwick Stires of Far Hills, cousins of the bride; Mrs. Richard Neff, Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Weiss, Miss Eleanor Weiss, Mrs. Winston, the R. L. Blaffers, the W. M. Rizes, and the Stephen P. Farishes, all of Houston, and Mrs. Walter Mortland and the senior Mrs. Walter Teagle of New York.

Mr. Farish and his bride are sailing next week for a wedding trip to Europe. They will live in Houston.

Miss Richards will wear the charming old fashioned wedding gown first worn by her grandmother, the late Mrs. George Mirick of Boston, fifty years ago, and she will carry a prayer book that is the gift of the Rev. Samuel D. Harkness, who will read the

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

The art exhibit by Chicago artists sponsored by Chicago's New Century committee opens today in exhibition hall, Navy Pier, to continue to July 10. There is a nominal entrance charge of ten cents, which covers the price of a catalog and it is necessary to have a catalog. Besides wanting to know the name of a painting and its artist, one might want to know the price of a picture.

The exhibition is startlingly finer than that of last year. It is representative of most of the well known groups of Chicago artists and has, too, its fair proportion of the "unknown" artists. Such familiar names as Pauline Palmer, Gerald Frank, Lucie Hartrath, Macena Barton, Frances Badger, Charles Biesel, Leo Marzolo, Charles Longabaugh, Maurice Greenburg, Louis Grell, Ted Vognild, Florence White Williams, Karl Plath, Walter Krawiec, Harriet Krawiec, Elise Donaldson, Ethel Spears, Eugenie Glamen and Julius Moessel are found attached to important contributions. This is really, definitly, an art show of Chicago, by Chicago and for Chicago.

The paintings are pleasant in character, for the most part. There are landscapes, still life, figure studies, interiors and marines. If the "Salome" by Macena Barton seems more naked than usual in the huge vastness of the pier, then does the delicacy of Leo Marzolo's "Still Life" find itself thrown into greater relief.

The "Gay Little Fishes" by Eugenie Glamen is one of the most fascinating pictures in the exhibit. "Sunny Boy," a sleeping cocker spaniel spied on by an inquisitive bluejay, by Julius Moessel, is another delightful canvas. "Pedro and Skippy," by Louis Grell, throws another sidelight on the personalities of cockers. Ted Vognild depicts the high spirits of the wire haired terrier.

Mayor Kelly will be the principal speaker at the formal opening at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Every day some distinguished person will speak on the various features of the show. Charles S. Peterson is chairman of the art committee and among those on the committee are Paul Schulze, Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Brewster, Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Worcester, Mr. and Mrs. Potter Palmer, Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, Oscar F. Mayer, Mrs. Robert R. McCormick, Thomas Tallmadge, Mr. and Mrs. Carter H. Harrison, Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, Mr. and Mrs. Clay Judson, Mr. and Mrs. Tiffany Blake, Dell Quest, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel C. Rich and Mr. and Mrs. James Ward Thorne.

Girls to Usher

Fifteen young women who have just returned from college for the summer will be ushers at the Hinsdale Horse show. Wearing white with red ribbons to identify them, the ushers will be under the direction of Mrs. Robert Hasbrook, whose husband will be in charge of the ring.

Miss June Essley, whose parents, the Porter Essleys, are responsible for the large box seat sale, is in charge of the splash party to be given for the junior exhibitors at the Hinsdale Golf club following this afternoon's performance.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Now is the time, if you're dry skinned, to have some professional face treatments that will condition your complexion to the point where it can take summer wear and tear without undue damage. You'll save yourself a lot of frantic repair work next fall.

Dry skin has a rather disarming summer trick. It doesn't peel and flake as much as it does in winter and you might be deceived into thinking that at long last it's functioning normally. It's true that it usually is a little better, but don't think that it's changed its ways completely. It needs oiling almost as much as it ever did.

According to our hunch one reason why dry skin is so difficult to clear up is that women are spasmodic in their attempts to lubricate it. They get all excited about it when it shows up all its distressing symptoms—which is usually in cold weather. The rest of the time they just sail along and even subject it to abuse it can't possibly stand.

If your skin is paper thin don't court sun tan without the best of protectives. Be wary of windburn, too, and don't use strong astringents in hot weather. Nurse it gently and be faithful to the consistent use of lubricating cream every single night.

If you're off shortly for a vacation out of doors your skin will stand the strain much better if you give it some elegant face treatments now.

Unfamiliar Faces

By Alice Grant Rosman

SYNOPSIS.

Elizabeth Sandal is shocked to find her children, Dorothea and Oliver, resent their father's will that unexpectedly left a fortune to her and did not mention them. She goes off to Switzerland for a change and rest, and meets Andrew Leicester, who was a groom at her wedding. Andrew, a widower, is returning after years of absence in the east to meet his children. William, his son, lives with a bachelor relative. His daughter Shirley with his wife's relatives. Shirley was in an airplane accident with a young pilot, Tony Voisin, after which Tony's engagement to another girl was broken. Her mother's people blame Shirley. Andrew hopes to have it out with Shirley before seeing his in-laws. Shirley believes he is aligned with her hated relatives and treats him coolly. Andrew turns to Elizabeth for sympathy. She tries to make friends with the boy and girl. Oliver visits his mother and lingers to fall in love with Shirley. After William flies back to school, Shirley enlists Oliver's aid and summons Tony Voisin, who explains to her father that he—not Shirley's actions—broke his engagement. Even though the scandal is cleared up, Andrew and Shirley quarrel fiercely. Shirley taunts him with marrying "that old woman," meaning her hated aunt. Andrew thinks she means Elizabeth. Shirley intends to leave unannounced early next morning, but her father, up after a sleepless night, unknowingly thwarts her plan. In the cooler wisdom of morning they talk and reach a real understanding.

INSTALMENT XLII.

ALL'S WELL.

Andrew's eyes were watching the soft contour of Shirley's cheek as she straightened herself against his encircling arm, and, feeling his eyes upon her, she said:

"In spite of my scarlet past you know I am not really used to being embraced in public by a strange man. I feel most conspicuous."

"Sorry," he apologized, releasing her. "Do excuse me. I mistook you for my daughter."

The shot was successful, for she promptly took his arm.

"If we can find a low little restaurant, I'll buy you a café complet," she said, and almost as though he had been William, led him away in search of such a place.

And so for the second time they breakfasted together, no longer quite wary of each other, for their acquaintance had begun. Shirley at least recalled the other occasion, the morning after he had thrown the key, and on that remembrance of a fleeting incident there awoke within her the recognition which of all others he would have most desired—her kinship with him.

"We could cancel Sussex if it weren't for Tony," she said to him suddenly, seeing for the first time how much worry and discomfort he too had had out of all this, through her misconception.

"O, no. Your grandmother must answer to me for her behavior to you and undo the mischief," he said with decision. "They have spread this scandal and they shall correct it. I can't have such talk about you."

"Who will pay for all the alterations to the house?" she inquired next.

"That is not our affair."

"It used to worry me, though it was the only way I really knew you would soon be home."

"But you had my letter?" exclaimed her father, "and they had my cable."

"I didn't have any letter and they didn't tell me what the cable said . . ." She smiled at him. "Never mind—it must have been a pleasant letter or they'd have given it to me like a shot."

"You poor child, of course it was a pleasant letter." He was beginning to see at least what she had endured and in a clumsy endeavor to give her an assurance which she no longer needed, he told her of the gifts he had bought before sailing from Shanghai.

"Really? Things for a house . . . or flat?" she asked eagerly.

Her dazzled astonishment seemed very touching to Andrew and the revelation that she, no less than he, had planned and waited for a home completed his felicity, though he wondered as they walked back together to the hotel, how long he might hope to keep her.

They talked of a flat in London and perhaps a cottage in the country, the complete ignorance of both as to the cost of these things giving spice to the adventure.

"We'll have to ask Mrs. Sandal," said the young lady in a reasonable tone. "She'll know. She is going to move into a flat herself, I think. I'm sure she would advise us."

If he had not already been completely won this trust in Elizabeth would have turned the scale. He thought it the sweetest of girlish virtues in his daughter and not, as it was, a hint from one who did not know otherwise how to convey the information, that she approved his taste and wished him well.

Elizabeth had not slept well and she awoke anxious and unrested. It had been all very well to present her spurious wisdom to Andrew to calm his distress, but what certainty had she, and was not she somewhere in this, a disturbing factor, but more a mother thinking of her son?

If in these days Oliver had pleased her and relieved her fears, she knew that he had been fortunate in the company of this lovely girl who so engrossed his heart. This love could do more for him perhaps than any love of hers, but whether it could or not, he would pursue it, and suffer or be happy in the way of humankind.

But what of the girl, so unfathomable to Andrew, so compelling and confusing at the same time? Why had he almost commanded her not to approach Shirley, if some unexpected hostility to herself had not been made plain to him?

It was no good. Her promise to Andrew to say nothing must go by the board. She could not let the thing stand without trying at least to straighten it out, or learn the worst from Shirley herself.

She dressed quickly and was going downstairs when she caught sight of the girl through her open door. She had gone to unpack a few things again and tidy up after her walk, and when Elizabeth called to her, she whirled round towel in hand, bright eyed and smiling.

"Have you slept late, my dear? So have I."

"No. I've been out hours. Do come in," said Shirley.

The invitation was accepted, Elizabeth closing the door as if by accident and strolling to look out the window.

"I haven't set eyes on Oliver," announced Shirley, for want of something else to say and taken by surprise.

"My dear! Your father would be furious if he knew I was here, and perhaps you may be furious, too," said Elizabeth in almost a pleading tone, "but I must talk to you. He is dreadfully distressed and I am afraid it may be my fault for letting you know he had told me about Tony Voisin. You see, I wanted him to let you come home for a little while with me, but he said you would never consent."

"O, wouldn't I?" Shirley laughed. It was something of a problem to explain what had made him think so without giving away what he had inadvertently revealed to this woman she liked—her father's girl friend as William would have put it.

"Don't you take any notice of him," she said. "He only imagined it. Because last night he said he had done with me forever. But I've just had breakfast with him and he has changed his mind."

"All's well?" asked Elizabeth, delighted but a little dazed.

"Yes, rather!"

Shirley flung down the towel and put on her hat again, quite unable to elaborate the theme, and knowing with a rush of relief that from this quarter she would never be pressed.

"He'll tell you. Sure to," she said. "Perhaps I'd better hunt for Oliver."

"Yes, do, my dear."

So her appeal for Andrew and her own good intentions had been unnecessary after all. Elizabeth laughed helplessly at herself as she followed Shirley to the lift, and a few moments later watched her go calmly off to a rendezvous with her son.

wedding service. Following the reception, which is to be a small one, Mr. Roper and his bride will leave for Bermuda. They will live in Philadelphia.

Miss Marie Louise Richards will be her sister's maid of honor. The bridesmaids will be Mrs. William Parker of Montreal, sister of Mr. Roper; Miss Marian Farwell, Miss Frances Glore, Mrs. Francis Moore of Cambridge, Miss Mary Warner, Miss Julia Walcott, Miss Eleanor Wilson, and Miss Marianne Henry of Elmira, N. Y., and Miss Jane and Miss Kathleen Calkins of Bannockburn, three former schoolmates of Miss Richards at Miss Hall's.

Martha Bacon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richards' neighbors, the William T. Bacons, and Angus Douglass, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kingman Douglass of Lake Forest, will be flower girl and ringbearer.

Gowen Roper of Philadelphia will be his nephew's best man. Ushering will be Joseph Brown Jr., Montgomery Haines Jr., a cousin of Mr. Roper; L. Wynne Wister, Dudley Warwick, Philip Staples, and Rudolph Rauch, all of Philadelphia; Mr. Parker, Arthur Connell of Scranton, Pa.; Manning Brown Jr. of Elizabeth, N. J.; Joseph Ryan Jr. and David Hemingway of New York, and the bride's cousins, John and Louis Gillette of Detroit.

Victorian Wedding for Miss Ryerson.

Miss Ryerson, christened Nora after her mother but never called anything but Nancy, and the son of the George A. Ranneys will be married at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon in St. Gabriel's church in Marion, with a reception following at the summer home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Ryerson Jr. The petite bride will wear the wedding gown first worn by her grandmother, Mrs. Morton Butler, in 1884, and then worn by Mrs. Ryerson in 1914.

Miss Margaret Hallowell of Boston and New York will be the maid of honor and the bridesmaids will be Miss Peggy Clow, Miss Harriet Welling, and Mrs. Wyndham Hasler [Cornelia Ranney] of Chicago, and Miss Donna Butler, the bride's cousin from Carpinteria, Cal. All the attendants will wear cream colored organdie and leghorn hats. The decorations of the church and house will be simple but Victorian to match the bride's gown.

Gaylord Donnelley will be his brother-in-law's best man and ushering will be Edward L. Ryerson III., John B. Morse, William B. Cudahy, Hugh McBirney Johnston, and Wyndham Hasler, all of Chicago, and Churchill Carey, Hugh Cunningham Jr., T. Edward Hambleton, and Edward E. Mills, eastern friends of the bridegroom. Mr. Ranney and his bride will go abroad on their wedding trip and next fall will be at home in New Haven, Conn., for him to finish his law studies at Yale.

In addition to those in the bridal party the Chicagoans in Marion for the ceremony are the Ranneys, Mrs. Gaylord Donnelley, Thomas E. Donnelley, Miss Naomi Donnelley, Laurence Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur G. Cable, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence B. Robbins, Mrs. Clive Runnells, Mrs. Donald M. Ryerson, Stanley Keith, the Joseph T. Ryersons, and Mrs. Hugh Johnston.

Dominick-Wilson Nuptials in East.

Miss Lucy Wilcox Dominick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Dominick Jr., of Old Church road, Greenwich, is to become the bride of John Rodney Mills Wilson, son of Mrs. Oliver T. Wilson of Lake Forest this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in Christ church, Greenwich. Following the ceremony there will be a reception at the Dominick home. The bride will wear old family lace and ivory satin.

Mrs. Charles Dennehy of Lake Forest is the only Chicagoan who will attend the bride and Mr. Dennehy will be his brother-in-law's best man. Among the eight ushers will be one Chicagoan, Edward Byron Smith. Mr. and Mrs. Wilson will go to Bermuda for their honeymoon and upon their return they will be at home in Greenwich for the summer and in New York in the autumn.

Robert Wheeler Will Wed Eastern Girl.

The wedding of Miss Sherli-Jane Weaver, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Bruce S. Weaver of Darien, Conn., to Robert T. Wheeler, son of Mrs. Robert C. Wheeler of Astor street, will take place at 4 o'clock this afternoon in St. John's Episcopal church, Stamford, with a reception for 150 guests following at the Wee Burn Country club. The Rev. Gerald A. Cunningham will officiate.

George Woodland, who is Mr. Wheeler's roommate at Yale, where both are being graduated this month, will be the best man. Mr. Wheeler and his bride will cruise on the Great Lakes in his sailing yacht, and then will be at home with his mother in Harbor Point, Mich., for the rest of the summer.

Seven Thousand Lilies for Jacobs Ceremony.

Seven thousand Easter lilies will decorate the Church of the Good Shepherd in Rosemont, a suburb of Philadelphia, this afternoon when Miss Louise Jacobs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Jacobs of Bryn Mawr, becomes the bride of Hubbard Phelps, son of Mrs. Louise deKoven Phelps. The ceremony will be solemnized at 4:30 o'clock and will be followed by a reception at Casa Mia, the home of the Jacobs family.

The interior of the church will be like a garden with a five foot hedge simulating boxwood across the front. Topping the hedge will be a layer of lilies, clipped from their stems. Along each side of the center aile will be nine tall lily trees.

It will be an all white wedding and only white flowers will be used to decorate the house. No Chicagoans will attend the bride, but Brewster Perry will be Mr. Phelps' best man. Ushering will be five cousins of the bridegroom, Ledyard and deKoven Bowen, Edward, Bowen, and William McCormick Blair Jr., and Nelson Thomasson III., and John Nacey of Chicago.

Alert woman, to be informed enough about vitamins to know that a B-6 has been discovered! B-6 is one of three separate components of vitamin B-2, and only recently has been isolated and experimented with. These parts of complex B-2 are a pellagra preventing factor, known to scientists as "P.-P.," lactoflavin and B-6. The first part definitly is connected with human nutrition. The other two factors, lactoflavin and B-6, haven't yet been proved of value in the human diet, although they have a known relation to the skin condition of rats.

B-6 is found in the foods which are rich in B-2, then, since it is a component of B-2. These foods include lean meat, fish, and yeast and liver extracts.

A man reader living in Pittsfield, Ill., wants me to "define the culinary term vol-au-vent." Vol-au-vent means in French, "flight to the wind," a rather fanciful title for a puff paste shell which is used in making hot meat, chicken, fish, or vegetable patties.

Among replies to my request for a true southern syllabub recipe came this one, telephoned by a reader. It still isn't quite what we need, but it's different, and I'm sure some readers will be interested.

Southern Syllabub.

1 quart whipping cream
1 cup milk
1 cup sugar [more or less]
Sherry wine to taste

The contributor says that the beating may be done with a rotary beater, although she remembers it was done in the south in a syllabub churn. She says that the amount of sugar to use and also the amount of wine depend entirely upon personal preference.

In a recent article I mentioned homemade potato chip and noodle baskets, deep fat fried, and used for creamed dishes. The other day I was presented with half a dozen such "nests" made with Chinese noodles. These Chinese noodle baskets are made commercially for fancy groceries and bakeries, and are supplied by the company which makes them for many of Chicago's finest tearooms and restaurants. They are crisp and good foundations for any creamed hot dish, for chop suey, even for salads and ice cream. With ice cream the noodle nests taste like glorified cones.

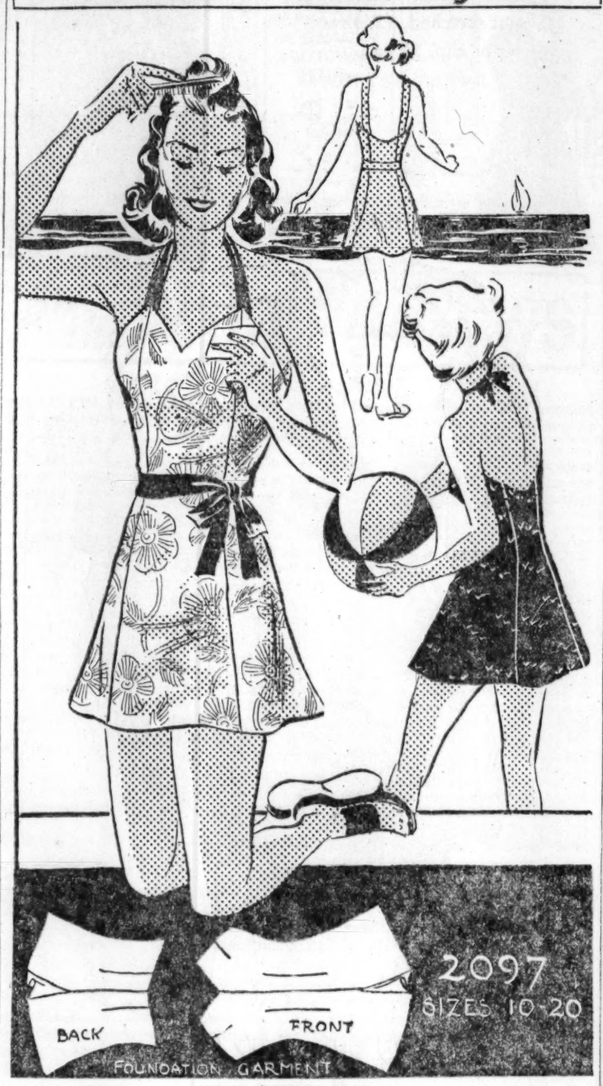
A Graceful Swimming Suit



MISS' SWIMMING SUIT.

Never have swimming suits been smarter than they are this year. Women have gotten away from the snugly fitted, form revealing suits of other seasons, wise to the fact that the full skirt has feminity and is flattering to the figure.

The model illustrated today has a halter neckline, the strap of which matches the contrasting belt. A nice idea is to make the suit of figured satin or cotton. The bodice fits snugly and the neckline is V.

If the halter neckline is used the back is entirely exposed to the beneficial rays of the sun. You may, however, use straps, as shown in the sketch at the upper right.

In selecting the opening lead it sometimes is possible to make a choice that has two distinct chances for success as against another that has only one. West overlooked that point in selecting the lead in the following deal and, as a result, cost himself and partner several match points.

SOUTH

East	South	West	North
Pass	Pass	1 heart	Pass
2 diamonds	2 spades	Pass	Pass
3 clubs	Pass	Pass	3 spades
Pass	Pass	Pass

Obviously, West's opening bid was pretty weak. In fact, it would have been indefensible except as a third, or possibly fourth, hand bid at match-point duplicate. East did not like to sell out to a low spade contract, hence his three club "stretch." As the cards lay, and with a good guess for the club jack, East-West could have gone even farther with their club bidding, but they hardly could assume such favorable breaks.

West, oblivious to every thought except that his partner had responded with two diamonds, made the fatal opening lead of the diamond ace. After that nothing could defeat declarer. In all, he lost one spade, one heart, one diamond, and one club.

The choice of the opening lead had been far from logical. East had not bid diamonds alone; he also had bid clubs. From West's point of view a club opening should have been just twice as safe as a diamond opening. The diamond opening would be proper only if East had specifically the diamond king, whereas the club opening would be quite safe, and constructive, if East had either the club ace or queen.

Surely a consideration of this type is not "over the head" of any player. As may be seen, a club opening or, for that matter, any opening except a diamond, would have resulted in declarer's losing two diamond tricks instead of one, and with them his contract.

If You're Diminutive, Stretch High and You'll Appear Tall

It's one of the changes of this age in which we live that small women almost universally wish to be tall women. Your editor well recalls a time when to be tall was one of mother's heartaches, to say nothing of the girl's. To be petite and small—the envied proportions. But at that time, a movie star over five foot two was a monster for height. She hadn't a chance to break into celluloid no matter how divinely fair her face and figure.

The Mary Pickford sizes in the movies today are rare exceptions. We can't recall any at the moment who are but five feet one or less. It may be that some, like Sonja Henie, are small but succeed with dress and coiffure in giving the taller impression. As said, it's another age and now we hear the short girls crying aloud for Providence to add an inch or two.

Well, Providence finishes its job by the time the girls gets to be 18 or thereabouts. If she's going to add an inch or more, it is up to her. We have just observed the stretching-up-taller of one 21-year-old. She bought one of those chinning apparatuses and she has been working at it for months, with a noticeable up-stretch of her figure. However, what has really happened is that the young woman has straightened up her spine. She wears her head now where it belongs—right atop the spine—not hanging forward, rounding spine and cutting down a good inch or more.

Too, she has her whole body better set and balanced. Even her feet are contributing height with the tall and sprightly spring in their soles. It's tricks like this that must be employed by the small ones. They have to think themselves tall and keep on thinking themselves tall, pulling themselves up tall and taller.

Time was when girls would be advised to wear tall hats, tall heels, rely on clothes largely for the illusion of height. But selecting tall hats and tall heeled shoes is not in today's altered program. The trick is to keep everything in scale. Develop a sense of proportion. Don't carry enormous handbags, wear heavy jewelry, large hats, and wide belts. Scale everything down and then depend on carriage for the real effect.

It should console the tiny one that she still can make a quick and piercing dent in the masculine armor. Men like them that way. We note with chagrin that rarely is a small woman found in heels that are not spike height. Makes them taller, they say. We say that if they would adopt the medium heel that allows for swing and freedom of motion, allows them to ride high on the balls of the feet, they'd give a better illusion of height.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Dictatorial trends of government are turning citizens into moral and mental ciphers. This was the opinion expressed by Bishop William L. Essex of Peoria, as he spoke yesterday before graduates of Seabury Western Theological seminary, Evanston. The future Episcopal ministers were warned that increasing governmental domination will crush freedom of thought here as it has in Fascist states.

"Three powerful dictatorships threaten to destroy religious and political freedom," said Bishop Essex. "In our own country there is cause for apprehension when so many look to government for regulation and regeneration."

A feature of the graduation ceremonies was the granting of a diploma to the first full blooded American Indian ever to complete the theological course at the Evanston seminary. He is Harold S. Jones, of the Sioux tribe of South Dakota. He will be ordained to the Episcopal priesthood today. Mr. Jones' grandfather, the Rev. William Holmes, was one of the first native missionaries to the Sioux.

The honorary degree of doctor of divinity was conferred on the Rev. Walter B. Stowe of Philadelphia, church historian. The commencement was the last presided over by the Rev. Dr. Frederick C. Grant, who will become head of the department of New Testament at Union Theological seminary, New York, in the fall.

Dainty Applique Quilt Is Perfect for a Girl's Room

BY NANCY CABOT.

"Lilies of the Valley" is one of those dainty applique blocks definitly suited to the young girl's room. It also is the type of applique work which any young girl may attempt to do without fear or trepidation. The simplicity of the bell-like flower and the spear shaped leaves is an ideal starting patch on which to learn the trick of turning and sewing a fine seam. White was the accepted background for this applique block, but with the delicate sea green pastels available green is a popular choice for a background for the young girl's quilt.

For a limited period Nancy Cabot offers 10 quilt patterns of her own choice at a price of 10 cents for the group (12 cents by mail). Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower.

Overdose of Attention Is Bad for Child

A few days ago I talked about the neglected child and what a sad figure he cuts. And yet often I say to mothers, "I believe what your child needs is a dose of wholesome neglect."

The child who's going to improve under a little wholesome neglect is the one who's been smothered with signs of love, with attention, with being constantly played with and entertained. She's looked at, discussed, admired, and laughed at for her amusing ways. The result is she does practically all of the things she shouldn't and none of the things she should.

She hears she's smart, she's cute, she's darling, or perhaps she hears she's naughty, she doesn't eat this and doesn't eat that, she's hard to get to bed and harder to get to sleep. She's given the center of the stage and since that's the only kind of attention she's had, she craves it and plays up to it. In a word, she's spoiled.

For the good of her soul, as we say, wholesome neglect is the prescription. That doesn't mean dropping her like a hot cake, or elaborately ignoring her. That would hurt and bewilder her. It means merely stopping the wrong kind of attention; it means not personalizing about her all the time. It means giving her a normal place in the home picture.

If a spoiled child is surrounded by grown ups, their coöperation must be enlisted. If this is difficult, a break from the old pattern of excess attention might be achieved by a few hours a day at a nursery school or kindergarten.

But further details aren't necessary. If you get the idea, you can work it out yourself.

We have a fully written leaflet called "Wholesome Neglect Is Often Cure for Undesirable Behavior." It will be sent on receipt of a large, stamped, self-addressed envelope. Address Mrs. Gladys Bevans, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill.

Eight Hundred Dance at Macdonald School Recital

An enthusiastic audience of 2,800 persons last night watched the 800 dancing pupils of Miss Mayblossom Macdonald in their annual spring recital at the Civic Opera house. The dancers, ranging in age from 3 to 20 years, gave a three hour program entitled "Sleepy Town Express Dance Vogues of 1938." Miss Macdonald has helped train the girl dancers in pageants of the Chicagoland Music festivals.

The Housewife

What could be smarter than quilted chintz covers for summer bridge tables. They're new, different, and extremely good looking, and they aren't nearly so costly as they look.

In plain, light brown, they're trimmed in beige. Or you might prefer the blue with a tiny red finish, or the beige with brown. They fit neatly over a standard size bridge table and they come down over the frame beneath the top.

One of these smart covers would make a charming bridge prize. Nearby we saw attractive small gifts, among them a lovely crystal bell, all of glass, which, too, would be a welcome prize to a bridge fan. And it was easy on the purse.

Amazing Finds in House Robes Seen in Shops

BY RHEA SEEGER.

What the house robe makers have achieved with a few yards of crisp cool cotton and a few more yards of lace, braid, rick-rack, or bow ties, is something to earn them no less than a dozen shiny chest medals for outstanding service. With price marks way down the things practically sell themselves at first sight.

The dotted swisses are delectable trifles for a hot summer morning. The newest pets have skirts that are a flock of flounces, each gathered into the one below it, so that you really have yardage at the floorline. Sleeves are puffed and short and the good old colored zipper keeps the entire concoction of froth securely in place.

Dots of red, blue, and black are peppered against white, and there are all kinds of navy, browns, and blacks with millions of tiny white dots . . . the price is around five dollars and they're all smart enough to wear down to dinner with the appreciative family for an audience.

Printed cotton affairs around three dollars are amazing finds. The designs are effective without a single gaudy effect anywhere. Some banded beauties in printed cotton are made with plaited skirts. These make slick house dresses for anyone, for they can be worn without slips as the cotton is cool but opaque. Dirndl robes or house dresses are so plentiful you'll have yourself a time selecting merely one model. Some come in sheer cottons, others in the closer woven texture.

Cool all white cottons are exceptionally lovely, so are the pale pastels in pink, blue, and the palest of lettuce green tints. Silky batiste has been revived to make these numbers and ribbon is laced through lace or embroidery beading to further capture a bit of the charm of the gay '90s. Underskirts to match, with deep fluted flounces edged at the top of the flounce with ribbon laced beading, are sold to wear with these negligees.

CLOSED HOSPITAL SEEKS TO MEET CITY STANDARDS

Bundesen Denies Charges in Injunction Suit.

Officials of the West Side hospital, 1850 Harrison street, whose license to operate was revoked on Thursday, indicated yesterday that they would attempt to remedy faults found by the board of health.

The conference immediately followed a hearing before Judge John Prystalski of the hospital's suit for temporary and permanent injunctions restraining the board of health and Mayor Kelly from closing the hospital. Judge Prystalski continued the hearing until Monday to permit the board of health to file a reply.

The petition for an injunction filed by Attorney William H. Noble, denied the hospital's equipment was defective, and declared the board of health and city government were conspiring to ruin the hospital and condemn its property for a park. The hospital also denied the board's charge that four cases of amebic dysentery, one of them fatal, had occurred among the hospitals during the last year, probably because of water pollution.

Dr. Bundesen declared the conspiracy allegation was without foundation. To support the amebic dysentery charge he produced the death certificate of Florence Marie Schumann, a nurse who died in the hospital last July 13.

Signed by Dr. O'Byrne.

"The certificate attributes the cause of death to amebic dysentery and is signed by Dr. O'Byrne," he said. "Moreover, the certificate says that no operation was performed on the nurse, whereas her case record shows that her appendix, although normal, was removed nine days before her death. There is specific treatment for this disease, but it is not surgery."

In reply to the hospital's charge that it was given no time to meet the health department's demands, Dr. Bundesen said he had been trying to get it to improve its equipment for months.

"In our conference," he said, "Dr. O'Byrne said he was willing to remedy any faults and would inform us when he is ready to have our experts come out and advise him on how violations may be corrected."

The board of health has ordered that no new patients may be admitted to the hospital until the defects listed in its complaint are eliminated. The hospital now has forty-six patients.

LIMITS SCHOOL WARANT HOLDERS TO PENDING SUIT

Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg issued a temporary injunction yesterday restraining holders of unpaid 1929 school tax warants from proceeding with any actions, other than a suit pending in his court, to collect their claims, and from enforcing any judgments already obtained against the school board.

He excepted from the injunction the Norfolk and Western railroad and the Union Trust company, which have federal court judgments against the board. They recently sought federal injunctions restraining Judge Feinberg from interfering with collection of their claims.

The suit pending before Judge Feinberg was filed by the Southeast National bank and Charles B. Scoville Jr., warant holders. Judge Feinberg has declared it a representative action, requiring all other warant holders to join it. The suit seeks to recover from warant holders who were paid the full amount of their warants that portion of the payment exceeding what they would have received under a prorata distribution of tax collections to all warant holders. The federal court held that the prorata distribution was the proper method of paying off the warants.

COUNCIL PASSES ORDINANCE TO EXPAND AIRPORT

The city council yesterday authorized enlargement of Chicago airport from its present size of about 300 acres to 588.689 acres, consisting of the entire tract bounded by 55th and 63d streets, Cicero and Central avenues. The ordinance is the basic measure in the new program now being undertaken to bring about the expansion of the flying field in accordance with powers granted by the state legislature in its current session.

The ordinance specifically authorizes the city to enter into a contract with the Chicago and Western Indiana railroad for removal and relocation of the company's tracks that now bisect the field. In a later ordinance to be passed by the council the city will enter into a definite contract to pay for the costs of the new right of way and the track transfer. Meanwhile the ordinance passed yesterday will be submitted to the Illinois aeronautics commission for approval.

BEE HOME RUN SUBDUES LEE; FRENCH ROUTED

Chicagoans Make 10 Hits All Day.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., June 17.—The poor Cubs, who have lost their knack for bat swinging, stumbled twice this afternoon as their contribution to the annual Bunker Hill day celebration. Not unlike boys waving willow reeds at elusive butterflies, they succumbed before the Bees, 1 to 0, in the first portion of a doubleheader. Then the Chicagoans made more futile gestures in the second battle, but they at least located the counting station while losing, 3 to 2.

In their eighteen innings of agony before 12,645 spectators the Cubs experienced the thrill of a grand total of ten hits. In the first battle their failings as hitters brought an end to Bill Lee's winning streak and brought down on themselves their third shutout in their last six efforts. And they didn't score today until they had compiled a string of 27 innings without a run. Even a revised lineup in the second battle failed to bring forth the punch that counts in pennant marches.

Homer Beats Lee.

Lee's streak snapped at six games on one pitched ball in the first game. It was a pitch which Ray Mueller boosted into the bleachers for one of the five hits yielded by the Louisiana general. Five was the same total compiled by the Cubs against the 31 year old Jim Turner, two of them in one inning before any one was retired. But the Chicagoans accepted this opportunity only as a means of revealing their fondness for folding up in the pinches and at the same time inflicting an undeserved defeat upon Lee.

Lee's string began as it ended, 1 to 0, when he trimmed the Giants in ten innings on May 19. Then in order he took on the Bees, the Pirates, the Reds, the Bees again, and also the Giants. He was removed in seven innings against the Dodgers last Sunday, but the Cubs won that one for Clay Bryant. In his six consecutive successes Lee allowed only three runs and pitched four shutouts, the latter being part of 35 straight runless innings. Altogether Lee, even with today's defeat, has a record of four earned runs in his last 71 innings.

French Routed in First.

The Cubs didn't know it at the time, but the second game was settled before even one Bee was retired. Larry French, seemingly baffled by an error on the part of Billy Herman, let the Bees follow the errors with four successive hits. Three runs went across the plate and even though Charley Root, Albert Paul Epperly, and Jack Russell took good care of the remainder of the struggle their work didn't mean anything. The three runs proved sufficient, because the Cubs couldn't make an impression on John Lanning, although the latter did retire in the ninth to permit Ira Hutchinson to finish.

FIRST GAME

Manager Grimm was on the verge of cutting his own throat after observing what happened to the Cubs' attack in the second inning of the first game. Demaree opened this inning by punching one of Turner's pitches for a single to left. Hartnett marked the end of his thirteen day vacation with a double against the center field wall, Demaree stopping at third. Marty tapped to Turner and Demaree was nipped at the plate, Hartnett going to third. Cavarretta lined low to short right, but the agile Cooney plucked the ball off his shoetops. Hartnett wisely made no attempt to score. Then what had looked like a big rally faded entirely on Jurges' fly to Cooney.

The Bees, held to one fluke hit in three innings, bunched three safeties in the fourth, but even with this assortment they couldn't make the distance to the plate. Marty made a

CHICAGO GETS RUN IN 9TH TO AVERT SHUTOUT

It's Eighth Straight Home Defeat.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The White Sox, who have been shut out only once this season, yesterday fought like Satan's imps in the ninth and averted a whitewashing as they lost the opening game with the Boston Red Sox, 5 to 1, in Comiskey park.

Despite the heroic, though belated surge in the closing moments of the match, the lads must have made Jack Knott, making his White Sox debut, feel perfectly at home. Jack had spent his prior major league career with the St. Louis Browns, the only team in the American league which is more futile than the White Sox.

It was the eighth successive loss the White Sox have suffered in Comiskey park, the home folks having not had an opportunity to gaze on their heroes in a conquering rôle since May 25.

Though the Sox just equaled their run total in Thursday's final with the Yanks, they were infinitely more powerful at bat, crashing out eight hits, as contrasted with their grand total of one in the Yank farewell.

Two of the safe strokes, including one which drove in the run in the ninth, were made by Joe Kuhel, who has been reclining on the bench since the Sox ran their May-June losing streak to ten straight. Both of Joe's efforts were doubles. Marv Owen and Mike Kreevich each pounded out two singles. Gee Walker beat out an infield single with a great burst of speed in the ninth. The other hit, a single, was made by Norm Schlueter in the fifth.

Sox Nearer Cellar.

The victory was the seventh for Jack Wilson and the fourth straight for the Red Sox. The White Sox loss was their fourth straight, and plunged them eleven games below the .500 mark and a half game nearer the cellar. They have lost seventeen of their last twenty-three games.

Knott pitched perfect ball in his first three innings. Not one of the first nine batsmen got near first. In the fourth, however, Jack put the ball where several of the batsmen were swinging. Cramer opened the fourth with a double to left center and scored on Vosmik's double to left. Kuhel and Knott collaborated in a nice maneuver to sink Chapman, Vosmik taking third, whence he scored on Foxx's single to left. It was the 72d run batted home by Foxx this season. The inning ended immediately thereafter when Cronin hit into a double play.

Boston Scores Again.

Boston added its third run in the fifth inning—this one unearned. With one out McNair reached first on Owen's fumble. Peacock popped to Berger. McNair then went to second on Wilson's single and scored on Cramer's single. Vosmik flied to Walker.

With one out in the sixth Foxx beat out a bounder toward third, took second on Cronin's infield out, and scored on Higgins' single to center. McNair flied to Kreevich.

Kuhel Drives in Kreevich.

Kreevich led off the ninth with a single to center and stopped at second while Walker beat out a slow bouncer to Cronin. Kuhel came through with his second double, Kreevich scoring and Walker stopping at third. Hayes popped to Higgins. Schlueter flied to Cramer and Rosenthal grounded to McNair.

BY FRENCH LANE.

The race track crowds always like old Mucho because he has been an honest horse. When he doesn't win he's always doing the best he can down the home stretch. And it makes little difference about the weather or the track. It can be raining pitchforks and the track can be lightning fast or deep in mud. One thing is certain, old Mucho will run his race.

Early nibblers at the betting bait on the Lincoln handicap last night discovered they could get 5 to 2 on the old steed. Those were the shortest odds offered against any horse in the race and made it almost certain that he will be the post time favorite if he starts.

Might Be Withdrawn.

There was some talk last night that he might be withdrawn and that Bow and Arrow, now a stable mate of Mucho Gusto, would be depended upon to carry home the $5,000 prize. These were simply rumors, however, but nevertheless Bow and Arrow did run a noble race in his only start at Lincoln Fields.

Should Mucho Gusto be withdrawn, Bow and Arrow hardly will be the post time favorite. Arabs Arrow probably will be the choice, with Ethel V. Mars' Mars Shield second in line.

The Lincoln should be an exciting struggle. Whether or not Mucho Gusto goes liberal odds should prevail against the favorite. And there's no particular reason to believe the favorite will win. In the three earlier stakes run at Lincoln Fields this season not one public choice has been able to score.

The crowd at Lincoln Fields yesterday took a look at a band of top grade 2 year olds in the George Jessel purse at five furlongs. It brought a thrilling finish and the fastest run race of the year in Chicago.

The winner was the brown filly Inscoelda, closely related to and a stable mate of the Kentucky Derby winner Lawrin. She ran in the silks of Herbert G. Woolf's Woolford farm stable. The filly wound up the winner by a length and a half over Maetown, owned by Mrs. Clarence Dale of Chicago. Bala Ormont was third.

Inscoelda romped into the lead early and, ridden hard by Charley Rollins, stayed there until it ended. She ran the five furlongs in one minute. In the betting the Woolford farm filly paid $9.20.

There was a 3 year old race on the program that also attracted attention. It found Shining Heels a handy winner over Unselfish and the Canadian filly Pelter. Shining Heels had come to Chicago from Churchill Downs with quite a reputation. She wasn't quite able to win the Kentucky Oaks, but she made those that beat her step along at a speedy pace.

As a result Shining Heels, a daughter of Flying Heels-Glimmer, went to the post as the even money favorite. She never caused her backers any worry. She ran the seven furlongs in 1:26 and paid $4.

PACIFIC coast track followers predict that Gil LaCava, Los Angeles high school boy who broke the interscholastic high jump record of 6 feet 6 inches held by Willis Ward, eventually will clear 7 feet. . . . He leaped 6 feet 7⅛ inches in a California meet. . . . He is the stepson of Gregory LaCava, a movie director. . . . Laboratory tests fix the speed of a golf ball at 146 miles an hour when it leaves the club and that of a tennis ball at 80 miles an hour off a racquet. . . . Andy Uram, Minnesota half back who ran with Bud Wilkinson's lateral pass to defeat Nebraska in the final minute of the 1936 game, is employed in a Minneapolis bank. . . . An inn keeper at Speculator, N. Y., still has the check Gene Tunney gave him for his training stay before the first Dempsey fight. . . . He made more than the amount of the check betting on Tunney. . . . For a long time San Francisco newspapers bannered the daily doings of Joe Di Maggio. . . . Sam Chapman, former University of California football star, who is with the Athletics, now is singled out for that honor. . . . If the national collegiate track meet at Minneapolis today is a financial success you can credit the achievement mainly to Frank McCormick and Jim Kelly, athletic director and track coach, respectively, at Minnesota. . . . Both have been devoting much of their time toward that end since last February.

SCHMELING KEEN AND FIT AS EVER, HIS SECOND SAYS

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Speculator, N. Y., June 17.—Edward [Doc] Casey, who has been in Max Schmeling's corner for all of his important fights in this country except two, arrived from Detroit late last night and today had his first look at the man he will second Wednesday night against Joe Louis in their heavyweight championship bout in Yankee stadium, New York.

"Schmeling is in fine shape. I won't see him work out, of course, until tomorrow, but Max is physically as keen as he was two years ago when he knocked out Louis," Casey said.

"Schmeling has a fine pair of legs. That always has been the secret of his success. An athlete lasts only as long as his legs and at 32 years of age Max has the development one would expect in a man four or five years younger.

Never Out of Condition.

"Schmeling is in condition principally because he never is out of condition. His weight hasn't varied two pounds in eight or nine years. And when he isn't working for a fight his normal outdoor life keeps him fit.

"I expect Schmeling to be just as strong in the last round as in the first, if the fight should go that far. But Max has two other points in his favor. He has a great heart and he possesses keen intelligence."

Schmeling said today that he didn't care who was named referee of the fight. He never has protested any official. This statement is taken to mean that he is confident he will win so decisively that the referee will be needed only for patrol duty.

Interested in Gloves.

But Schmeling is interested in selection of the gloves. Gloves made by Sammy Frager of Chicago and gloves manufactured by the Everlast company have been delivered for inspection to both camps. Schmeling has picked the Everlast glove. He refuses to consider the others because he dislikes the way the thumbs stick out. He contends that because of this a blow which strikes the face may accidentally result in the thumb hitting the eye.

Gloves Weigh Six Ounces.

The rival trainers have agreed to abide by the bandage rule now part of the New York regulations. Each fighter will be permitted to use twelve feet of soft bandage and ten feet of one inch tape. The gloves weigh six ounces. This gives each excellent protection for his hands and it also provides each with formidable weapons.

Max Machon, Schmeling's trainer, and Casey definitly will be in Schmeling's corner. Whether Joe Jacobs is the third second depends on his application for reinstatement. Jacobs and Tony Galento were barred because the commission disapproved of Tony's training methods when he was signed to meet Harry Thomas. Jimmy Adamick was substituted for Galento. Jacobs, as yet, hasn't asked to be reinstated.

While Schmeling's conditioning methods have been freely criticized, as they were two years ago, he is finishing his training with more work than is Louis. He will box six rounds tomorrow, six rounds Sunday, and four rounds Monday.

Knockouts Now Don't Help.

Wolcott Sets Hurdle Mark; So. California Leads Trials

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Minneapolis, Minn., June 17.—Fred Wolcott, Rice Institute sophomore, opened the seventeenth annual national collegiate track meet at the University of Minnesota today by breaking the record for the 120 yard high hurdles.

Wolcott, while winning his heat by seven yards from Ivy Bledsoe of Southern California, was timed in 14 seconds, one-tenth of a second faster than the meet record set by George Saling of Iowa in 1932.

Fred Wolcott.

Wolcott's performance preserved his record of setting a new mark in every meet in which he has competed this year. His time was one-tenth of a second off his best effort thus far and equaled the American record set by Bob Osgood of Michigan last year.

Only Outstanding Performance.

Wolcott's chief challengers in tomorrow's final will be Harvey Woodstra of Michigan State, who won as he pleased in 14.5 in the first heat, and Jim Humphries of Southern California, who took the second heat in 14.4. The young southerner also is the favorite in the low hurdles, in which he qualified without extending himself.

Although conditions were ideal for record breaking, Wolcott's high hurdle race was the only outstanding performance of the preliminaries. All times were good, but not exactly what had been predicted when the weather man's threat of showers was dispelled this morning by a bright sun which beamed down on the crowd of 15,000 throughout the meet.

Favorites survived the preliminaries with one exception. Adrain Talley, Southern California's sprinter, was shut out in the first heat of the 100 yard dash in which Mozzle Ellerbe of Tuskegee, Horace Johnson of North Dakota, and Edgar Mason of Pittsburgh qualified. Talley insisted on running despite a leg injury suffered in training early in the week and finished fourth.

Woodruff Distances Rivals.

John Woodruff, Pittsburgh's Olympic 800 meter champion, withdrew from the quarter mile to concentrate on the 880 yard. In his heat of the 880 he took the lead on the first turn and coasted along with disdain for the rest of the field.

Little Tommy Deckard of Indiana challenged the long-striding colored star on the back stretch of the second lap, but without lengthening his stride or apparently increasing his effort, Woodruff ran the diminutive Hoosier into the ground and finished off by himself in 1:53. Calvin Bell of Rice, who had trailed Woodruff by ten yards all the way, finished that far behind in second place, and Coleman Headley of Maryland beat Deckard for the third qualifying position.

Fenske in Close Race.

Charles Fenske, the Big Ten mile champion, whose race tomorrow against John Munski, Missouri sophomore, and Louis Zamperini, Southern California's Olympic star, is expected to be the outstanding race of the meet, was pressed to win his half mile heat. He was forced to uncork a sprint to beat out Stan Holt of Rhode Island State by a stride.

Southern California, seeking its fourth consecutive title, led in the number of qualifiers by placing thirteen men in eight of the eleven events in which trials were held. California was second with six men and Rice was third with five. Thirty-nine of the eighty-eight schools entered were represented among the qualifiers.

Ben Johnson, Columbia's sprint champion, turned in the fastest heat in the 100 yard dash, defeating Poyton Jordan of Southern California in :09.7, and ran away from his field in the 220 yard dash, in which his :21.3 was the fastest for the event.

Bell Disappoints in Javelin.

Larry Bell of Miami university was a disappointment in the javelin, his best effort being 208 feet 7¾ inches. Last week, in Milwaukee, he set a Cen-

HELEN MOODY LOSES LONDON TENNIS MATCH

LONDON, June 17.—(AP)—A strangely docile and indifferent Helen Wills Moody lost to Mme. Hilda Krahwinkel Sperling of Germany today in the semi-finals of the London lawn tennis tournament and immediately gave up to Alice Marble her position as Wimbledon favorite. Mme. Sperling won, 8-6, 6-2.

Helen, who was beaten by Ruth Mary Hardwick in the recent St. George's Hill tournament, today was leading at 5-3 in the first set when suddenly she appeared to lose her touch against Mme. Sperling's soft, safe returns.

Critics pointed out that, when Miss Hardwick beat her, Helen was due to play Jadwiga Jedrzejowska the next day. The same was true today, for Mlle. Jedrzejowska gained the other final bracket by beating Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan of Boston, 6-3, 6-2, and as a result some observers believe that Mrs. Moody does not want to meet the hard hitting Polish champion until the Wimbledon tournament, which starts next Monday.

DEAN TAKES HIS AILING ARM EAST TO REJOIN CUBS

Dizzy Dean, the Cubs' ailing $185,000 pitcher, left Chicago yesterday aboard the Twentieth Century Limited for Brooklyn, where he will rejoin the club today. Dean was ordered to leave after a diagnosis revealed that he is suffering from a muscle strain in the shoulder, but has completely recovered from his original injury.

He will go through light workouts until he is ready to pitch.

PRIZE HORSES GO ON DISPLAY AT HINSDALE TODAY

Field of 159 to Compete for Ribbons.

With entries totaling 508 to make it one of the nation's largest, the ninth annual Hinsdale Horse show will get under way this morning on field No. 1 of the Oak Brook Polo club, York road and 31st street. Performances will also be given this afternoon, tomorrow morning, and tomorrow afternoon.

Sponsored by the Hinsdale Horse Show association, of which Walter P. Saunders is president, the event has attracted the best gaited and jumping horses from 116 stables in Illinois, Indiana, and Wisconsin. All told, 159 fine show horses are entered in the thirty-five classes of competition.

Some Saddle Entries.

Especially formidable in the three and five gaited saddle horse classes will be Little Colonel, Gay Highway, My NuJoy, and Ann Boleyn, entered by Hubert S. Silberman's Delaine farm at Glenview, and Snuffy Smith, In Person, and The Buccaneer, nominated by Irving S. Florsheim's Red Top farm at Libertyville.

Equally keen competition is evident in the hunter and jumper classes of which there are fourteen, with a field of thirty-one horses entered in the event for green jumpers.

Ilderton Threat to Hunters.

Stanley Luke of La Grange has the management in the ring of fifteen timber toppers, five of them being his own. They are Jumping Jack, Fashion Eclipse, Benedict, Dominic, and Ilderton. The last named is a special threat to other hunters entered.

Arlington Is Rendezvous of Society Folk

Society's sports rendezvous during July will be the exclusive Post and Paddock club in Arlington Park, which opens its thirty day meeting on June 27.

More than 300 members wear the button of the Post and Paddock club, led again this season by Laurance Hearne Armour of Chicago, its president. Since its organization in 1929 the headquarters has been the attractive clubhouse situated at the western end of the stands of the northside course.

DETROIT DOUBLE SETS RECORD FOR SEASON AT $4,304

Detroit, Mich., June 17.—[Special.]—The largest daily double price in Detroit's history and the biggest on any American track this year was paid at the Fair Grounds today when Jocky Joe Cowley rode Sucre and Tramway to victory in the first and second races. Two unidentified ticket holders each collected $4,304 for $2.

Continental-Illinois Wins in Bankers Softball Play

Continental-Illinois' softball team, leader in the Chicago Bankers' league, defeated City National, 11 to 6, yesterday in Lincoln park for its third straight victory. In other games, First National won from Northern Trust, 12 to 9, and Chicago Title and Trust triumphed over American National, 21 to 10.

REDS DRIVE ON LEADERS; BEAT DODGERS TWICE

Take Third Place with Pair of Victories.

Brooklyn, N. Y., June 17.—(AP)—The Cincinnati Reds swept into third place in the National league today by defeating the Dodgers in both games of a double-header, 4 to 3 and 12 to 10.

Jim Weaver, allowing only four hits and fanning eleven, beat Van Mungo in the opener in eleven innings. Ernie Lombardi hit a home run in the ninth to tie the score, and Ival Goodman hit his fifteenth home run of the season to win the game in the eleventh.

In the second game the Reds scored four runs in the first inning and followed it up with six more in the third.

BANK'S PROFITS ON BONDS TOLD IN LEITER SUIT

Details of bond sales by the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company to a trust estate established by the late Mrs. Mary T. Leiter were told yesterday at another hearing in the accounting suit brought by the beneficiaries of the trusts. The suit seeks the removal of the bank as trustee, accusing it of misconduct and juggling of assets.

The beneficiaries are Thomas Leiter, Colin L. Campbell, and Cecil J. A. Howard, grandsons of Mrs. Leiter and the late Levi Z. Leiter, wealthy Chicago merchant. Their attorneys, Denis E. Sullivan Jr. and Edmond Sullivan, assert that the bank profited by selling some of its own securities to the trust and took secret commissions from other transactions.

At the hearing yesterday before Master in Chancery Harold Sullivan of the Circuit court, at 7 South Dearborn street, the plaintiff's attorneys introduced documents relating to bond transactions in the trust involving $52,000.

In one instance, the documents showed, the bank had purchased forest preserve bonds, of par value $2,000, at 88 cents on the dollar. These bonds were later sold by the bank to the Leiter trust at 94.5 cents on the dollar. In another case $2,000 in bonds, bought by the bank at 86.85, were transferred to the trust at 90.02.

The hearing was continued to June 23 at 2 p. m. Attorney Denis Sullivan said he expects to complete his case at that time.

Capt. Karrick to Become District Army Engineer

Capt. S. N. Karrick, who has been acting as the district representative of army engineers for the last three years, will take the post of district engineer in Chicago on July 1, it was announced yesterday. He will replace Col. D. H. Connolly. The Chicago district of the war department includes the harbors of southern Lake Michigan, the navigable waterways of Chicago, and the Illinois waterway from Lake Michigan to the Mississippi.

FALLS ON STREET; DIES.

Flora of Chicagoland

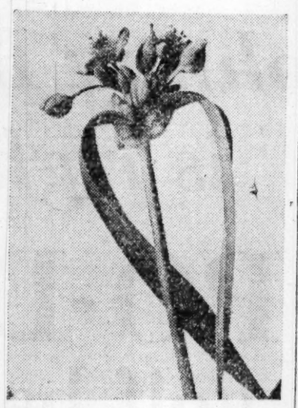
June 17, 1938.

THROUGHOUT Chicagoland this week, both in weedy city lots and farm woods, the colorful spiderwort is in blossom. On the Tribune's Du Page county farm these three leaved purple flowers have appeared near the fences which line the farm roads as well as in the woodlots. Commuters on a suburban train can see hundreds of these flowers growing along the right of way.

You can't sleep all morning and expect to see the spiderwort during an afternoon hike, because this flower is open only during the morning hours. By noon practically all of them are through for the day. In fact, each spiderwort flower is open for only a few hours before it closes its petals permanently. Two or three of the flowers open at the base of the cluster, then droop over to cover their fruit which develops later. The next day two or three more open, then droop and fade.



The Spiderwort, or Widow's Tears.

Escapes from Gardens.

The spiderwort [sometimes called widow's tears or Job's tears] formerly did not grow as far west as Illinois, being native to Connecticut and South Carolina. After it was introduced as a garden flower here it escaped from cultivation and seeded itself, so that now it is quite common throughout the state. It is an adaptable wildflower, adjusting itself readily to wet or dry soils. One of the men on the Du Page county farm transplanted some of the flowers to a plot in his garden and found that they thrived. All of the plants are tall and the flowers abundant.

The familiar name, widow's tears, is much more descriptive of this wildflower than the rather ugly name of spiderwort. Origin of the name is quite interesting to those who know some of the unusual characteristics of wild plants. When flowers of the widow's tears are open for a few hours in the morning they give no clew to their peculiar name. They are bright, catch the eye, and are attractive enough to attract attention for their arresting color.

Retreats into Calyx.

But just as soon as the sun is on its way across the westward sky, the purple petals of the flowers retreat into the calyx, and soon there is just a thin layer of jelly where formerly appeared a beautiful blue blossom. Thus the spiderwort or widow's tears literally "dissolves itself to tears" which gives the reason for its descriptive name.

The botanical name of the spiderwort is Tradescantia virginiana, after John Tradescant, gardener to King Charles I. of England. A Virginia relative sent him some spiderwort seeds which he planted in the royal gardens. Since that time this species has been a garden flower in England.

REFER DR. BLACK APPOINTMENT TO FINANCE GROUP

The county board yesterday received the formal recommendation of the board's advisory committee on hospital affairs that Dr. Benjamin W. Black of Oakland, Cal., be appointed warden of the County hospital.

Because the committee recommended that Dr. Black receive a salary of $18,000 a year, an increase of $4,000 over the present appropriation, the question of his appointment was referred to the finance committee, which will meet Tuesday. The increased salary does not include the living, automobile, and chauffeur provided Michael F. Zimmer, the former warden.

KING CAROL AND QUEEN MAY MAKE UP, LONDON HEARS

LONDON, June 17.—Diplomatic circles in London buzzed tonight with reports of a possible reconciliation between King Carol II of Rumania and his former queen, Princess Helen of Greece, mother of Crown Prince Michael of Rumania.

The reports gained currency from the disclosures that Princess Helen arrived unheralded tonight in London while George Tatarescu, former Rumanian prime minister and now King Carol's closest adviser, is due tomorrow from Bucharest. Carol will be in London in September on a state visit to King George VI. and Queen Elizabeth of Great Britain.

The duchess of Kent, Princess Helen's cousin, took a vacation in eastern Europe last April. Reports then said the duchess was taking a hand in attempts to reconcile the royal couple.

Los Angeles, Cal., June 17.—(AP)—Citing the convictions of Policemen Earle Kynette and Roy Allen as sufficient cause, Councilman James M. Hyde demanded today in the city council that Mayor Frank L. Shaw, Chief of Police James E. Davis, and all members of the police commission resign.

The resolution declared the police intelligence squad, of which Kynette was head, operated as a political spying organization with knowledge of the mayor and the chief.

1,400 to Take Tests for Life Guard Jobs

Physical examinations will be given Monday and Tuesday in the Diversey avenue beach house to 1,400 applicants for summer jobs as life guards at beaches and swimming pools operated by the park district. The 240 successful candidates will be selected within the following ten days after swimming, boating, resuscitation and first aid tests. The beaches and pools will be opened July 1.

OBITUARIES

Arthur M. Brereton.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. today in the First Presbyterian church in Wilmette for Arthur M. Brereton, controler of the Pure Oil company, who died Thursday night in his home at 241 Essex road, Winnetka. Burial will be in Memorial Park cemetery. Mr. Brereton, who was 46 years old, was born on a farm in Delaware and began his association with the Pure Oil company in its Philadelphia offices. He was appointed controler and came to the Chicago offices in 1929. He was general chairman of the committee on uniform methods of oil accounting of the American Petroleum institute, director of the Kildeer Country club, and a member of the Sky-Line club. Surviving are his widow, a daughter, Margaret Louise, and a son, Arthur M. Brereton Jr.

John F. Browne.

John F. Browne, president of the South Shore Sheet Metal Works and active in South Shore community affairs, died yesterday in St. Luke's hospital. He was 36 years old. Mary E. McCabe Perine.

U. S. LIEN SEEKS $20,000 IN TAXES FROM PROMOTER

A tax lien was filed in federal court in East St. Louis yesterday against Jacob R. Finkelstein, Chicago promoter, by V. Y. Dallman of Springfield, collector of internal revenue. According to the lien, which is operative against any assets Finkelstein may have, he owes $20,000 in unpaid income taxes and interest for 1929 and 1930.

Finkelstein, who lives in the Congress hotel, was fined $500 by Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward in 1936 after pleading guilty to a misdemeanor charge of failing to file returns for the two years in question. At the time, according to his attorney, Benjamin Landis, two felony counts charging income tax evasion were dropped and the amount of the taxes reduced. Landis said that Finkelstein, once campaign manager for Senator James E. Watson of Indiana, has an interest in some oil wells near East St. Louis.

CITY BRED FOLKS HAVE A SUNDAY DATE WITH FLORA, AND FAUNA, TOO

Are you the usual city bred person, who wouldn't know a guppy from a barracuda, and who knows almost nothing of the flora and fauna native to northern Illinois? Then you are invited to Maple lake in Palos Hills of the forest preserve at 95th street and Wolf road at 10 a. m. tomorrow.

At the suggestion of President Clayton F. Smith of the county board, Dr. David H. Thompson and other members of the state natural history survey division of the University of Illinois will take the public on a free lecture tour through the woods.

Dr. Thompson will net a mess of fish in Maple lake, classify them, explain their habits, how to hook them, and how to dress them. Other scientists will describe the birds, the small animals, and the various types of foliage seen on an hour's walk in the preserve.

BARTLE

U. S. NOTE CALLS HITLER WELSHER ON AUSTRIA DEBT

Insists Americans Should Be Paid.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 17.—The United States today politely, but nonetheless certainly, branded Germany as a welsher for the reich's effort to disclaim responsibility for the debt of Austria to this country.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull made public a formal note delivered to the German foreign office June 9 by Hugh R. Wilson, American ambassador to Germany. The note reiterated the American contention that Germany, when it absorbed the former Austrian republic in the bloodless coup, assumed full responsibility for Austria's post-war debts to America and other liabilities.

Germany Denies Liability.

To a previous statement of the American position Germany insisted that she is not liable under international law for the foreign debts of the former Austrian government. This position was enunciated publicly by Walther Funk, German minister of finance, in a speech yesterday. Funk's position that Germany was not legally or morally bound to assume Austria's debt was challenged in the American note.

Austrian obligations to this country before her absorption by Germany totaled approximately 50 million dollars. Of the total, $24,055,078 represented a postwar debt for food supplies provided in 1920. The remainder represents private loans, bonds, and obligations.

International Law Quoted.

"It is believed that the weight of authority clearly supports the general doctrin of international law founded upon obvious principles of justice that in the case of absorption of a state, the substituted sovereignty assumes the debts and obligations of the absorbed state and takes the burden with the benefits.

"A few exceptions to this general proposition have sometimes been asserted, but these exceptions appear to find no application in the circumstances of the instant case. Both the 1930 loan [private loan] and the relief loans were made in time of peace, for constructive works, and the relief of human suffering.

Defends American Creditors.

"There appears no reason why American creditors of Austria should be placed in any worse position by reason of the absorption of Austria by Germany than they would have been in had such absorption not taken place.

"The United States government, therefore, while recognizing the German government is at present engaged in negotiations with the numerous governments covering this and related questions, regrets that the service of the loan, affecting many American holders, would have been interrupted, reasserts its own position, and requests as early reply as possible may be made to the note of April 6, 1938."

Asks Reply from Germany.

The note called attention to the fact that the note of April 6 calling for German assumption of the Austrian debts had not been replied to. The latest note adds:

"The government of the United States does not wish to omit on the occasion of the failure of the German government to make the contractual monthly payment due on June 1 on the Austrian loan of 1930, in spite of the express charge which it enjoys on the assets and revenues of Austria taken over by the German government, to state its dissent from the indicated position of the German government as to its legal responsibilities in the premises and to express the hope Germany may yet undertake the payments incumbent on it, both under international law and equity."

MAKES OFFER TO BRITAIN

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, June 17.—Although the German press praises the repudiation by Walther Funk, minister of economics, of Germany's legal responsibility for the Austrian government's debt as a "German declaration of economic independence," Berlin, it is understood has submitted the following proposal to the British:

Germany will undertake to pay the debt service on that part of the loans guaranteed by Britain provided Britain reduces the interest rate on the Dawes and Young loans and also makes additional trade concessions, especially regarding her colonies.

There has been no mention thus far of the United States protests against the Austrian debt defeault, but in view of previous statements that Germany is willing to make bilateral debt agreements it may be assumed that the United States can get settlements on similar terms.

Ship 970 Pounds Castings and Machine Parts by Air

A shipment of 970 pounds of castings and machine parts, reported by the American Airlines to be the largest air shipment of its kind from Chicago, will leave on a twenty-one passenger airplane this morning for St. Huberts, a suburb of Montreal.

3 Hoagland, Allum Officials Indicted by U.S.

Three officials of Hoaglund & Allum, Inc., La Salle street investment concern which crashed in April with losses totaling $636,000, were indicted by a federal grand jury before Judge John P. Barnes yesterday on charges of violating the security and exchange laws and using the mails in a scheme to defraud.

The officials, George F. Allum, president of the firm; Olaf Larsen, vice president, and Henry A. Engel, secretary and treasurer, already are held in the county jail on state charges of embezzlement. Judge Barnes fixed bail on the federal charges at $25,000 each.

The indictments contain seventeen counts involving alleged offenses against seventeen of the estimated 200 victims of the crash. According to United States District Attorney Warren Canaday, who presented the indictments, it is charged that the men conspired by mail and by conversation to misrepresent securities to investors and that they sold securities they didn't own, represented securities as transferred to customers' accounts when no transfers were made, and used the securities of customers as collateral to obtain loans for themselves.

The Hoaglund & Allum company was known as a reputable investment house for nearly a score of years. Shortly after Russell W. Brown, vice president of the company, died in the car in his garage on April 14, agents of the blue sky division of the state's attorney's office raided the company's headquarters in La Salle street. The company was not a member of any registered stock or securities exchange.

Set Losses at $636,000.

In the subsequent investigation the story of the losses, which were sometimes estimated as high as a million dollars, began to come out. Canaday said yesterday that the losses are now established at $636,000.

Among the victims of the firm listed in the indictment was the Rev. L. Brooks of Beulah, Mich., who in 1935 was under investigation for his methods of operating a baby farm at Beulah and the Beulah Home and Maternity hospital at 2144 North Clark street. The Clark street hospital has since been closed.

U. S. STEEL SHOWS INCOME DERIVED FROM ITS UNITS

The Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation contributed $24,140,386 to the United States Steel corporation's total 1937 net income of $94,944,358, according to a statement filed by the parent company with the Securities and Exchange commission yesterday. U. S. Steel owns 99.792 per cent of the stock of Carnegie-Illinois, and the rest is held by the American Steel and Wire company, another "Big Steel" subsidiary.

The National Tube company, wholly owned subsidiary, earned $13,509,340 last year, the report showed. The Lake Superior Iron Mining company made a profit of $7,864,275.

Although the American Steel and Wire company paid the parent company $2,800,000 in dividends, the parent's equity of 99.825 per cent in actual earnings amounted to only $349,272, the statement showed.

RAILROAD ASKS TO PAY INTEREST AS PROFIT RISES

St. Louis, Mo., June 17.—(AP)—The St. Louis Southwestern railroad [Cotton Belt], which obtained a 90 day extension when $400,000 interest fell due on May 1, told Federal Judge Charles B. Davis today that business had improved to such an extent that it now is able to make the payment.

Counsel for the railroad said its business now is only 11 per cent lower than for the same time last year, whereas prior to May 1 its revenue was down 30 per cent as compared with 1937.

The interest is due on $20,000,000 in first mortgage bond certificates held by the Central Hanover Bank and Trust company of New York. Judge Davis set June 28 as the date for a hearing on the railroad's application to make the payment.

RAIL FREIGHT TRAFIC RISES SHARPLY FROM MEMORIAL DAY WEEK

Railroad freight trafic in the week ended June 11 recovered sharply from the small total of Memorial day week, but was still far below the corresponding week of last year, according to the weekly report issued yesterday by the American Association of Railroads. Last week's gain was more than seasonal.

Loadings last week reached a total of 553,854 cars, an increase of 51,230 cars, or 10.2 per cent, over the week ended June 4, the largest increases being in miscellaneous freight and less than car lot shipments. The total was 196,646 cars, or 26.2 per cent, under that of the week ended June 12, 1937.

Mdse., L. C. L.	147,995	+17,959	—21,729
Coal	82,279	— 4,320	—29,826
Grain and prods.	30,184	+ 3,852	+ 3,024
Live stock	11,502	+ 136	+ 945
Forest products	26,035	+ 1,532	—13,270
Ore	24,921	+ 3,540	—48,009
Coke	3,932	— 272	— 6,036

The Dow-Jones seasonally adjusted loadings index, based on the average of the last fifteen years, advanced to 66.8, against 65 in the week ended June 4. A year ago the index stood at 89.7.

HOLD SECURITY BILL NULLIFIES ANTI-TRUST ACT

Dealers Cite Power Given to SEC.

The Maloney bill for the control of over the counter dealers in securities, passed by congress this week and to become a law when signed by the President, in effect repeals the federal anti-trust laws as regards these dealers and places in the hands of the securities and exchange commission the decision as to whether the anti-trust act may be violated.

It also revives some of the provisions of the old NRA code for investment bankers to keep dealers in line who do not want to go along with the measure.

These provisions of the bill were disclosed yesterday by Chicago investment bankers, some of whom favor the measure, while others are opposed to it.

Supersedes Earlier Laws.

The following provision of the Maloney act is the measure by which the anti-trust laws are virtually repealed: "If any provision of this section is in conflict with any provision of any law of the United States in force on the date this action takes effect, the provision of this act shall prevail."

Since the Maloney bill provides that over the counter dealers may form an association or associations, their rules and regulations might well violate the anti-trust acts, it was pointed out. However, the theory of the Maloney bill is that the SEC will see that no action is taken which will be contrary to the public interest.

NRA Provision Revived.

The NRA provision is revived by a measure which the association or associations may enact to make membership inviting. To make it profitable for all over the counter dealers to join, a regulation may be passed prohibiting those who join from paying to any nonmember any agent's commission, which may amount to an eighth or a quarter of a point or whatever amount provided.

Nonmembers may be compelled to pay the same commission rates for securities as does the public.

The theory of the act is to provide for self-regulation of the industry by the members, under the supervision of the SEC. The commission has the power to pass on all rules and regulations to be passed by the association or associations. The association or associations are to have much the same position as the national stock exchanges under the SEC.

Provisions for Membership.

All present persons engaged in the over the counter business, except those who have been convicted of unlawful acts, are eligible to membership in the association or associations. However, any member may be expelled or fined for infraction of the rules, which are to be set up later. No criminal actions may be started by the association or associations, which are limited to making recommendations to the proper state or federal authorities.

It is estimated that there are about 5,000 security dealers eligible for membership.

YOUNG TO FIGHT FOR DOMINATION OF CHESAPEAKE

New York, June 17.—[Special.]—Robert R. Young, chairman of Alleghany corporation, and his associates will continue their fight against the present management of the Chesapeake corporation and bankers allied with the company, it was learned today. Young and Allen P. Kirby, leading equity holders, and the corporation itself contemplate further legal action to regain working control.

The exact course of action, however, will not be decided until the Young interests discuss the matter further with their attorneys, it was said.

The Alleghany interests are particularly bitter over the treatment accorded them at Wednesday's meeting of the Chesapeake corporation board, when Young and Kirby were denied representation in officerships and on committees.

Illinois Central Holds Cash for July 1 Interest

The Illinois Central railroad has sufficient cash on hand to meet its July 1 interest and other charges, L. A. Downs, president, told directors yesterday at their first full meeting to be held in Chicago. As of July 1 the Illinois Central has $1,171,000 of interest charges plus rental and other payments which all amount to about $2,000,000. Members of the executive committee reëlected William Averill Harriman, New York, as chairman.

Winthrop, Mitchell & Co. to Close 4 Branch Offices

Winthrop, Mitchell & Co., brokerage and investment house, announced yesterday that four branch offices will be closed next month, leaving offices in Chicago, New York, Washington, and London. The offices to be closed are in Davenport, Ia., Rockford, Ill., Milwaukee and Minneapolis. The firm closed branches in St. Louis, Mo., and Springfield, Ill., a few months ago. Shields & Co. also recently disposed of several of its branches.

Roosevelt Aids Try to Unsnarl Policy of PWA

Washington, D. C., June 17.—(AP)—The team of Corcoran and Cohen was hard at work today trying to rescue the administration from a power policy snarl threatening to delay $56,780,026 worth of PWA projects.

The job entrusted to the two young Roosevelt advisers, Thomas G. Corcoran and Benjamin V. Cohen, is full of political dynamite. It arises, according to inner circle informants, from a recent fight on the floor of the senate.

Critics of PWA power policy tried to write into the PWA act of 1938 a restriction against use of federal funds to build municipal power systems which would compete with existing private plants. The attempt failed, but only after Majority Leader Barkley of Kentucky had made a promise.

Barkley Interprets Policy.

Barkley said the administration positively would not permit such use of funds unless the private plants refused to accept a fair and reasonable offer to sell their properties to public agencies. Barkley indicated that this policy came straight from headquarters. After Barkley spoke the act passed without such restrictions.

So far as the law is concerned PWA may strike out with a free hand in any direction, making loans and grants by the millions for public power systems which would parallel private utility property.

Some PWA officials confide privately that they want to do that very thing. They still are angry at private companies for blocking their first public power program for months by means of lawsuits. They display urgent applications from municipalities for new loans and grants. They have extensive legal and engineering staffs primed for action.

Policy Statement Is Obstacle.

But directly across their path lies the Barkley statement of policy. PWA officials express dissatisfaction with it, but in view of it they indicate they have delayed 49 public power projects entailing expenditures of more than $56,000,000.

At this point Corcoran and Cohen step in. These twin entrepreneurs of many innovations have the task of reconciling Barkley's declaration with PWA desires. In the words of one official, they must find a formula for determining what constitutes a "fair and reasonable" offer for private power properties. They must determine procedure by which municipalities may make such an offer and how it may be tested for fairness and reasonability.

It is indicated that if they arrive at a satisfactory formula it may be made one basis of a new presidential pronouncement on national power policy.

American Airlines to Make New Advertising Drive

New York, June 17.—(AP)—C. A. Rheinstrom, vice president of American Airlines, Inc., today announced an "intensive" newspaper and periodical advertising campaign for the fiscal year starting July 1. He predicted a sharp upturn in passenger patronage under the impetus of the advertising campaign.

Beer Consumption Falls 11.6 Per Cent During May

Consumption of beer during May decreased about 599,649 barrels, or 11 6-10 per cent, from a year ago, a survey showed yesterday. Sales aggregated 4,555,773 barrels against 5,155,422 a year ago.

ECONOMISTS AND BOOK FELLOWS IRK JUDGE; LIKES BUSINESS MEN

New York, June 17.—[Special.]—Federal Judge Francis G. Caffey, presiding in the government's suit against the Aluminum Company of America, today expressed his contempt for the opinions of economists and "book fellows" who appear in court to testify as experts in various cases. The government is prosecuting the company and 62 co-defendants on charges of violating the anti-trust laws.

"I'd rather hear a business man than any economist," exclaimed Judge Caffey when a federal attorney suggested that an opinion from such a person would aid at one phase of the trial. "They bring these book fellows before us in all kinds of cases. We are called to listen to expert scholars in shipping cases, for instance. I get more help from some one experienced in navigation than from all of them."

UPHOLDS DOLLAR PAYMENTS FOR BONDHOLDERS

New York, June 17.—[Special.]—The Appellate division today ruled in effect that the congressional joint resolution of June 5, 1933, taking this country off the gold standard requires foreign holders of Bethlehem Steel company bonds to accept payment in the present American dollar rather than foreign currency which the bonds provided could also have been the form of payments.

The court made its ruling in two cases. In one it upheld a ruling of Supreme Court Justice Samuel I. Rosenman, who held that the Zurich General Accident and Liability Insurance Company, Ltd., of Zurich, Switzerland, which brought suit against the Bethlehem Steel company, would have to accept $25 on each interest coupon rather than 129.50 Swiss francs per coupon on the first consolidated mortgage bonds of the Lackawanna Steel company, now owned by the defendant.

In the second case the Appellate division modified a judgment rendered by Supreme Court Justice Samuel H. Hofstadter. It ruled that the plaintifs, Netherlands and Liechtenstein corporations, will have to accept $25 interest on coupons rather than 62.25 Dutch guilders on first lien and refunding mortgage 5 per cent thirty year gold bonds of Bethlehem Steel.

LONDON'S GOLD TRADE QUIETER; PRICE IS FIRM

Trading resumed a more normal pace in the London gold market yesterday as apprehension over further monetary changes subsided. The dollar was about steady in relation to foreign currencies in New York transactions.

Sales of gold on the London market amounted to approximately $4,340,000, compared with $5,940,000 on the preceding day, and the record 1938 turnover nearly $9,000,000 on Wednesday. The price held firm at $35 an ounce.

The commerce department reported a big increase in gold receipts from abroad in the week ended June 10. The imports aggregated $32,129,019, an increase of $17,789,000 over the preceding week. For the four weeks ended June 10 imports were $76,490,610.

Imports of silver aggregated $5,721,735, or $2,191,000 less than in the preceding week. For four weeks imports totaled $20,909,159.

The British pound held steady at $4,97⅛, Belgian and Holland currencies declined moderately, and the French franc closed at a slight gain.

W. T. Chevalier Appointed Officer of McGraw-Hill

New York, June 17.—[Special.]—Willard T. Chevalier, who has been with the McGraw-Hill Publishing company since 1923, has been appointed vice president and publisher of Business Week, succeeding Glen Griswold, who has resigned to enter public relations work. H. W. Clarke takes over Chevalier's former posts.

Farm Appropriation Bill Is Signed by Roosevelt

Washington, D. C., June 17.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt signed the agriculture department appropriation bill for the fiscal year beginning July 1 before leaving for Nahant, Mass., the White House announced today.

Edison Unit's Bonds Called for Payment

The Commonwealth Subsidiary corporation, wholly owned investment unit of the Commonwealth Edison company, yesterday issued notice that it will redeem $19,429,000 of 5½ per cent debentures on July 18.

The debentures carry a maturity date of Sept. 1, 1948, and holders will receive a premium of $2.75 per $100 principal amount because they are being paid in advance of maturity. Funds for the redemption will come from the proceeds of the sale of $39,000,000 of debentures by the parent company to its stockholders.

Call Financing Successful.

The flotation of the parent company debentures has not been completed but is progressing so successfully that notice of redemption of the subsidiary issue was given earlier than usual, officials said.

Subscriptions for an additional $3,500,000 of the new debentures were received yesterday, the company reported, bringing the total to date to $15,500,000. The subscription rights will expire June 24. Heavy subscriptions were brought in early by the company's offer to begin payment of interest immediately upon issuance of the securities instead of waiting until July 1.

Part of Refunding Plan.

After giving effect to the present financing the reduction in charges effected since September, 1936, will amount to $1,300,000 a year.

COURT UPHOLDS QUIZ ON TIMBER LAND COMPANY

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals yesterday ruled that the Securities and Exchange commission be allowed to resume its inquiry into the activities of Resources Corporation International, Chicago firm interested in the exploitation of Mexican timberland.

Hearings in Washington on the company's application to sell 35,000 shares of stock in its timberland development were interrupted recently when Resources International secured a temporary injunction restraining further investigation by the SEC.

In an opinion handed down by Judge Will M. Sparks, the Court of Appeals dismissed the temporary injunction against the SEC and also denied the company's petition for a review of the commission's action in refusing to allow the firm to withdraw its application to sell stock. R. H. Lauritzen, SEC attorney, said last night that the hearings probably will be resumed in Washington within a few days.

FOREIGN COPPER INTERESTS VOTE PRODUCTION CUT

LONDON, June 17.—(AP)—International copper producers who are parties to the plan for regulating output outside the United States voted today to reduce production from 105 per cent to 95 per cent of agreed basic tonnages. This was the first change in basic tonnages since December. The cut was decided upon because of reduced demand in the European markets.

Follows Domestic Trend.

New York, June 17.—(AP)—Action by foreign copper producers to cut output as reported from London was in line with the trend in the domestic field, copper interests said today. Recently Kennecott Copper corporation announced it would suspend operations at all domestic properties for at least a month. Anaconda Copper Mining company adopted an equally drastic curtailment program some time ago.

Week's Auto Production Rises to 41,790 Units

Detroit, Mich., June 17.—(AP)—Ward's Reports, Inc., today estimated output of the automobile factories for this week at 41,790 cars and trucks, a contra-seasonal gain over last week's 40,175 units. Production a year ago was 111,620 cars and trucks. The survey said the present production and sales trend would hold firm for at least another two or three weeks.

Celotex Profits Are Lower in April Quarter

Celotex corporation's April quarter profits fell as sales dipped 21 per cent below a year ago, the company's interim statement showed yesterday.

Pennsylvania-Central Airlines corporation had profits in April and May against losses in those months of 1937, and Liberty Loan corporation showed higher net earnings for the first five months of the year.

Lower earnings for the six months to May 31 were reported by H. W. Gossard company, maker of women's undergarments. Net losses were shown by United American Bosch corporation, maker of electrical apparatus for automobiles and airplanes, for the year to March 31 and by Brown-Forman Distillery company in the fiscal year ended April 30.

Profit Falls to $109,129.

Celotex net profit for the quarter ended April 30 slumped to $109,129 from $447,600 in the April, 1937, quarter, and sales slipped to $2,283,525 from $2,877,340. For the six months ended April 30, profit amounted to $117,531 against $715,931 in the corresponding six months of the preceding year. Sales for the six months declined to $4,099,068 from $5,112,608.

Pennsylvania-Central Airlines' net profit in May was $7,585, against a loss of $10,279 in May, 1937, C. Bedell Monro, president, said. April profit was $2,576, compared with a loss of $38,066 last year. For the five months ended May 31, the company reduced its net loss to $40,416 from $134,887 in the corresponding 1937 period.

Net earnings of Liberty Loan corporation, Chicago small loan firm, increased to $45,488 in the first five months from $39,641 in the first five months of last year, I. H. Levy, president, announced.

Gossard Earnings Lower.

H. W. Gossard company showed a profit for the six months ended May 31 of $145,511, compared with $183,693 in the corresponding period of the preceding year.

United American Bosch's net loss for the 12 months to March 31 totaled $162,217, against net profit of $387,834 in the preceding 12 months. Sales declined to $7,939,099 from $9,735,193.

Net loss of the Brown-Forman Distillery amounted to $33,263 for the year ended April 30, after a special charge of $135,546 for price change allowances. This compared with net profit in the preceding year of $288,694 after flood loss of $217,053.

I. C. C. APPROVES FINAL PLAN FOR CLASS 1 RAIL

Washington, D. C., June 17.—(AP)—The interstate commerce commission today adopted a final plan for reorganization of the Spokane International Railway company and Coeur D'Alene & Pend D'Oreille Railway company. I. C. C. attachés said it was the first final plan for reorganization of a class one carrier adopted by the commission.

The plan will be submitted to the District Court of the United States for the eastern district of Washington, where the international railway company filed under Section 77 of the bankruptcy act in August, 1933.

The plan provides for cancelation of unsecured claims and the capital stock of the Spokane International and the Coeur D'Alene. Existing bonds of the two railroads would be exchanged for new securities. Bondholders of each would receive in exchange for each $1,000 bond a $600 new income mortgage bond and six shares of new common stock.

OIL MAN TELLS OF PERSECUTION BY GOVERNMENT

Jones Alleges SEC Tried to 'Get Him.'

BY HOWARD WOOD.

One of the most amazing tales of political persecution and intrigue told in this country in many years is contained in "And So—They Indicted Me," by J. Edward Jones. Copies of the book were received in Chicago yesterday.

J. Edward Jones.

Jones is the dealer in oil royalties whose troubles with the Securities and Exchange commission two years ago resulted in a Supreme court ruling in which the SEC was vigorously rebuked by the court. The Supreme court declared that the action of the SEC had "no support in right principle or in law" and that it was "wholly unreasonable and arbitrary."

Faced "Fishing Expedition."

The litigation began early in 1935 when Jones, who had sought to register with the commission an issue of participation trust certificates, was ordered by the commission to appear with his records to answer the charge that his registration papers contained untrue statements. Before the hearing Jones withdrew his registration and asked dismissal of the proceedings.

The commission refused, asserting that the registration could not be withdrawn even though Jones had changed his mind and decided not to sell the securities in question. The lower courts upheld the commission, but the Supreme court reversed the lower court decision, describing the commission's procedure as a fishing expedition.

High Court Criticizes SEC.

The high court asserted that the commission had violated the "cardinal precept upon which the constitutional safeguards of personal liberty ultimately rest," and said that in substituting the mere will of a government official for written laws "the government ceases to be one of laws and becomes an autocracy."

Jones, in his book—published by himself after a publisher had withdrawn from the venture—dates the beginning of his difficulties with the administration to a fight with Secretary of the Interior Ickes in 1933. Ickes and Jones differed over proposals for regulating the production of oil and these differences developed into such heat that Jones wrote a letter to President Roosevelt in November, 1934, demanding the removal of Ickes from the office of administrator of the petroleum code.

Campaign of Persecution.

From then on, Jones says, he was the object of a deliberate campaign of persecution carried on by a large number of government officials and agencies, a campaign which terminated only with his exoneration by the courts.

About the only administration representatives who were friendly to him, according to his book, were a representative of the Democratic national committee who offered to help him in his difficulties if Jones would buy a thousand copies of the Democratic convention books, and William A. Raybel, assistant chief investigating accountant for the Securities and Exchange commission, who on June 23, was arrested at Jones' home in Scarsdale, N. Y., on a charge of soliciting bribes from Jones. The latter had tipped off the district attorney's office.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 17.—Practically all classifications of shares gave ground on the stock exchange today, with heaviness in the carrier division communicating itself to the remainder of the list. Industrial shares gave indications at intervals of bucking the downward trend, but modest gains failed to hold. Utility issues were relatively stagnant throughout the session. Trading continued extremely light at 327,840 shares.

The liquidation in rails, although not heavy, was accentuated by the absence of ready demand. Failure of congress to heed requests for aid to the industry was held in some circles to be the chief factor in deciding operators to give up part of their holdings.

Easiness in the industrial division was particularly apparent in a number of pivotal shares. United States Steel common and Bethlehem retreated from early gains to register substantial fractional losses. Motors behaved in similar fashion, Chrysler finishing 1 point down. General Motors and Yellow Truck slipped sizable fractions.

Losses in the active copper shares ran to 1 point or so, with International Nickel and Anaconda showing the way. American Smelting dropped 1¼ points. Aviations and gold mining shares were moderately active in a lower trend. Losses in the first named group reached 1 point, this accruing to Douglas.

Allied and Air Reduction, off 1½ and 1 point, respectively, depressed the chemical group. United States Rubber again was active and lost ¾ of a point, with Goodyear nad Goodrich easing smaller fractions.

The exchange reported that short interest in the market amounted to 1,343,573 shares as of May 31, a decrease of 40,540 from 1,384,113 shares a month earlier.

New York Bonds.

New York, June 17.—(AP)—Large scale institutional switching in railroad loans resulted in wide price swings, both up and down, in that division of the bond market today. The general list was mixed, but losses outnumbered advances.

Bond brokers and traders attributed most of the good turnover in the rail group to activities of portfolio managers of banks, insurance companies, and investment trusts making further adjustments because congress had adjourned without providing easier government loans for needy carriers.

Baltimore and Ohio convertible 4½s were in heavy demand from the start and ended 1⅛ higher. Three other B. & O. bonds gained minor fractions, three were down slightly, and two were unchanged. New York Central 3½s of 1997 were in supply and finished 3½ lower. The system's 4½s "A" of 2013 bounded 2⅛ and the 5s of 2013 2½.

Chicago Stocks.

Stock prices moved lower on the Chicago exchange yesterday, as the volume shrank to 62,000 shares, of which 54,800 were Commonwealth Edison rights. The rights closed off 2 cents at 21 cents.

Great Lakes Dredge, the most actively traded stock, moved against the trend, advancing ⅜ to close at 15¼ on sales of 700 shares. Commonwealth Edison stock was unchanged at 2⅛. Chicago Corporation eased ⅛ to 1⅞ and Zenith Radio dipped ¼ to 10⅛. Northwest Bancorporation lost ¼ at 6½.

Bank Stocks.

Chicago bank stocks were quiet yesterday. First National and Chicago Title and Trust shares each were quoted $1 lower. Other leading issues were unchanged.

CORN ADVANCES AS RAINS CAST DOUBT ON CROP

CHICAGO GRAIN FUTURES

	Yester-day.	Thurs-day.	Year ago.
Wheat	$0.78⅝	$0.79⅝	$1.08⅜
Corn	.57⅝	.57¼	1.14½
Oats	.26¾	.26⅝	.40½
Rye	.54⅜	.55	.83¼
Soy beans	.82¼	.87¼	1.29

Corn futures, showing independent strength for the first time in recent market sessions, climbed ⅝ cent to 1 cent a bushel on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday on good buying induced by continued unfavorable weather conditions in the corn belt.

Moving steadily upward late in the morning, the December corn contract registered a net gain of 1⅞ cents a bushel before larger offerings caused a setback. The December contract, reflecting uncertainty over the new crop, extended its premium over September corn to about 1 cent from the ¼ cent premium that prevailed at the preceding close. The volume of corn trading was larger and more outside interest was shown.

Rains Delay Work.

Uncertainty over corn prospects resulted from more rain in many corn producing areas where dry weather is urgently needed for cultivating and even planting. Private advices received by Chicago commission houses told of washouts, water standing in the fields, and very weedy conditions because inclement weather had prevented farm work.

Cash corn prices settled back to close unchanged to ⅛ cent a bushel higher after showing good advances earlier in the trading session. Purchases of corn in the country for shipment to Chicago were 77,000 bushels.

Wheat Loses Early Gain.

Following the procedure of the two preceding market sessions, wheat futures showed moderate strength early in the trading sessions and then fell back. Buying flurries occasionally caused rallies late in the morning but the bulges ran into ample offerings. Net losses for the day ranged from ⅛ to ¾ cent with the December contract incurring the smallest setback.

Pessimistic comments on the growing crop continued to pour into the wheat pit. Rust was reported for the first time in the south Dakota spring wheat territory and in a new section of Iowa.

Zenith Radio Corporation.

Investors' Guide: I have been considering buying some Zenith Radio stock. Will you please tell me something about this company?—Mrs. P. H.

Answer: Zenith Radio corporation is engaged in all phases of the manufacture and sale of radio receiving sets. It maintains an extensive research and development laboratory which in the last few years has developed the so-called Arm Chair type of receiver and the "Radio Nurse," a device to pick up sounds in any part of the house and make them audible through magnification in any other part of the house, and has contributed to the development of automobile radios.

In May, 1930, the company formed two subsidiaries, Zenith Distributing corporation [Illinois], and Zenith Distributing corporation [Delaware]. The Illinois company manufactures and deals in refrigerators and other electrical apparatus and the Delaware company is distributing agent for Zenith products in southwestern states. The company recently acquired a controling interest in Wincharger corporation, a manufacturer of wind driven electrical machinery for use on farms and in homes where electric power is not available.

Stockholders last October approved an amendment to the company's charter enlarging its power to permit it to enter actively into the field of television broadcasting, facsimile reproduction, and commercial communication generally.

Although sales were reported to have been slightly higher in the fiscal year ended April 30, 1938, the company reported a decline in net income to $701,477, or $1.40 a share, compared with net income in the 1937 fiscal year of $1,904,074, or $3.87 a share, and net income in the fiscal year ended April 30, 1936, of $1,212,753. Net profit for the 1935 fiscal year was only $10,760, or 2 cents a share; in 1934 it was $50,398, or 10 cents a share. Net loss of $578,110 was reported in the fiscal year ending April 30, 1933, and losses were shown in the three years preceding that. Net profit in the year ended April 30, 1929, was $1,109,602, or $2.77 a share.

The company has no funded debt, sole capitalization consisting of 492,464 shares of no par capital stock outstanding. Dividends were resumed in January, 1937, after a seven year lapse, and four quarterly payments of 50 cents each were made, the last on Oct. 30. None have been declared since.

Noteholders of the Corporation Securities Company of Chicago, bankrupt Insull investment company, were notified yesterday that a payment of 4¾ per cent of the face value of their claims will be made after July 11 by Trustee Sam Howard.

A total of $919,365 will be distributed under authorization recently given by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson. The funds were recovered by the trustee as a result of suits brought against New York and Chicago bank creditors of the company which held virtually all the company's assets when it went into receivership in 1932.

Explain Method of Payment.

Notice of the payment was sent to noteholders by Gen. Robert E. Wood and George W. McGhil Jr. of the noteholders' committee. Payments will be made only to noteholders whose certificates of deposit are registered in their own names, the committee said. Holders were asked to present their certificates to Trustee Howard, who will issue the checks. Transfer books on the certificates will be closed July 11 and no transfers will be made for 90 days thereafter, the committee said.

Noteholders were instructed by the committee to retain their certificates after receiving the 4% per cent payment.

Hope for Further Payment.

"It is possible," the notice said, "that there may be another small distribution in the future if there is a further recovery from the suits which are still pending against the former officers and directors. The trustee and the committee will make every effort to recover additional sums, but cannot insure the result of litigation."

The payment is the first to be made on approximately $19,000,000 of the company's notes held by the public. The federal court has authorized no payment to date on the $57,000,000 of debenture holders' claims against Insull Utility Investments, Inc., the other Insull concern which recovered funds from its bank creditors.

SEC to Resume Hearings in Investment Trust Quiz

Famous Civil War Camp Site

WHERE UNION SOLDIERS IN CIVIL WAR USED THIS SITE FOR A RIFLE RANGE AND LATER IT WAS USED AS SHARPSHOOTERS GUN CLUB.

SO DIFFERENT WERE ITS WOODED HILLS AND VALES FROM THE FLAT PLAINS AROUND IT—SO TRANQUIL AND INVITING, EVEN THE INDIANS REALIZED IT WAS TOO BEAUTIFUL TO BE DESPOILED BY WARFARE; AND THEY DEDICATED IT TO ETERNAL PEACE.
